Vote Probe Sidetracked By Congress For 'Musts'

Senators Uphold Proposal to Merge Housing Agencies, Pass Money Bills

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Congress yesterday stepped up its drive to go home by granting all pending "must" measures a clear track ahead of the still dangling Kansas City vote fraud resolution.

Senate Republican leaders postponed until tomorrow one last Senate showdown on the Kem resolution to investigate the Attorney General's handling of the vote fraud inquiry.

Pass D. C. Appropriation

By lifting the road block they made it possible for the Senate to:

1. Uphold by a 47 to 38 vote the President's Reorganization Plan No. 3, merging all Government housing activities under a single administrator.

2. Pass and send to the White House a $194,500,000 Interior Department supply bill and a $95,504,000 appropriation for the District. That left five regular and three supplemental money bills to pass by the adjournment deadline Saturday night.

Morse Motion Fails

3. Pass and send to the White House compromise legislation creating a 24-member National Science Foundation. Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), with strong Democratic help, tried to postpone action until next January to assure quota participation by State universities and land grant colleges. The Morse motion failed 48 to 38.

Before recessing overnight the Senate called up its unanimous consent calendar of unpassed bills for consideration today under the five-minute rule. Leaders said they hoped also to clear sugar quota legislation, the conference-approved agriculture supply bill and other bills in the "must" category before nightfall.

The Senate Republican policy committee meanwhile decided to make one more attempt tomorrow to break through Democratic opposition to the Kem resolution to force an investigation of the Kansas City case, despite an adverse report by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

May Go to House

If the Senate move fails, Republican leaders presumably were counting on the House to initiate an inquiry across the Capitol.

It was learned that Republican members of the House Missouri delegation decided at a recent meeting (1) to give the Senate every chance to pass the Kem resolution which they back, and (2) to seek eleventh-hour House action if the Senate fails.

One spokesman for House Missouri Republicans said a non-Missourian will probably offer the House resolution, which may call

9.5 Inches of Rain In 8 Hours Flood Pennsylvania City

Erie, Pa., July 22 (U.P.).—A record rainfall of 9½ inches in eight hours sent a flash flood surging through this town of 150,000 today.

Two feet of water deluged the city at the peak of the flood and in some spots it was as deep as 4 or 5 feet. No casualties were reported.

City council declared a state of emergency. Twenty families were evacuated and the National Guard and Naval Reserve were guarding low points.

The rain began at 10:13 a. m. and subsided at 8 p. m. It was still drizzling an hour later.

The rain was confined to the Erie area.

City officials warned residents to keep their gas turned off and to keep off the streets. Cars were stalled, streets and cellars flooded, and underpasses blocked by the freak flood.

$95,504,737 D.C. Bill Ready For President

Heat of Adjournment Rush Is Focused on District Legislation

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Congress yesterday focused the heat of its adjournment rush on District legislation.

Both houses gave final approval to the city's record-breaking $95,504,737 appropriation bill for this fiscal year. It now goes to the President.

The Senate District Committee approved nine bills in a slate-clearing executive session.

Biggest surprise action was the committee's vote for a bill to have the District Public Utilities Commission limit the city's taxicab fleet to whatever size it thinks best. Congress previously had been cold to similar bills.

Cain Leads Move

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) led the move for the taxi limitation bill. He said it would let the PUC "stand on its own feet" in deciding the number of cabs here. "Now the cab business is purely an open market," he said. "Drivers can't make enough for a living, so they go into bootlegging and the transporting of girls and so forth."

Also approved was the bill to set up a new city clinic for treating chronic alcoholics as sick people. Senator John S. Cooper (R., Ky.) won approval for a new plan to finance the clinic with a 10 per cent increase in liquor license fees. He estimated it would net $75,000 a year. The House clinic bill called for financing with up to $100,000 of general city revenues.

Senator Cain also won committee approval for a resolution to investigate housing in the District. Cain said he hoped to get Senate Rules Committee approval today for $15,000 to finance the study.

Calls for Summer Probe

Cain's resolution calls for a probe this summer to find out how far present building restrictions and regulations, public or private, may "contribute to the shortage and excessive cost of housing in the District." He said the study might save the city itself some money in its projected municipal building projects.

"I've fallen heir to a great affection for this community," Cain said. "I'd like to know whether

Barrett Seeks Advice of FBI On Crime Complaint Reporting

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett yesterday asked the Federal Bureau of Investigation to help straighten out the Police Department's system of crime complaint reporting.

He wrote the FBI, asking that they "look over and advise" on proper methods, a few hours before the Senate was to vote on a resolution seeking a full-scale probe of Washington police. Senate action was delayed until today.

Barrett also informed the Criminal Justice Association that he would be "glad to consider suggestions and cooperate" with it in presenting an accurate picture of crime conditions in the District.

Appeared More Efficient

John A. Remon, president, and Edward J. Flynn, managing director of the association, presented requests for accurate crime reporting.

The system sought would eliminate the possibility of hiding crime complaints as discovered by The Washington Post. Reporters found that the Detective Bureau under Barrett, then its chief, had hidden more than 600 robbery complaints and only reported 761 for an 11-month period last fiscal year. Thus, the police were made to appear far more efficient than was actually the case.

Remon and Flynn asked that all complaints be recorded in precincts and relayed by teletype to all other precincts immediately. Barrett authorized police on July 2 to continue hiding three categories of complaints, despite FBI instructions to the contrary.

Liaison Officer Named

They asked also that no exception be made. Where capture of a criminal is imminent and police find it necessary to withhold certain details, the association said it had no objections. Only precinct captains and the detective chief should be authorized to hold such cases, the association suggested:

However, the association declared that sufficient details should be furnished by teletype so that crime statistics would be accurate and complete everyday. Other details could be furnished within 30 days under the association plan.

Where a complaint is unfounded, the association asked that it be closed by a teletype message rather than be held at the precinct while the complaint is being investigated.

Barrett announcedhe was appointing Sergt. John F. Ryan as

Post Reporter

America's corn-crop showed remarkable improvement during the first fifteen days of July, the Crop Reporting Board of the Department of Agriculture reported yesterday.

Between July 1 and 15 the crop improved 5 per cent, the board stated. It predicted a harvest of 2,770,930,000 bushels, an increase of 158 million, compared with 2,612,809,000 forecast on July 1.

Offsetting this report to some degree was a report from the Chicago Weather Bureau that a cold snap in the Midwest had sent temperatures yesterday to the lowest figure ever reported in July.

At Land o' Lakes, Wis., the mercury slid down to 33, only one degree above freezing. Temperatures in Chicago went down yesterday morning to 49.3, the lowest for July in 100 years.

Crop experts said the unseasonably cold weather was another

Ocean City Mayor Refuses To Be 'Goat' in Gambling Row

Ocean City, Md., July 22 (AP).—Councilman G. Lester Esham tonight "temporarily" withdrew his resignation at an unscheduled meeting of this Atlantic resort town's mayor and city council.

Mayor Daniel Trimper strode in front of the three councilmen and said, "You're trying to make me the goat" and walked out of the meeting.

Eshman said his letter of resignation, mailed last Monday morning, had nothing to do with newspaper stories about gambling along the boardwalk or about protests that unlicensed interests were selling liquor.

Eshman said he was withdrawing his resignation because he thought the three councilmen ought to stick together and stay in office until after Ocean City votes August 4 an a $100,000 bond issue to improve the water system.

After Eshman had finished talking, Mayor Trimper got up from the chair where he had been sitting in the corner of the city office and, looking at the three councilmen, said:

"I have been hearing rumors all day that you all three intended to resign. I don't know why, but it seems as if you are trying to make it look like my fault. You are trying to make me the goat. You have

Forrestal Due to Get Defense Post

Conferees Must Decide on Three Major Points Of Difference

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The first Secretary of National Defense, heading the unified armed forces, will be Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal.

All evidence, internal and external, points to this conclusion. The stage has been set and the principal actor is ready to step into his role as soon as Congress finishes writing the script.

Yesterday Senate and House conferees on their versions of the unification measure agreed to call the overall head of the services "secretary of national defense." The House had wanted to call him "Secretary of Defense" and the Senate, "Secretary of National Security."

Budget Provision

Conferees said major points of difference yet to be settled included:

1. A Senate provision giving the Secretary control over budgets for the proposed three departments of Army, Navy and Air Forces. The House wanted to allow him to coordinate and supervise their budgets.

2. House insistence on specifying functions of the Marine Corps, naval aviation and other special units. The Senate version covered these functions broadly but left details to be determined by an executive order already agreed upon by the three services.

3. A House provision stipulating that a civilian must head the central intelligence agency set up in the bill. The Senate wanted to permit either a civilian or a professional officer to be its chief.

Appointment Held Inevitable

Nomination of Forrestal to be the first Cabinet officer to head all the armed forces of the Nation has been a subject of speculation for some time. Since passage of a unification bill by Congress became even remotely probable, events have been shaped to make his appointment not only logical but inevitable.

First of all, unification does not make the Navy altogether happy, even in the watered-down form finally taken by compromise between the services.

To place the Secretary of the Navy, himself a former Navy aviator and always a bitter foe of merging the Navy's identity with that of the Army, should do much to make Navy people readier to accept the change.

Reports, based on excellent grounds, have for some time maintained that Forrestal would be given the post and that Undersecretary of War Kenneth C. Royall would be made Secretary of the Army. Last week Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson suddenly resigned and Royall was immediately appointed to succeed him and confirmed by the Senate next day.

Of all civilian chiefs now in the War and Navy Departments, Forrestal alone has held Cabinet rank. Patterson's resignation was based on his assurance that unification would be enacted, thus removing the possibility that his successor would remain in the Cabinet more than a few weeks.

Under terms of the bill, the Secretary of National Defense would be a Cabinet officer, while

2 Hollywood Girls Subpenaed In Hughes Aircraft Inquiry

Hollywood, July 22 (U.P.).—Actress Judy Cook and Martha Goldthwaite, 26-year-old model, were subpenaed today to testify at a congressional investigation of Howard Hughes' Government airplane contracts.

A deputy United States marshal served Miss Goldthwaite, who described herself as a free-lance model.

"He just asked me if I was there and handed me the paper," Miss Goldthwaite said. "He talked to my father a while. But I don't know what it's all about.

"I don't know Howard Hughes," Miss Goldthwaite said. "All I know is that I am supposed to go to Washington August 4."

A subpena also was reported issued for Johnny Meyer, Hughes' personal representative and Roosevelt's friend. His office said he was in South America. Miss Goldthwaite recalled having a couple of dates with him, but she didn't know anything about his business.

Miss Cook, a free-lance movie actress and former Aquacade swimmer, also was served, the United States marshal's office reported.

The marshal said he had no idea what connection the women had with the case.

"All I know is that they are both beautiful girls," he said.

Both subpenaes ordered the women to appear in Washington on August 4.

Reports that subpenes also had

Soviet Envoys Are Spies, Says Kravchenko

Ex-Communist Warns Congress Kremlin Does Not Want World Peace

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Victor Kravchenko, former Communist official who broke with Moscow while he was stationed in Washington, warned Congress yesterday that the Kremlin does not want world peace, and is operating a gigantic spy ring here under the cloak of diplomatic immunity.

Guarded by FBI agents, city detectives and police, the good-looking dark-haired Russian fired both barrels at the men he described as the Soviet masters of an enslaved and terrorized Russian people. Kravchenko, as a former official of the Soviet purchasing commission here, was once high in the confidence of the Kremlin.

He gave up his job and went into hiding to protest against the Communist attacks on the unsuspecting United States many months ago.

Testifies in Russian

The author of "I Chose Freedom" testified before the House Committee on Un-American Activities yesterday, mostly in Russian.

Some of the points he made in rapid fire succession were:

1. Every responsible representative of the Soviet Union in the United States may be regarded as an economic or political spy, detailed to obtain certain specific secret information here.

2. During the war, he saw secret plans and blueprints of American airplanes and submarines gathered at the Soviet Purchasing Commission. He later saw these put in a diplomatic pouch and flown to Russia under a diplomat's immunity.

Wait for Depression

3. It is "foolish and dangerous" to so underrate the Soviet as to believe that Russian scientists cannot develop the atom bomb. The Soviets were "actively engaged in the problem of getting uranium as far back as December, 1942."

4. Russian disarmament proposals are absolutely insincere and "only a scheme for time" while the masters of the Kremlin wait to get the atom bomb and also wait for an economic depression in the United States. The Kremlin believes that it can force America to be less interested in the rest of the world if it can promote "chaos, confusion and strikes" in the United States.

5. The United States should spend "billons" for propaganda abroad, to combat the "propaganda

State Dept. Would Rather Follow Lead Of Another Country

State Department officials have been discussing a possible American request to the Security Council to put the Indonesian fighting on its agenda, The Washington Post learned yesterday.

So far there has been no decision; at the moment the Department is disposed to sit back and let some other country take the lead.

If a request is made to the Security Council—and officials here are convinced that Russia, India or Australia will soon make it if the United States does not—the United States probably will not oppose it.

Article 34 of the Charter provides that the Security Council "may investigate any dispute, or any situation which might lead to international friction or give rise to a dispute," to determine whether its continuance "is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security."

Consul Asked to Act

A request to the Security Council under this article does not prejudge a situation or constitute an accusation, but starts the machinery of United Nations discussion aimed at a peaceful settlement.

State Department officials here said they were exploring every possible method of stopping the fighting, but were pessimistic. Consul General Walter Foote in Batavia is under instructions to do everything he can to get American views, and American desires for peace, into the minds of Dutch and Indonesian leaders.

The Dutch government yesterday formally reported to the United Nations that it had started police measures of a strictly limited character" against republican forces in Indonesia.

Charge Truce Breaking

Its note to Secretary General Trygve Lie charged that the Indonesians had never complied with the truce of last October, had maintained a food blockade that had brought part of the population "to the verge of starvation," had imprisoned hostages and had carried on "hostile and inflammatory propaganda."

The note reaffirmed The Netherlands' "unalterable decision" to carry out its agreement to give Indonesia dominion status, and expressed the hope that "circumstances will soon permit it to resume constructive cooperation with the republic * * *"

However, there was evidence yesterday that by opening fire on the Indonesians the Dutch had

Lynch Mob Loses 13-Year-Old; Boys, 15 and 16, Await Death

One Who Fired Shot Will Be First to Die

Woodville, Miss., July 22 (U.P.).—Two Negro boys die in the State's portable electric chair tomorrow and tonight. Father Pat Moran, Catholic chaplain of the county jail, accepted the sheriff's request that he decide which one would die first.

Father Moran decided the first will be the one who did not fire the fatal shot.

The priest will tell Charles Trudell, 16, late tonight that he will die before James Lewis, 15.

The boys have spent a year and half in jail.

Today their families came with tears in their eyes and shaking voices to say goodbye.

The murder netted them $64. It was taken from Harry McKey, a white farmer and sawmill operator for whom they worked.

Their case once went to the U. S. Supreme Court, which refused to intervene.

Mercy Killer Asks Pardon

Youth Tries to Rape A Grandmother, 72

Marietta, Ga., July 22 (U.P.).—Charles Mosley, 13, a Negro, was saved today from an angry mob of 300 white men bent on lynching him for the attempted rape of a 72-year-old grandmother in a berry patch. Police got to the youth first and spirited him 20 miles in a police car to Atlanta for safekeeping.

Mrs. Martha Youngblood, her face and arms scratched by briars and her faded dress torn, went to the Fulton County (Atlanta) jail and identified Mosley.

Mosley was charged with assault with intent to murder.

Mrs. Youngblood told police that she and two granddaughters, aged 9 and 11, were picking berries in a field at the edge of town this morning when Mosley attacked her.

Mosley fled when the girls began fighting him.

News of the assault spread quickly through downtown Marietta and the mob began forming.

Police went directly to Mosley's house. He was there and admitted being in the vicinity of the berry patch but denied the assault. Police rushed him to Atlanta. The mob rolled up to the house a few moments later.

Marietta flared into headlines in 1915 when Leo Frank, a white man, was lynched after being taken from the State penitentiary at Milledgeville.

He had been convicted of murdering Miss Mary Phagan, a worker in his factory.

New Loan Ruling Gives Britain Way to Check Dollar Outflow

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Great Britain will be able to conserve many millions of her fast-dwindling dollars as a result of a new American interpretation of the Anglo-American loan agreement of 1945.

The new ruling assures the British that they can increase their purchases from their nonself-governing colonies without having to make an equivalent increase in their dollar purchases from the United States.

It makes clear that Article 9 of the loan agreement, which forbids "discrimination" against American products, does not apply to British trade with the colonies. The United Kingdom and its colonies are thus regarded as an economic unit.

The term "colonies" applies also to British mandated territories and protectorates, but not, of course, to India or the Dominions.

The new interpretation was forwarded to London yesterday after being approved by the National Advisory Council, the highest interdepartmental United States body determining foreign economic policy. It followed a request the British made recently to Undersecretary Will Clayton in London.

Its first effect will be that the

Seaborne Invasion Takes Large Areas In Eastern Java; Resistance Stiffens

Batavia, Java, July 22 (AP).—Dutch seaborne invasion forces captured large segments of eastern Java today, while an armored column in central Java was reported to have slashed to within 35 air miles of the Indonesian republic's capital at Jogjakarta.

An Indonesian communique issued at Jogjakarta said forces from Dutch-held Semarang, on the north central coast, had attacked the town of Salatiga for three hours, and then had withdrawn.

Salatiga is approximately 28 miles south of Semarang and 35 north of Jogjakarta.

Indonesian reports said resistance was stiffening, and the Dutch themselves conceded that sharp fighting was under way at several points in Java and one in Sumatra, northwest of here.

A Netherlands communique said advances were made on half a dozen fronts, against relatively light resistance.

Dutch Casualties Total 150

Dutch casualties yesterday—the first day of the armed conflict—were listed officially as 150 dead or wounded.

Dutch forces fighting out of Batavia, in western Java, were reported clearing supply lines toward Cheribon and the Jogjakarta area. An Indonesian communique said Dutch land forces attacked Krawang, 47 miles east of Batavia on the main Batavia-Cheribon-Jogjakarta.

In the east, a Dutch amphibious force which landed yesterday at Pasir Poetih was reported to have extended its beachhead for 70 miles along the northeast coast, capturing the coastal road and the important city of Probolinggo.

The Netherlands forces then drove almost as far as Bandowoso, 25 miles south of the coast, before meeting their first stiff resistance, the Dutch said.

An Indonesian army communique said the Dutch had landed tanks and trucks, and that fighting was under way at Probolinggo, but Dutch air observers said their forces had been virtually unopposed along the coast.

Indonesians Counter-Attack

Republican communiques conceded the Dutch had managed to land strong invasion forces on the north and east coasts, and that Dutch columns were driving forward east of Bandoeng, in west central Java.

The communiques added, however, that Indonesian forces "made progress" in a counter-attack west of Hemarang, in north central Java, shot down two Dutch planes, and scored four direct hits Sunday on a warship off Merak, on Java's western tip.

These were the first claims of Indonesian successes in the current conflict, which began when the Dutch moved against Indonesian holdings following a breakdown in negotiations for Java's independence.

A Dutch Mitchell B-25 bomber crashed in Sumatra, Indonesians reported.

American-made Dutch fighter planes—P-40 Kittyhawks and P-51 Mustangs—continued to blast Indonesian airfields. The Netherlands army said hangars and oil dumps had been set ablaze and 10 Indo-

British and Dutch Struggled for Two Years To Prevent Hostilities in Indonesian Republic

Batavia, July 22 (AP).—When the Netherlands government of the East Indies began military operations against the republic of Indonesia early Monday, they snapped off negotiations which have been in progress for almost two years.

Since the return of Dutch administrators to Java in 1945, there have been repeated efforts to settle the Indonesian problem without war.

The republican leaders dealt first with British military authorities, then with the Dutch and British acting as mediators and finally directly with the Dutch.

Disagree on Methods

These negotiations brought agreement on a plan for a United States of Indonesia to become completely independent in 1949.

The current crisis was provoked on disagreement over the manner of putting that plan into effect.

Throughout the negotiations, there have been sporadic outbreaks of fighting, but never before have the Dutch embarked on an over-all aggressive campaign from bases won from the Indonesians before the withdrawal of British-Indian forces.

The republic of Indonesia was proclaimed in August, 1945, shortly after the Japanese surrender and before British forces reached the East Indies to disarm the Japanese. Its government is headed by President Soekarno, a Nationalist leader for many years who had been imprisoned and exiled by the Dutch colonial administration but who returned to leadership during the Japanese occupation.

No Dutch Available

The republic declared its intention of preventing the return of Dutch rule, but found itself confronting British instead of Dutch authority at the end of the war.

There were no Dutch forces available for reoccupation of the Indies and the task was assigned to the British, using units of the Indian army. The British announced their aim was the rounding up of Japanese, but their penetration was resisted by the Indonesians and bitter fighting raged at Surabaya, East Javanese port.

For almost two years the British and, subsequently Dutch forces, have been confined to mere footholds in northern and eastern Java and a few coastal points of Sumatra.

Dutch accusations that Soekarno and other members of his first cabinet had collaborated with the Japanese were countered by reorganization of the republican government with Sutan Sjahrir, another Nationalist leader who was widely known as an opponent of Japanese rule, as prime minister and several other moderate ministers.

This government has been the de facto authority over most of Java and Sumatra since 1945, with Jogjakarta as its seat of authority.

With British diplomats acting as meditators, Sjahrir conducted lengthy negotiations with the Dutch, headed by Acting Dutch Governor General Hubertus van Hook, which culminated in the signing of the Langgadjati (Cheribon) agreement.

This agreement designated the islands of Java, Sumatra and Madoers as the republic of Indonesia, the islands east of Java and south of Borneo as the state of East Indonesia and designated West Borneo as a third state. These eventually were to be joined in the United States of Indonesia, an independent state.

Throughout the negotiations there were armed clashes and the Indonesians refused to release Japanese and Dutch civilians interned during the war.

Dutch Carry U. S. Arms

Under special truce arrangements, the Japanese and internees finally were evacuated and the British retired from the Indies.

The Dutch had been pouring more and more of their own forces into the islands. It is estimated, however, that the republic still has twice as many armed troops as the Dutch, although they are poorly equipped.

Dutch troops are equipped and armed largely with U. S. lend lease material.

After the signing of the Langgadjati agreement, disputes arose immediately as to its details and the methods of putting it in force.

Succeeded by Sjarifoedin

In the past several months, these disputes led to a series of crises and brought the resignation of Sjahrir. He was succeeded by Amir Sjarifoedin, considered a leader of the moderates.

For almost six years the immensely wealthy Indies have been largely non-productive and the Dutch have realized little of their essential interest in the islands—the rubber, oil, quinine, spices, rice, tobacco, copra, and sugar.

The United States and Britain have taken lively interest in the Indonesian-Dutch dispute because of the importance of the islands' commerce to world economy and have endeavored to bring about a peaceful settlement.

The U. S. even offered to talk about a loan to the Indonesians, if they would accept the Dutch terms. The principal disagreement which brought a Dutch ultimatum and "police action" was over the composition of interior police. The Indonesians refused to permit Dutch to aid in policing the areas held by the Republicans.

nesian planes destroyed on the ground, in raids on five Indonesian fields yesterday.

A Dutch navy communique said assault troops had rolled ashore yesterday from warships and landing craft at Banjoewangi, an important port of the eastern tip of the island, and Pasir Poetih, a seaside resort of 3000 population about 35 miles east of Probolinggo.

Dutch warships cleared the way by pounding shells into Indonesian positions,, the navy communique said. Most of the steel-helmeted assault force were Dutch marines, trained in North Carolina for fighting against the Japanese.

By midmorning, the troops were reported to have captured and secured positions in Probolinggo and Sitoebondo, 50 miles to the east, as well as Banjoewangi and Pasir Poetih.

Republican leaders said the apparent Dutch strategy would be to drive inland in a two-column pincer movement, starting from Pasir Poetih and Ketapang, on the strategic Indonesian city of Malang, in east central Java Still another Dutch column was reported striking toward Malang from the once-great naval base of Soerabaja, directly to the north. This force was said to be meeting stiff resistance.

Well-armed Indonesian troops were reported resisting Dutch elements striking northwest from Krian, midway between Soerabaja and Modjokerto.

The Dutch also admitted they were getting a fight at Medan, in northeastern Sumatra, where 20,000 Indonesians are opposing Dutch efforts to regain control of that island.

An Indonesian report said Dutch action on Sumatra was concentrated in the Padang area, on Sumatra's west coast.

One high Dutch official said Dutch troops might not seize Jogjakarta, the Indonesian capital, and might halt their advances within three or four days, when they deemed their "local police action" had been accomplished.

Harris Jackson, Associated Press reporter, said in a dispatch from Jogjakarta this afternoon that most Indonesian officials to whom he had talked expressed little doubt the Dutch could occupy the main cities in Java, but they declared the Dutch would have trouble holding them.

The Indonesians obviously are planning for a long guerilla war, he said.

Indonesian Premier Amir Sjarifoeddin, in a short-wave broadcast from Jogjakarta beamed toward Australia appealed "to the world in general and our friends in Australia in particular to strengthen their efforts to prevent further bloodshed.

"If efforts are being made in our behalf, they must be made quickly," he said. "It is clear that this is a colonial war, not in the interest of the general peace in southeast Asia and the world."

President Soekarno of the Indonesian republic was confined to bed in Jogjakarta. Physicians said he was suffering from fatigue and overwork.

Dutch Hostages Reported Held

New York, July 22 (AP).—Dr. Eelco N. Van Kleffens, the new Netherlands Ambassador to the United States, said today upon his arrival that "disloyal Indonesians are holding thousands of Dutch white people, many of them women, as hostages in the interior of Java."

He said his government did not regard the present fighting in Indonesia "as war, but a need to restore order in a recalcitrant state of the federation to be."

He said arbitration of differences "is not feasible during the non-execution of the Cheribon agreement."

Red Unions Hit Dutch

Amsterdam, July 22 (AP).—The Communist-affiliated unions of dock workers and seamen ordered a boycott today of all ships bound for Indonesia which are transporting goods that might "further, directly or indirectly, the military forces."

British Dollar Balance Eased

British can get fruit from their colonies without having to spend precious dollars on American fruit as well. To vary their present monotonous diet, the British will be able to get Jaffa oranges from Palestine, grapefruit from the West Indies and bananas from Jamaica and East Africa without having to cut into their dollar resources.

If the new ruling had not come, the British might have been compelled to cut off all fruit purchases because their dollars are running out at such an unforeseen rate. They now have only $1,300,000,000 left of their $3,750,000,000 American loan.

Although fruit purchases were the immediate cause of the British request to Clayton, the new interpretation is expected to ease the British dollar position in other fields. Before the war, the United Kingdom bought about 50 million pounds' worth of food and raw materials each year from its colonies and sold them about the same amount of manufactured goods. (The pound was then worth about $5.)

Some of the purchases from the colonies, such as rubber from Malaya, did not compete with American products, but competitive purchases included tobacco from Rhodesia and Cyprus as well as fruit and other foods.

Conversely the colonies bought locomotives, trucks and other capital goods and manufactured products from the United States as well as from the United Kingdom.

Every dollar the colonies spend in the United States today must come out of the British dollar supply. The new agreement enables the colonies to switch their purchases of these goods to the United Kingdom, where they can pay in sterling.

In this way it represents still another method of conserving the British supply of dollars.

British Hail Decision

London, July 22 (AP).—High British quarters hailed the American decision to waive Article 9 of the British loan agreement, as it relates to the colonies, as a "most welcome and helpful development that will remove at least one of our worries."

Both the Treasury and the Foreign Office declined comment officially, explaining notification of the American attitude had not yet reached the government.

A source close to Treasury negotiators, however, said Britain would be "most grateful" to America for agreeing to treat the British Isles and the non-self-governing colonies as an economic unit.

"The principal benefit," he said, "will be that we won't have to worry any more about prices at which the colonies are able to offer us additional food and other goods."

turned even moderate Indonesian leaders into enemies.

Former Premier Sutan Sjahrir, arriving in Singapore on a special mission which he said would bring him to India, Australia and the United States, announced that the Dutch had "completely nullified the Cheribon agreement." This agreement, sometimes known as the Linggadjati agreement, set up a United States of Indonesia, as a fully equal partner in a Netherlands commonwealth.

Sjahrir added that negotiations would now have to start again from the beginning.

Sjahrir is expected to get a warm and friendly welcome in India as well as in the new Moslem Dominion of Pakistan. The Hindus, about to be freed from British rule, are naturally sympathetic to the Indonesian struggle; the Moslems of India have a special interest, since the population of Java is predominantly Moslem.

Nehru Deplores War

[At New Delhi, India, yesterday, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru deplored the Dutch-Indonesian war as an "imperialistic attack on a friendly nation of Asia," the United Press reported. Nehru, speaking to the constituent assembly, did not mention names but left no doubt he referred to the Dutch and Indonesians.]

[The India government said in a communiqde last night that "news that hostilities have been resumed in Indonesia has caused grave concern to the India government," the AP reported.

["Urgent representations have been made," it said, to His Majesty's government and the United States to make every effort to bring an immediate cessation to the armed conflict."]

If India does not bring the Indonesian case to the United Nations, Soviet Russia may do it in her favorite propaganda role as a friend of "oppressed" colonial peoples. Australia, also, has been anxious in recent months to show its friendship with the new Indonesian Republic, her nearest neighbor to the north.

Indonesia herself cannot bring such an appeal, since she is not a member of the United Nations, but the Secretariat at Lake Success yesterday received an unofficial appeal from a group of Indonesians living in Brisbane, Australia.

In January, 1946, Russia brought the Indonesian case to the Security Council, alleging foreign intervention in violation of the Charter. This was prior to the agreement between the Dutch and Indonesians, and the council took no action.

[At Lake Success, N. Y., yesterday, Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko was asked whether Russia was contemplating any move in the Indonesian war. He told the United Press:

"I have nothing on my mind on that subject at the present time."]

Wedemeyer Arrives in Nankin To Begin 'Realistic' Study

Nanking, China, July 22 (U.P.).—Lieut. Gen Albert C. Wedemeyer arrived today in Nanking with President Truman's fact-finding mission and said he would take a "realistic" attitude toward China's economic, political and military problems.

Stressing that his job was to investigate and evaluate conditions for Mr. Truman, Wedemeyer said:

"Good results are likeliest to be attained through sound and careful planning based not upon what we hope to be true, but upon what, through objective and thororugh examination, we know to be ture."

Wedemeyer's statement was interpreted by most Chinese officials as meaning he would examine conditions in China in the light of the new "Truman Doctrine" and "Marshall Plan" rather than in the hope of establishinp Chinese Nationalist-Communist collaboration—Gen. George C. Marshall's mission before he became Secretary of State last January.

Wedemeyer, was greeted at the airport by United States Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart and top Chinese officials.

The general told correspondents his mission promarily was concerned with political and economic problems, but he would not rule out the possibility of visiting the fighting fronts.

Wedemeyer said he would spend four weeks in China and two in Korea.

Guerilla Victims

24 Villagers Slain in Raid, Greeks Say

Athens, July 22 (AP).—The Information Ministry said tonight 24 persons—"mostly women and children"—were slain last night in an attack by 400 guerillas on the town of Nigrita, about 40 miles northeast of Salonika in northern Greece.

The ministry also quoted Prefect Rigopoulos of Ioannina, in northwestern Greece, as saying that guerillas retreating before government troops had burned and looted 35 villages in the vicinity of that city.

Minor Clashes Reported

Two minor clashes were reported between government forces and guerillas in the area east of Ioannina. One irregular unit, apparently attempting to reach Agrapha, was reported under attack south of Grevenna.

Greek press reports said the United Nations Balkan sub-commission had concluded its on-the-spot hearings at Ioannina and was returning to Salonika.

Civil strife erupted on the island of Crete, where 20 men were reported to have attacked a radio station just outside the capital of Canea.

Curfew Imposed

Colonel Franghadakis, the military governor, imposed a curfew over the Canea area.

[Headquarters for EAM, the liberal and leftist party coalition, announced today that police had arrested 7800 suspected Communist sin the Athens-Piraeus area since July 9, the United Press reported.

[Police reported discovering two caches of munitions in a quarry on the outskirts of Athens.]

Prisoner Describes Invasion

Ioannina, Greece, July 22 (U.P.).—A captured Greek guerilla told the United Nations Balkan investigating team today that 3000 guerillas invaded Greece from Albania last week, most of them recruited by force.

The guerilla, Eftimins Velkos, said neither he nor his comrades saw any international brigade, although commanders promised there was one ready to aid the guerillas if they needed it.

U. N. Punitive Power Cited in Balkans Border Proposal

Lake Success, July 22 (AP).—The United States stepped into the final stages of the Balkan debate today with a warning to three Soviet satellites that any refusal to cooperate with a proposed border commission might bring punitive action by the United Nations Security Council.

Taking note of Russian contentions that the council could only make recommendations, Deputy United States Delegate Herschel V. Johnson said that any country that took an attitude of noncompliance would lay itself open to much graver charges and action under another section of the U. N. Charter, apparently referring to sanctions and military action.

A previous statement from an authoritative source said that a Russian veto killing the present Greek complaint might be followed immediately by stiffer charges and direct accusations against Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria in an entirely new complaint.

Committed to continuous debate until a vote is reached, delegates today spent the first two hours discussing a French amendment to the United States plan for an 11-nation semipermanent border commission. Johnson accepted the French phrasing that the Council "finds that it is concerned with a dispute the continuance of which is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security."

In the interests of speed, the United States was ready to accept a British revision that would sidestep the question of which of the Balkan countries was responsible for past disorders and concentrate on future action.

Today's slow progress reduced hopes for a vote before next week.

'Tellum White Man Go Makum Own Rain,' Indans Say

Flagstaff, Ariz., July 22 (AP).—Hopi snake dancers were described today as incensed over the white man's invasion of their realm as rainmakers.

Advised that rain was precipitated over Roosevelt Dam by dropping dry ice into a cloud from an airplane, Indians declared the rain clouds actually were produced during their Southwest pow-wow ceremonies here July 4.

"We object to white men spilling water out of our clouds that happened to drift south," a spokesman said. "If white men want water, let them do their own dancing and make their own clouds."

The dry ice experiment was made yesterday by the Arizona Republic, Phoenix newspaper, and science teachers from Phoenix Junior College.

Senators Act Quickly On Bohlen Nomination

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday gave quick approval to President Truman's nomination of Charles E. "Chip" Bohlen, expert on Russian affairs, to be State department counsellor.

Bohlen was appointed as successor to Benjamin V. Cohen.

Bullets and Mine Explosions Mark Violence in Jerusalem

Jerusalem, July 22 (AP).—A new "Battle of Jerusalem" roared at sunset tonight.

Machinegun fire, Molotov cocktails and roadmines set off a new wave of violence which, in eight days, has taken a toll of eight killed and 57 wounded.

Sirens wailed three times in the Holy City today, twice for minor incidents and a third time for what appeared to be a big underground offensive.

In the gathering dusk troops and police answered with a hail of machinegun fire attacks which were launched simultaneously on an army pay corps office in the former Syrian orphanage, on the Mustashpha police station and its nearby billet at the eastern edge of Jerusalem, and on a Royal Air Force mobile patrol touring the curfewed Mea Shearim (Jewish) quarter.

Other incidents today included the looting of $40,000 worth of diamonds in two robberies in Tel Aviv and the severing of the oil pipeline near Nazareth for the fourth time in two days.

U. N. Warned

Beyrouth, July 22.—Six Arab states warned the United Nations Special Committee on Palestine today that a pro-Jewish decision in the Holy Land will plunge the Middle East into war.

In a bitter attack on "Zionist aggression" and alleged British welshing on promises of independence to the Arab peoples, the Arab states demanded an immediate independent Palestine under the present Arab majority.

The statement, delivered today by Hamid Bey Franjier, Lebanese Foreign Minister, represented the views of Lebanon, Syria, Iraq, Egypt, Arabia and Yemen.

U. S. Fliers 'Hit Dirt' On Jerusalem Visit

Jerusalem, July 22 (AP).—A group of American Air Force men, members of a graves registration team, were caught in the midst of a hail of machine-gun fire which swept the heart of the Jewish business quarter tonight.

They had flown in from Algiers on a sightseeing trip, but had to "hit the dirt" when the bullets began whining.

Lieut. John W. Coffee, jr., of Washington, D. C., said:

"This is a helluva note." Glancing at the skies lighted by red and amber flares, he said: "Well, the fireworks are pretty, anyway."

Group Approves Congress Annuity Restriction Bill

By The Associated Press

Legislation that would deny retirement annuities to any member of Congress "whose prestige has been used to the disadvantage of the Government," was approved by the Senate Civil Service Committee yesterday.

Chairman Langer (R., N. Dak.) said the measure, introduced by Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.), was "not aimed at any individual" but was regarded by the committee as a generally beneficial proposal.

Reporters had asked Langer if the measure was directed at Andrew J. May, former Kentucky Congressman, and James M. Curley, former Congressman from Massachusetts.

May was convicted recently of accepting money for using his influence as chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee in behalf of a war contractor. Curley was convicted of mail fraud.

Maryland U. Needs 4 Millions In Federal Aid, Dr. Byrd Says

By The Associated Press

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, said yesterday the school needs four million dollars in Federal money to avert overcrowding in 1948 and 1949.

The educator said the university system expects a record 18,000 enrollmet of undergraduates, professionay school students and extension course participants next fall.

Last year the enrollment was 16,400 and the university "bulged to the walls," he reported.

Suggests 350 Millions

Saying no college or university can handle the overflow of students in its laboratories and classrooms, Dr. Byrd suggested a 350 million dollar Federal aid program for higher education—"about the same as for aid to Greece and Turkey."

If such a program is adopted, he said, the university will ask for four million dollars—principally for the enlargement of laboratories and classrooms.

He explained that students are enrolling in greater numbers than ever and relatively few are graduating because the classes which matriculated in war times were small.

Calls Housing "Terrible"

He described the housing situation as "terrible."

"Not a day passes but I receive a letter from parents of some student beseeching me to find living accommodations for their children," he said.

Nine temporary buildings financed by Federal funds now are under construction.

Three will be laboratories and six will be used for psychology, mathematics and general course classrooms. Three permanent dormitory buildings also are under construction.

Navy to Drop 1000 Officers In Budget Cuts

The Navy said yesterday it would "immediately" remove 1000 officers from its rolls because of Congressional budget cuts.

Officers to be removed include 800 reservists who will return to civilian life and 200 Regular enlisted men who had been promoted to officers. They will revert to enlisted status. The Navy officer force will be cut from 47,000 to 46,000.

Congress voted the Navy $3,300,000,000 for the fiscal year ending next July, approximately 200 million dollars les than the President had asked.

Plank Suspect Tours Haunts, Finds None to Identify Him

Fairfax detectives yesterday discredited the alibi of Alva B. Martin, 29, suspect in the death of Norman Le Roy Plank, after a 2½-hour tour of spots in Washington, where he was supposed to have spent Saturday night, July 5.

Handcuffed to two detectives and accompanied by a Washington detective, the prisoner was first taken to the Victory Hotel at 606 5th st. nw., where he was supposed to have occupied a room that night. The register showed no occupancy of that room on the night of the 5th or the 6th.

Plank was found shot in the home of his sister, Mrs. Nellie Burrer, 4108 Forest la., Chesterbrook Woods, Fairfax, Va., on July 6.

A certificate of suicide was issued, but further investigation showed that there were no fingerprints on the gun or powder burns on Plank's forehead. In addition, his sister's auto was missing. The certificate was changed to homicide and a lookout was sent for the car.

Five days later, Martin was arrested by the Kingston (N. Y.) police driving the missing car. Martin admitted stealing the car, but said he had left Plank on the 5th.

He told police he came to Washington, stayed at the Victory Hotel for a short while, visited three different restaurants and bars and then left for Philadelphia.

Detectives revisiting the bars could find no one to identify Martin—although he said he had left his coat in one bar and in another bar he said he sought to repay the owner some money that he had owed him.

"We still have to take him to Philadelphia to see if he can prove he was there Sunday, but I don't think we are going to find anything," Chief of Detectives Henry Mogarity said.

Martin pleaded guilty to a car theft indictment Monday and faces a possible sentence of from 1 to 10 years when he appears before Circuit Judge Paul Brown on September 12.

House Votes to Discontinue Installment Buying Curbs

By The Associated Press

The House voted yesterday to strip the Administration of all authority to control installment buying. The measure proposes to end immediately the restraints on credit purchases of such things as automobiles, refrigerators and radios.

The Senate had approved a bill to cintnue the controls in modified form to December 31, but the House rejected this and sent its own measure to the Senate.

Since President Truman has advised Congress he will lift the controls imposed in wartime—unless Congress gives him peacetime authority—yesterday's House action pointed directly toward an early end of all installment-buying regulations.

The House action was by voice vote. There was no roll call.

The House vote brushed aside Mr. Truman's request that he be given peacetime authority to continue the installment buying curbs, as a check against inflationary tendencies.

The controls require one-third down payments, with installments running no more than 15 months, on automobiles, cooking stoves and ranges, mechanical dishwashers, ironers, refrigerators, washing machines, room unit air conditioners, radios, phonographs, sewing machines and suction cleaners.

A 20-per-cent down payment, with installments limited to 15 months, is required for furniture and soft surface floor coverings.

The bill approved by the Senate woul dextend the controls to December 31, with the down payment required to be no more than 20 per cent, and the installments to be limited to two years.

In a report preceding the House vote, a majority of the House Banking Committee said regulation "bears most heavily on persons of limited income and in many cases undoubtedly effectively excludes them from these markets."

On the other hand, the committee said "it gives to the man of financial means, in effect, priority of rights to buy whatever he wants and whenever he is willing to pay the price."

BAD MEDICINE

from THE NEW YORK TIMES

The House of Representatives has passed a thoroughly bad bill in the name of a thoroughly good cause. The cause, stated generally, is a wish to make certain that those who hold public office in a democratic government actually believe in the democratic method and do their best to make it work successfully. The present instrument for accomplishing this wholly desirable purpose is a bill bearing the title of the "Federal Employes Loyalty Act of 1947." It has been passed in the House by a vote of 319 to 61, with many of the most respected conservatives in that branch of Congress protesting against it, to their credit.

The bill would create a "Loyalty Review Board," which would have power to rove anywhere and everywhere into the business of any and all other departments and agencies in Washington, looking, with the enforced aid of the FBI., for "disloyal" suspects. On discovering such a suspect it would "notify the person under investigation in writing of its preliminary finding, together with a factual statement upon which such finding is based, concealing as far as possible the source or sources of the information." The accused, thus denied his rightful opportunity to confront his accuser, would have fifteen days to reply. If he failed to satisfy his inquisitors—in such matters, for example, as whether there were "reasonable grounds" for believing that he had "sympathetic association" with any organization on a list to be arbitrarily designated by the Attorney General on his own personal say-so "as totalitarian, Fascist, Communist or subversive"—the accused would be dismissed summarily from government employment. There is no provision for appeal. There is no right of review from the decision of this roving and omnipotent Board. The accused would be dropped, with the soul-searing finding—worse for many than a prison sentence—that he was "disloyal to the Government of the United States."

This bill lacks all of the safeguards and protections embodied in President Truman's own recent proposal in the same field. It lacks all the elements of a decent respect for democratic rights and the standards of fair play. It is a bad bill. It should never have been passed by the House. It should be thrown out of the window by the Senate.

Barrett Seeks Advice of FBI

his representative with citizen groups. Ryan has been in charge of the recruit school. The recruit school job is being transferred to Inspector John M. Fowler, head of the police academy.

He declared he would invite citizen groups to meet with his inspectors if they have complaints. This obviously was caused by a resolution approved by the executive board of the Federation of Citizens Associations which asked for a Congressional and grand jury investigation of the police department soon after Barrett was appointed by Commissioner John Russell Young.

Conflicting orders within the police department, he added, will be weeded out by a board of inspectors and capains. Barrett was careful tto point out that his predecessors had issued some conflicting orders.

Barrett was asked if the board had examined his first order setting up three classes of cases which might continue to be hidden.

"No comment," he replied.

He was asked if that order was not in conflict with police regulations (Chapter XVI, Section 6), which provide that all complaints "shall immediately" be forwarded to the police central bureau. Again he answered, "No comment."

Two weeks ago Commissioner Young told a Washington Post reporter he intended to have the Corporation Counsel examine the rett's order and the regulations.

Yesterday, Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton Korman said he had asked Barrett for a copy of that order, but that no formal request had yet been made by Young for a legal interpretation.

"We heard that the Commissioner might ask for such an examination, but no formal request has come to us," said Korman.

Asked if he had sought assistance from the FBI because of the proposed Senate investigation, Barrett replied:

"I'm not going to answer that. I took office July 1; the statistics were not under me before then."

Barrett declared he was eager to eliminate "25-year-old methods" still being used. He wanted to start his administration "with 1947 methods," said Barrett.

In keeping with his promise to the House District Appropriations Subcommittee, Barrett said he was ordering 10 more young men from desk jobs to beats. Ten others already have been taken from desk jobs.

He said also that Capt. Archie Winfree would be transferred from the Seventh to the Sixth Precinct, and Capt. Beverly C. Beach would be transferred from the Sixth to the Seventh. This is being done, he said, to acquaint captains with all neighborhoods and problems in each precinct

U. S. May Sign 40-Year Pact, Paris Hears

By Kingsbury Smith

Paris, July 22 (INS).—Diplomatic circles in Paris predicted tonight Secretary of State Marshall may be ready to assure the French government that the United States will sign a 40-year pact against German aggression even if Russia abstains from the alliance.

The Soviets have shown coolness towards a Big Four military pact since it was first broached by former Secretary of State Byrnes.

Prediction of a "big three" pact was made following the receipt by the French Foreign Office of an important communication sent by French Ambassador to Washington Henri Bonnet after a conference with Marshall.

It is known that the Secretary intended to reassure France concerning the United States' desire to increase the production level in western Germany.

Diplomatic sources declared that the United States wants to make at least one more effort to get Russia to join the pact at the Big Four Foreign Ministers Council in London next November.

If the alliance is concluded on a three-power basis the door will be left open for Russia.

One diplomat pointed out a three-power pact would serve to reassure France not only against an aggressive Germany but against an even stronger fear—the danger of a Russo-German lineup in the future.

Chicago, July 22 (AP).—Insulin shock treatment of patients suffering from certain types of insanity "has not proved to be any more effective than conservative osteopathic psychiatric management," Dr. Floyd E. Dunn, Macon, Mo., told the American Osteopathic Association's convention today.

we're going to get a run for our money in the city building program."

Action Held Up

Senate District Chairman C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) suggested that the committee hold up action on bills where more hearings were needed. In line with this policy, the committee delayed a decision until next year on these bills:

A bill to put the District Commissioners in full charge of public welfare administration, leaving the present welfare board with advisory powers only.

A bill to limit radio and television towers in residential areas to sites where they would not endanger homes, schools or recreation facilities.

A bill to revise the District insurance code to let companies operate free of the anti-trust laws, but under supervision of District Insurance Superintendent Albert F. Jordan.

All three bills have been approved by the House.

In other decisions, the committee approved bills to:

1. Permit the Recorder of Deeds office to install photographic recording equipment and end the present typewriter recording system. Other sections of the House-approved bill were dropped. These called for giving the Commissioners power to fix fees and prescribe methods for the Recorder's office. They also called for a District audit of Recorder's funds and transferred recording of auto liens to the Department of Vehicles and Traffic.

2. Give four police lieutenants the rank and pay of captains while they serve as heads of the Detective Bureau's robbery, homicide, general assignments, and special investigations squads.

3. Make the Interior Department repay the District for Park Police expenses now charged to the city.

4. Extend from 20 to 50 years the period for building up the District teachers' retirement fund to the point where all the heavy costs of setting it up will be absorbed.

5. Set up a five-member board to license and regulate undertakers and embalmers in the District.

6. Let District schools and universities recover possession of housing they own, without the limitations of the rent control law, when the property is needed for educational, research, administrative or dormitory use.

Boy, 6, Denies Killing 2 Babies

Massillon, Ohio, July 22 (U.P.).—Mrs. Roger Gue, mother of the 6-year-old boy who yesterday "confessed" to killing two infants in City Hospital June 6, said today the child now denied ever having touched the babies and told her he confessed only "because he was offered an airplane ride."

Mrs. Gue said Roger had returned to his earlier tale of having seen "a big boy in a white coat slam the babies to the floor."

Police Chief Stanley Switter said he "most certainly" did not believe Roger's new version.

Promised Plane Ride

Roger "confessed" to private investigator James Ellis and police. Mrs. Gue said Ellis promised him an airplane ride if he would tell what happened.

"Today he told me he made up the story because he liked the detective," Mrs. Gue said.

"I don't think Roger did the killing now, although I was ready to believe him yesterday. I do think, though, that he saw something the night of the deaths that he hasn't told completely."

Switter appeared indignant over the overnight switch in the child's story.

"Personally, I think the prosecutor (D. D. McLaughlin) talked to the parents last night and convinced them their child's story was wrong," he said.

Police Chief Blasts Prosecutor

The theory that the babies were murdered, Switter said, is "McLaughlin's baby and he's stuck with it. I'll believe it when he brings in the murderer."

McLaughlin denied that he had tried to influence Roger or his parents to change the confession.

"It is true we talked to the parents but we didn't speak to the boy," the prosecutor said.

British Squadron Visits Istanbul on Way to Soviet Port

Istanbul, July 22 (AP).—Admiral Sir Algernon U. Willis, commander of the British Mediterranean Fleet, said today he had brought a squadron of British warships to Istanbul in conformity with a policy of "being friends with and trying to work in harmony with all nations for the betterment of the world."

Three ships of the squadron, including the cruiser Liverpool, will leave here Saturday for Sevastopol for what the admiral described as a "purely naval visit."

The trip to the Russian port has been both praised and criticized in the Turkish press. The newspaper Ulas said the "fact that a part of this fleet will also visit the port of Sevastopol comes well and prevents any sense of provocation being given to this new demonstration of Anglo-Turk friendship."

House Passes Bill For Metal Subsidies

A bill to resume premium payments for metal production passed the House Yesterday and favorable Senate action was predicted by Senator Hatch (D., N. M.) and other western members.

The bill called for a maximum of 70 million dollars subsidy payments in the next two years. It covered copper, lead and zinc, but manganese was added to the original bill in an amendment by Representative Case (R., S. D.).

war" the Soviet is waging against this Nation, but the whole American propaganda should change. He mentioned the magazine "America" specifically and said it contained too much about things like women's hats and shoes and not enough information of how Americans really live.

6. The United States worries too much about how Joe Stalin will like its propaganda. "I can't understand," the witness exclaimed over and over. "The Politbureau which governs Russia certainly doesn't worry about what it says about the United States."

7. The dissolution of the Comintern is "just a smokescreen." The various Comintern members who signed the dissolution order are now all in key jobs in the satellite nations.

Talks of Marshall Plan

8. The masters of Moscow turned down the Marshall plan and made its satellites do so also for three major reasons: Starvation of Europe makes it easier to sovietize it; the Marshall plan would keep American industry producing and would not contribute to the depression the Kremlin wants here; and agreement would not be consistent with the Politbureau's propaganda about the selfish and greedy United States.

9. Control of the Russian people by the Kremlin through its huge army of secret police is so absolute that it is folly to look for a revolution within Russia without outside help. Nevertheless, 75 per cent of the Russian people are opposed to the present regime.

10. Should any accident, "by God's help," happen to Stalin, Russian policy would not change. Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov would take over and the undeclared war against Western democracy would continue.

11. The central committee of the Communist Party is all powerful, and keeps a representative over here at all times in various positions and disguises. A deputy chief of the Soviet Purchasing Committee, a Mr. Sedov, actually was the real party boss in the United States when he worked there. Sedov, he said, gave orders in party matters even to Andrei Gromyko, then Ambassador to the United States, now the Soviet Union's representative to the United Nations.

Gromyko's Comment

At Lake Success yesterday, Gromyko authorized the following comment on Kravchenko's testimony:

"When a dog has nothing to do, it leaks its underbelly. Sometimes this attracts spectators."

His comment was written out and delivered to the Associated Press.

Queried again by reporters, Gromyko said he did not care to alter his comment for publication because it would "lose flavor" if altered.

Later an assistant told reporters that what Gromyko meant to say was "licks." The phrase "When a dog has nothing to do, it licks its underebelly" is said to be an old Russian saying.

Kravchenko opposed outlawing the Communist Party in the United States, mainly on the ground that such an action would not conform to the freedom of this democracy which makes it shine out to the oppressed peoples of the world.

American fellow travelers, Kravchenko insisted, are far more dangerous than the avowed Communists. The Chicago Sun and PM, he declared, are more harmful than the Daily Worker, and Marshall Field is "more dangerous" and his papers "will cause America more harm" than some 30 per cent of the acknowledged Communists. In Chicago Field said "Kravchenko's statements do not deserve a reply."

Kraxchenko also took a swing at Elliott Roosevelt. Speaking of his regard for the late President Roosevelt he said, "But I as I read the ignorant words of his not very clever son Elliott . . ." At this point he was stopped by Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) who cautioned him against "these personal attacks."

Kravchenko told the committee that Russia had some 17 or 20 million slave laborers, kept on a starvation diet. Most of these, he declared, were Russians who were political prisoners.

If Russia's present policies continue, he said, and added he saw no chance of a change, eventually Russia and its satellites will withdraw from the United Nations and armed conflict between Russia and the western democracies will be inevitable.

He warned that the Kremlin is preparing "coups" like the recent Communist-inspired coup in Hungary for Austria, Italy and France.

"If Russia had the atom bomb and the United States did not," he declared, "we would not be here in this committee room today."

Has a Housing Problem

Kravchenko disclosed that he has a special housing problem all his own.

As the committee session began, Thomas barred all photographers from taking pictures of the witness. He also stated that Kravchenko requested the press not to use any pictures of him from newspaper files.

The reason is that every time his picture appears in the paper, neighbors in his apartment house get nervous for fear the building will be bombed.

Calls Soviets In U. S. Spies

VICTOR KRAVCHENKO, author of "I Chose Freedom," told the House Committee on Un-American Activities yesterday that "every responsible representative of the Soviet government in the United States may be regarded as an economic or political spy." Kravchenko is a former member of the Soviet Purchasing Commission in New York

Cable, Radio Union Strike Threatened

New York, July 22 .—The CIO American Communications Association and the All America Cables Employes Association (Ind.) said today they would strike at midnight tonight against three subsidiaries of the International Telephone & Telegraph Co. handling about one-third of American radio and cable traffic with other countries.

Union officials said about 2000 employes would walk off their jobs at the Mackay Radio & Telegraph Co., the Commercial Cable Co. and the All America Cables & Radio Co.

The officials said the companies here refused to arbitrate the current wage dispute with the unions.

'euH&RS

There was no immediate comment from the firms.

The unions are asking a wage increase of 15 cents an hour, the spokesman said, and the companies' best offer has been an 8-cent boost. Present rates for most classifications range from $32 to $70 for a 37½-hour week, the unions said.

Engineers Resume Work

San Francisco, July 22 (AP).—Southern Pacific trains were highballing on the Western lines again today following a short-lived strike of locomotive engineers.

The strike, which began at 6 p. m. (Pacific Standard Time) yesterday, was "indefinitely postponed" 6 hours and 45 minutes later.

Thirty-nine minutes aterward an engineer eased open the throttle of a switch engine in the company's Oakland Yard. It was the first to move of the hundreds of locomotives idled, but scarcely cooled, by the strike.

At 11 a.m. Southern Pacific officials announced all scheduled operations had returned to normal.

Five Pickets Injured

Benton Harbor, Mich., July 22 (AP).—Five CIO pickets suffered minor injuries today in the second skirmish with police in as many days before the gates of the Remington-Rand Corp.

Approximately 400 production workers have been on strike three weeks to enforce wage demands.

The sheriff ordered a "flying wedge" of 50 policemen to break the picket line manned by 200 strikers and sympathizers. Company officials said 94 strikers returned to their jobs.

The union struck in a demand for a 15-cent-an-hour increase, which the company answered with an offer of seven cents plus six paid holidays annually. The union estimated the prestrike average wage at the plant as 70 cents an hour for women and $1 for men.

An Eye Peeled Russians Have For Spies, Too

Testimony in Congress yesterday that Russian spies were everywhere in this country echoed concern in the Soviet Union that "foreign intelligence" was seeking its "state secrets."

The Associated Press, quoting an article in the Leningrad Pravda, reported that Russians were being criticized for carelessly or unconsciously giving out state secrets.

"One should remember," the article said, "that with the end of the war undermining activities of foreign intelligence have not weakened in the slightest. It is known that even bourgeois states, which are identical in character, constantly send among each other spies, diversionists, terrorists and assassins.

"Capitalistic intelligence operates even more actively against the Soviet nation, trying to undermine its military and economic might."

The article then mentioned a state decree that provides a maximum sentence of 20 years for persons who give out state secrets.

"There are people," it continued, "who talk something like this: 'The war has been over a long time. What have we to worry about?' Usually such persons give away state secrets to friends and acquaintances without even thinking. A person who cannot keep a state secret is a discovery for an agent of foreign intelligence."

The article then cited several incidents. It stated that recently at the Kirov plant in Leningrad several leaders made public information that was a state secret.

It said that documents of a secret character were lost by messengers of the Kalinin works, and in one case the portfolio of a courier was cut in a streetcar and a pocket of secret documents stolen. Still another messenger lost several packets of secret documents on the street, and another factory was cited for keeping its documents negligently.

Marie Windsor, friend of Lew Ayres, and Janet Thomas, friend of Hughes' close friend, John Myers, also were reported on the lists.

The Senate War Investigating Committee disclosed Sunday it also has subpenaed the late President Roosevelt's secret papers, and informed sources said the investigation might blow up into the "hottest" war contract investigation since the end of World War II.

These same sources said witnesses and documentary evidence to be presented would involve elaborate Hollywood parties and party girls, movie capital notables, "wine and dine" Air Corps officers and high-pressure war contracting.

The committee hopes to establish a connection between Hughes, Henry J. Kaiser, his former aircraft producing partner, and Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the late President.

All three were expected to testify voluntarily, a committee source said.

Hughes and the late President's second son both are aviation enthusiasts. Elliott flew photo-reconnaissance planes during the war. Committee members thought they might show a connection between this and the fact that Hughes was permitted to spend the huge sum on development of his XF-11, one of which crashed and the other of which still is undergoing tests.

It was Hughes' airline, Trans World, which flew young Roosevelt to the Grand Canyon when he married Faye Emerson, Warner Brothers' actress, December 31, 1944. Jack Frye, then president of the line, personally flew Roosevelt out in a company plane.

There were complaints at the time, during the gasoline shortage, that valuable fuel had been used for a wedding party.

Pre-Fab Church Made of Aluminum

Louisville, Ky. (U.P.).—Now it's prefabricated churches.

An all-aluminum prefabricated church, believed to be the first of its kind, is being built by the Apostolic Church here.

Elder Claude Griffin, pastor of the Negro church, said the church was a gift from W. G. Reynolds, vice president and general manager of a Reynolds Metals Co. plant here, aluminum manufacturers.

Members of the church are financing the labor cost and doing much of the work themselves. Cost of the building was estimated at $25,000.

Eisler Bossed Reds In U. S., Jury Hears

By Walter Pulliam
Post Reporter

Stocky, German-born Gerhart Eisler ruled officials and dictated policies of the Communist Party in the United States, a Government witness yesterday told a District Court trial jury.

The witness, Joseph Zack Kornfeder, 50-year-old Detroit salesman and former Communist Party Central Committee member, further testified Eisler thretened "serious consequences" to party members opposing him.

The chubby, slow-speaking Scranton-born, but Vienna-educated, key witness, testifying more than five hours, charged also that Eisler in the summer of 1933 urged Communist infiltration in American Federation of Labor unions and the then-new Civilian Conservation Corps.

Eisler, whom the FBI has labeled the chief Krewlin agent in the United States, is charged with giving false answers to three questions on a passport application to go to Mexico in September, 1945.

He is accused (1) of failing to list his Communist Party membership on the application; (2) of failing to list aliases by which he was known in this country, and (3) failing to list on the application a period of residence in the United States in the 1930s.

Helen Bryan of New York, executive secretary of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refuge Committee, testified her committee had made out 32 checks, between 1942 and 1946, to "Julius Eiseman" and that Eisler had indorsed these checks using the name "Julius Eiseman."

Miss Bryan said the checks totaled "a little over $6100" and that Eisler had indorsed some of them in the committee offices in her presence and had gone to a bank with the committee's bookkeeper on other occasions. She is to complete her testimony today.

District Court Justice James W. Morris excluded one Government witness, Sam Diner of San Raphael, Calif., a former Communist Party member, when Eisler's attorneys objected the testimony he was to give was not covered in the bill of particulars filed by the Government. The witness, Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz indicated earlier in the trial, was to give testimony regarding alleged activity by Eisler on the West Coast.

He said he disagreed with Eisler and that Eisler warned him of "serious consequences for me" if he opposed Eisler's labor policies at a district party convention in Cleveland in May, 1934. He said his speaking time at the convention was cut from a requested 30 minutes to five minutes.

Eisler, Kornfeder testified, also showed him a list of members for the party's Central Committee, the supposed governing body of the party, before the members were elected.

It was in Cleveland, Kornfeder said, that Eisler urged infiltration into the CCC.

Louis Budenz, former editor of the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper, who has repudiated communism and who identified Eisler publicly as the alleged chief Communist agent, is expected to be one of the Government's final witnesses.

Handed Copy of Dies Hearing

Kornfeder, who said he was in charge of Communist Party industrial organizational work in Cleveland in 1933 and 1934 was cross-examined at length by Defense Attorney Abraham J. Isserman as to whether he had mentioned "a Mr. Edwards," whom he identified on direct examination as Eisler, in 1939 in testimony before the former Dies Committee.

Kornfeder said he "believed" he had mentioned "Mr. Edwards," but, when handed a copy of the Dies Committee hearing, he told the court he was unable to find such a reference.

On direct examination, the witness told the jury of five women and seven men, which has been hearing evidence for the past week, that Eisler, then known to him as "Edwards," came to Cleveland in early 1934 and told him "the party was to speed up its activity in the labor union field and especially in the AFL."

Air Policy Bill Goes to President

The Senate passed and sent to the White House yesterday legislation setting up a temporary congressional board of 10 Senate and House members to recommend a national aviation policy.

The board would be directed to report to Congress by next March 1, on a policy to cover national defense, commerce, postal and other aviation needs.

Senate Group Gives Bruce, Ayres Approval

The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee yesterday approved the nominations of David K. E. Bruce, of Virginia, to be Assistant Secretary of Commerce, and W. A. Ayres, of Kansas, to be a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

The committee postponed until today action on the nomination of Burton N. Behling to be a member of the Federal Power Commission.

Senators Approve 4 as U. N. Delegates

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday approved President Truman's nominations of Warren R. Austin, Herschel V. Johnson, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and John Foster Dulles as delegates to the next United Nations meeting.

The convention today voted to spend $1,500,000 for establishment of a senior college for theological students.

Wadsworth Report Denied

It was reported early this week that Representative James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) was slated for the new Cabinet post, which Wadsworth promptly and flatly denied. Denials came also from other sources so authoritative as to leave little ground for them.

A member of the House Executive Expenditures Committee, Wadsworth was chosen to manage the unification bill in House debate after the committee chairman, Representative Hoffman (R., Mich.) announced he would not support it. Wadsworth has long been an ardent supporter of service unification.

There are no logical contenders for the job unless someone whose name has not yet been mentioned is brought in from politics or business. And it is generally agreed that the success of unification depends in large measure on placing its operation at the outset in the hands of someone familiar with the operations of both departments, who was near to the application of unified command in joint operations during the war, and whom the Navy will accept.

Forrestal was Undersecretary of the Navy from the time the office was established in 1940 until he was named Secretary on the death of Frank Knox in May, 1944. During World War I he enlisted as a seaman, became a Navy aviator with the rank of lieutenant.

At the time of his Little Cabinet appointment in 1940, he was president of Dillon, Read & Co., bankers.

Investments Abroad Bring Record Income

Business investments in other countries yielded Americans 520 million dollars last year, a greater income than ever before, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

The previous high was 474 million dollars—set 18 years before in "boom-time" 1928. For 1938, the best year in the 30s, the figure was 440 million dollars.

These are direct private business investments—not Government loans. They include principally foreign branches and subsidiaries of American enterprises and foreign companies in which Americans own more than 25 per cent of the voting stock.

Of the 1946 income, 273 million dollars was received from investments in Latin America, and 126 million dollars from Canada. The remaining fourth came from Europe, Asia, Africa and Oceania (Australia, New Zealand, etc.).

Canada has consistently topped any other country in such returns to these investors. Next in order in 1946 were Venezuela, Chile, Britain, Cuba, Argentina, Brazil and Mexico.

The oil industry was the largest single money maker, returning Americans 170 million dollars. Manufacturing was second at 130 million dollars.

Mining and smelting produced 65 million dollars, public utilities 50 million, farming 45 million, distribution industries 40 million, and other industries 20 million.

Open-Shut Hotel To Try It Again

Padre Island, Tex. (U.P.).—The closed-again, open-again hotel on this 130-mile-long island is back in business this summer.

Lois G. Tangedahl announced the hotel is ready for customers and can serve meals.

The hotel, originally erected before World War II, has known a spasmodic existence, sometimes offering rooms without meals, sometimes having meals without rooms, and sometimes closed altogether.

It is the only building on this barren island skirting the Texas coast from Mexico to Corpus Christi.

Trout For State Fish

blow to the corn crop, increasing the danger of much low quality soft and wet corn this fall. Corn needs sunny days and hot nights to mature before the fall frosts.

Late yesterday, weather officials reported, the weather had started improving in western Iowa, and warmer temperatures are expected today.

At Indianapolis, the weather bureau said that Indiana crops had "virtually stopped growing because of low temperatures in the 50s." The chilly weather reached south into Missouri and southern Ohio, with Cincinnati reporting a low of 51 degrees.

In Washington the Senate and House conferees on the Agriculture Appropriation bill broke a deadlock that had threatened to delay the scheduled adjournment of Congress this week.

Senator Russell (D., Ga.) estimated that total funds allowed the Agriculture Department for the year will total "about 40 million dollars below" the figure originally voted by the Senate. They would be about 200 million above those originally voted by the House.

265 Million Agreed On

The report, which now must be accepted by the House and then the Senate:

1. Agreed upon 265 million dollars for soil conservation payments this year, and 150 million dollars next year. The House originally set aside 165 million for this year, and later instructed its conferees to raise this to 265 million. The House had left out provision for the 1948 crop year.

Agriculture Department officials last night said this cut from the 301 million it had asked would result in slight reductions for each farmer complying with the program this year. Next year's payments will be limited to $500 for any individual farm.

2. Agreed to a 65 million dollar fund for the National School Lunch program. The Senate bill had voted 75 million for this item; the House had voted to stand pat for 45 million.

15 Millions for Loans

3. Decided upon a 15 million dollar loan fund to aid tenant farmers and war veterans to become farm owners. The House had twice refused any loans for this purpose; the Senate originally voted 20 million dollars.

4. Accepted a House provision requiring meat packers to pay costs for Federal meat inspection. The report set up a revolving fund of five million dollars to finance the inspection. The Senate twice voted to continue use of Federal funds for this purpose, and had voted 11 million dollars to finance it.

Agriculture officials saw in the corn report hopes of maintaining meat production next year under present levels.

The department had originally fixed 2,850,000 as the minimum to maintain meat, dairy and poultry production on the present near-record scale.

Yesterday's forecast of 2,770,000,000 bushels falls short of the Government's goal of three billion for this year, and last year's record crop of 3,287,000,000 bushels.

Chairmen of three subcommittees of the Fairfax County Chapter Red Cross Disaster Preparedness and Relief Committee were announced yesterday. William J. Downs of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., the communications subcommittee.

Peru Envoy Resigns After Minister's Visit

By The Associated Press

Jorge Prado, Peru's ambassador to the United States, yesterday told a reporter he resigned.

Informed sources said the resignation resulted from "personal differences" with Foreign Minister Enrique Garcia Sayan.

Postal Station Ends 24-Hour Service Aug. 1

Around the clock postal service in effect at the Benjamin Franklin Station, 13th and Pennsylvania ave. nw., since it opened in 1934 will be terminated August 1.

Postmaster Vincent C. Burke said yesterday that business is no longer sufficient to keep the station open all of the time, seven days a week.

New hours will be 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. Monday through Friday, and 8 a. m. to 1 p. m. Saturday. The station will be closed all day Sunday.

Lobby Open to Midnight

The lobby will be kept open until midnight on weekdays and to 6 p. m. Sunday for the convenience of boxholders, however.

These changes will leave only the City Postoffice, Massachusetts ave. and North Capitol sts., and the National Airport station offering 24-hour, 7-day-a-week service.

Burke said that receipts from the Benjamin Franklin station dropped 10 per cent last year. In 1945 the station recorded $1,687,531 worth of business and in 1946 only $1,528,350 worth.

Saves $20,000 a Year

The postmaster said that the new hours will save the postoffice about $20,000 a year.

Postoffice business all over the city is down, Burke said. Except for one month, December, 1946, there has been a reduction of city-wide receipts every month since September, 1945. The reduction, he said, is from 4 to 5 per cent a month. City-wide business last year was $1,346,000 less than it was in 1945, he said.

Duke of Windsor Writing Memoirs, Columnist States

London, July 22 (U.P.).—The gossip columnist of the Star said today that the Duke of Windsor, pinched for cash, has started writing his memoirs and intends to write a movie script about the life and reign of his grandmother, Queen Victoria.

At the discreet warning from his financial advisers, the duke was said to have switched from the life of a playboy to that of fulltime work. The Star claimed that the duke had hired a stenographer to help him rush completion of his memoirs up to the time of his abdication and that he himself was devoting six or seven hours a day in the study of his Riviera villa at Cap d'Antibes.

The Star said that the duke had shelved the plan of selling his life story to Hollywod because Buckingham Palace viewed the idea with disfavor.

B-29s Begin Test Bombing of Nazi Submarine Plant

Frankfurt, Germany, July 22 (AP).—Three American B-29 Superfortresses today began test bombing of the German "bomb proof" submarine assembly plant at Farge, near Breman, the United States Army Air Force said tonight.

The huge bombers dropped modified versions of Britain's Royal Air Force "tall boy" bombs to test their penetrating power against underground plants.

Given good weather, the bombers are scheduled to put on a repeat performance tomorrow, using American 25,000-pound "Amazon" and "Sampson" penetration bombs. The tests are expected to take three months.

India Adopts Flag Unlike Union Jack

New Delhi, July 22 (AP).—The Indian Constituent Assembly adopted today a national flag completely free of any mark connected with the British Empire.

The standard was of deep saffron, white and dark green horizontal striped Congress Party colors and with navy blue—symbolic of Mohandas K. Gandhi's influence—appearing in the middle of a white stripe.

From Yesterday's Late Editions

DEAR, DARLIN', wonderful "Oklahoma!" came back to the National last night, still the happiest of our American musicals.

Most of its virtues are intact and if you haven't seen it, well, golly, gee, y'orter.

It's late in the century to set down its charms, its lovely, witty music, its imaginative dancing and its open-air feeling. Most everyone knows its happy melodies backwards and there seems to be nothing our human hearts enjoy more than hearing over and over songs we all love.

The company? It's good and you need have no fears you'll be getting a shoddy version of the hit you've been hearing about for so long. True enough, not everyone is quite so perfect as your memory serves, but then you aren't, either, so what do you want, chimes?

They're playing it, for instance, a little more broadly than you may remember it, sacrificing some of the ingenuous subtlety to socking the laughs, but so brilliantly has Rouben Mamoulian directed it, so ingeniously has Agnes de Mille wrought her dances and so proudly has the Theater Guild watched over its golden goose, that it's almost a miracle to find it fresh and zestful after hundreds of performances.

James Alexander is a swell Curly, a good-looking lug with a big, hearty voice, obviously in love with one of the richest parts on our stage. Since Curly is virtually the lead you could hardly ask for more.

Miss de Mille's ballets are still a treat, handsomely danced by Claire Pasch and George Lawrence. How these dances have affected our musicals is stage history.

The "Pore Jud" still strikes us as one of the neatest numbers in the show. The rousing "Oklahoma!" chorus couldn't be rousinger. Patricia Shay is loudly funny as Ado Annie and Peggy Engel cutely pretty as ever an Indian Territory lass was. Orville Sherman may not dance too well as Will, but he puts over his songs with grand vocal know-how and David Morris is a better Ali Hakim than the one we recall.

Everyone will have his favorites in this cast, comparing them with others, but no matter what favorites you have, it's still "Oklahoma!"

Now if only the State Department would get wise and send a couple of companies overseas instead of those ambassadors custom insists on. Then maybe we'd get somewhere.—R. L. C.

Ocean City Mayor Refuses To Be 'Goat' in Gambling Row

not treated me fair. It is uncalled for.

"I don't have no slot machines. I get my living honest."

Mayor Trimper said he thought it would be fair if the three members of the council would let him make public a letter which they signed together several days ago "and sent off."

After the mayor walked out, City Council President Rudolph D. Dolle and Councilman Robert Savage declined to comment on whether they had intended to resign.

They joined Esham in saying they did not know what letter it was the mayor wanted published.

The meeting got under way informally after the three councilmen met in an adjoining room with William H. Price of nearby Snow Hill, attorney for the council.

The mayor said he had not called any meeting. About 8 o'clock he was sitting on a bench in front of the police station across the street from the fire company. The city office is on the second floor of the fire company building.

He had stood up and announced he was going home when the three councilmen and Attorney Price arrived at the fire station.

The only other attending the meeting were City Manager Charles Mumford and six reporters.

Worchester County Sheriff Andrew W. Duer said tonight he believed any gambling at this resort was an "on-and-off" proposition.

"Whenever I and my two deputies visit the boardwalk, things look pretty good," he said.

"It appears that whenever we cross the bridge (the span connecting Ocean City with the mainland) word gets around that we are on our way to inspect things, so gambling stops and gambling devices disappear.

"But, I guess from reports in the paper that when we turn our backs gambling and the devices both reappear."

Exodus 1947

The British decision to send three shiploads of illegal immigrants back from Palestine to France, for all the legalism with which it may be defended, is a heartbreaking one—as senseless as it is cruel. In the already overcharged atmosphere of the Holy Land, this harshness can have only calamitous consequences. It feeds the very forces the British would subdue. Already it has prompted a wave of violence. All the elements working toward a rational and peaceful solution of the Palestine problem must be shaken by this act. And among the helpless Jews in the displaced persons camps of Europe, the effect can be only to compound a tragic despair.

Decisions are sometimes made in the detachment of foreign offices without a realization of their impact in terms of human anguish. This must have been one of those. It is not yet too late to amend it. If President Truman and Secretary Marshall can do aught to show the implications of this course to Prime Minister Attlee and Foreign Secretary Bevin, they will render a service to the British as well as to the refugees. We hope that when these three detention ships reach their destination in southern France their pitiful cargo will not be debarked until time has been granted for a sober—and merciful—second thought. Granted that in the present position of affairs, the British authorities cannot be asked to admit these refugees to Palestine, yet there are other places than France, where there are no facilities to care for them and from which they departed in high hope, to which they might be sent until the thorny question of Palestinian immigration is determined—if not to Cyprus, then perhaps to North Africa.

Britain need stay her hand for only a little longer. An interim report from the U. N. Commission, in all the circumstances of the tension, ought to be forthcoming soon. There is reason to hope that it will afford a solution more generous and more humane.

Interpreter's House

It is a tribute to the fitness of things that Secretary Marshall has found a way of keeping Mr. Charles E. Bohlen by the device of making him Counselor of the State Department. This is a big jump from the role of special assistant, but one that was necessary in order to keep Mr. Bohlen in Washington. As a Foreign Service officer, Mr. Bohlen was due to be transferred for service abroad. After four years in the State Department, a career official is obliged by law to take up a foreign post. It is a rigid rule which has no rhyme or reason without provision for emergencies or exception. In Mr. Bohlen's case a transfer abroad would have been a piece of foolishness. Mr. Bohlen is a man whose departure would have been a profligate waste of talent at a time when our relations with Russia remain the paramount consideration in our domestic as well as our foreign policy.

No man has had more experience in dealing with the men in the Kremlin than Mr. Bohlen. Accomplished in the Russian language, he has served as interpreter of and to the Russians for four Secretaries of State—Messrs. Hull, Stettinius, Byrnes and Marshall. All through the war, besides, he acted as the medium between Roosevelt and Stalin. But Mr. Bohlen is no mechanical interpreter. Far from it. He is a student of Russia, of its history, its politics and its psychology; and his special knowledge has a context in a deep and lively understanding of the flowing tides of world affairs. With this intellectual equipment Mr. Bohlen is able to interpret the meaning and nuances of what he hears and reads. A rara avis, indeed! But that is how Mr. Bohlen has been regarded since the days of Secretary Hull. Withal Mr. Bohlen has a sense of history and a sense of humanity which charge his work with liberalism as well as profundity.

Nor does this sum up Mr. Bohlen's uniqueness as an interpreter. His office is what John Bunyan himself would have recognized as an "interpreter's house," vouched for in the experience of legislators and newspapermen. He it is who briefs newspapermen on what goes on behind closed doors at official conferences. There is an openness in his briefings that makes his auditors convinced that he is going the limit in the confidence delegated to him by his chief. He has a natural and engaging way of telling people rather than doing what irritates legislators, namely, selling them. No matter in what circle he is, Mr. Bohlen, with his darting and speculative mind and companionable manner, gives the impression that his sole object is to share his ideas and test them in the crucible of conversation. His skill as an expositor has lately been available to the conference of Governors, and we hope that in his new position his gift in this respect will be used wherever there is need to inform and explain our foreign policy.

This is the man, as sagacious as he is brilliant, who has been chosen to succeed Mr. Benjamin V. Cohen as Counselor of the State Department, the third position in the State Department's hierarchy, and the appointment is proof not only of his invaluable service to our Government, but also of his loyalty to his successive chiefs and of his fidelity to the onerous and significant work that has been his career.

Civilian Job

House conferees, we hope, will stick to their guns in their insistence that the armed forces unification bill provide for a civilian director of central intelligence. This is a concession the Senate can afford to make in the interest of agreement. It is a concession to the American tradition of civilian preeminence, and one which in the vital field of foreign intelligence may spell the difference between a series of disruptive makeshifts and a genuinely integrated, efficient intelligence service.

There is no more damaging influence in the effort to obtain correlated intelligence, we submit, than the frequent changes in direction which have beset the Central Intelligence Group in its 18-month existence. During that brief span two admirals and one general have held the job. If this trading back and forth between the Army and Navy were to continue, it could well mean failure for what the agency is trying to accomplish. For if there is any one thing that a smoothly functioning intelligence operation must have, it is continuity. That should be obvious from a study of the better established intelligence systems of other nations. Or, for further corroboration, we need only to look to our own Federal Bureau of Investigation. The FBI could not have built up its impressive record had it been bedeviled with constantly changing, helter-skelter direction.

To be sure, former chiefs or intelligence have shown a praiseworthy industry on behalf of the agency. It is undeniable, however, that they have been primarily military men pursuing military careers. Unless there is a definite stipulation that the director of central intelligence shall be a civilian in fact, the temptation will remain for Army and Navy appointees to use this job as a mere temporary stepping stone for ambitions along other lines. As we have noted before, such a restriction need not blackball the incumbent director, Admiral Hillenkoetter, who, we understand, has indicated his desire to make intelligence a career. But in return for a $12,000 to $14,000 salary the director ought to be required, we think, to relinquish completely his military status.

Furthermore, there are other salient reasons why the House rather than the Senate unification bill should prevail with respect to intelligence. The House bill contains certain essential checks as to operations. The job of the Central Intelligence Agency is to direct, evaluate and disseminate intelligence on a national scale. A military man such as the Senate bill permits would be under pressure to favor cronies in his particular branch of service to the detriment of the broad picture. He would find it more difficult to prevent cliques and maintain a balance among his subordinates. Finally, a not inconsequential consideration is the criticism of the unification bill as placing too much power in the hands of the military—a criticism that would be obviated at least in one particular by making the intelligence chief a civilian. Congress can remedy these weaknesses very simply, by merely adopting the House version. In our opinion, this safeguard is necessary to fit intelligence in its proper place in the national security organization we are molding.

Cuban Indignation

Cuba, neighbor and friend, has a real grievance against the United States which is so well justified that we hope the Senate will rectify it. The grievance concerns a section in the pending sugar bill which says that if the Secretary of State finds that any foreign country denies fair and equitable treatment to Americans, he is empowered to deny that country benefits accorded under the bill. This is meant to obtain for American nationals payment of private claims they have against the Cuban government. Such an interpretation, given by Representative Hope to the House of Representatives and concurred in by the State Department, has created a furor in Cuba. So perturbed are the Cubans that they threaten to keep away from the coming Rio meeting of the American republics to work out a system of hemispherical defense.

The club that the State Department has inserted in the sugar bill is a reversion to the big stick policy toward our continental neighbors. President Coolidge said that "The person and property of a citizen are a part of the general domain of a nation, even when abroad." This attitude was abandoned under the good-neighbor policy. Instead of collecting debts arbitrarily, we decided to put our faith in common principles developed at successive inter-American conferences. The latest pledge was laid down in the Act of Chapultepec. Here the rule was adopted "of conciliation, unrestricted arbitration, or the application of international justice in the solution of any difference or dispute between American nations, whatever its nature or origin." Cuba, which is regularly meeting payments on her foreign debt, has pleaded with our Government to live up to this undertaking and has pledged herself to go before any conciliation board.

There is no excuse for our trying to collect the claims of our citizens by this form of legislative intimidation. The claims, not being the result of a marketed loan in the United States, are in no special class to themselves. They are inextricably mixed up with the claims of Cuban nationals incurred by old administrations in Havana. They are thus part of Cuba's internal debt. Yet we are threatening to subject the Cuban government to the embarrassment of making it give the American claimants a privileged position. This is a poor return for Cuba's help to us during the war. We trust the Senate will not allow a bill to go through containing such a flagrant violation of our pledges and our professions. Let the offensive clause be stricken out, and then the State Department could go about the job of composing our nationals' claims through the machinery provided for, as suggested by Cuba and as called for by our obligations.

Lend-Lease Cleanup

In appropriating funds to drain the long-clogged lend-lease pipe line, the House of Representatives has administered another of those senseless slaps at Russia which bedevil our foreign relations. Prior to the termination of lend-lease, a number of foreign countries placed orders here under the terms of Section 3-C of the Lend-Lease Act to be paid for on the basis of a 30-year credit bearing interest at the rate of 2⅜ per cent. Delivery on these orders was delayed because of strikes and other reasons. And in its last appropriation act providing funds for administration of lend-lease, Congress stipulated that no money should be expended for shipments after December 31, 1946. As a result, goods purchased and to some extent paid for by foreign governments have been lying in storage for want of funds to send them on their way. And commitments entered into in good faith by the State Department under lend-lease authorization have remained unfulfilled.

Now the House has passed an appropriation measure permitting expenditure of the funds necessary to fulfill commitments made to Australia, Belgium, Guatemala, China, France, Saudi Arabia, Brazil, Peru, the United Kingdom and the Netherlands. The name conspicuously missing from this list is the Soviet Union, which had ordered equipment worth about 10 million dollars needed to complete an oil refinery already partially delivered. The equipment, built to Russian specifications and of no use in this country, is now rusting away in idleness.

This is, of course, sheer waste. Worse, it represents a default on an American obligation. We hope heartily that the Senate will amend the House act by including Russia among the nations toward which the United States will fulfill its commitments. This is a moral, not a political, issue. It would be tragic to place this country in the position of a breaker of international agreements.

NLRB Nominees

The President's nominations to fill the two new positions on the National Labor Relations Board created by the Taft-Hartley Act, together with his choice for the augmented post of general counsel to the agency, seem thoroughly in keeping with his pledge to promote in every way possible the effective administration of a law he dislikes. These are bipartisan, or better still nonpartisan, choices. They will prove, we trust, entirely acceptable to the members of Congress who sponsored and supported the new labor law. All the nominees, President Truman has declared, approve of the law and are anxious to see it operate successfully.

Robert N. Denham of Maryland, selected to serve as general counsel, is now a trial examiner in the NLRB and has had considerable direct experience in handling the case work with which his new office must deal. He has a reputation for equal toughness in dealing with industry and labor and can probably be counted upon to keep the trial examiners under him on their toes. His attitude toward the autonomous position of the general counsel under the new act is reassuring. "Of necessity," he observed, "both the board and the general counsel will have to work closely and collaborate on mutual problems." The law can work effectively only if such cooperation is achieved.

Former Senator Abe Murdock has had a record of intelligent progressivism in both the House and the Senate. His legal background should prove a valuable asset to a board which has only one other lawyer, the chairman, among its members. The President's other nominee to the board, J. Copeland Gray of Buffalo, has a record as an industrial relations consultant which speaks balance and judgment. For 18 years he has served as labor expert for the Houdaille-Hershey Corp. "If there is one thing I am proud of," he said, "it is the fact that in that entire period there has been no lost time due to labor difficulties in that company." The prevention of lost time due to labor difficulties is the basic business of the NLRB.

Narcissus-wise,
he bends above the pool,
gazing with golden eyes,
the sky-winged one—
Silent he waits
on slender, bamboo legs, motionless,
the graceful neck arched downward, great feathers wind-carved—only the gentle murmur of the stream, the whisper of a leaf betray the stillness of this woodland dream—(lost in the shadows of the silver water an unwary perch moves ever nearer the all-embracing shadow on the shore . . .)

Thought Control

It is interesting, informative and, perhaps, amusing in a macabre sort of way to note in your news story of July 20, regarding the appointment of Mr. Royall, that the War Department has to assure the Nation and its law makers that Mr. Royall does not discuss "governmental, political or national policies" with his brother-in-law, Mr. Johannes Steel.

The infamous Kempetai, Japanese thought control police, would also probably be a bit surprised to note the degree to which our own country has followed in their footsteps; we are overwhelmed.

After having just fought and won a war to eliminate systems based on "thought control" we are in a bit of a perhaps pardonable dither to hear that Mr. Royall has not been guilty of discussing anything besides the weather with his in-laws.

One of the elements in the Russian system which our press has criticized most strongly has been their lack of free speech. Can it be that our country drifts down the same path? Or does this fall in line with the recent statement by Secretary of State Marshall, in a press conference, that the interests of the individual are secondary to those of the state? (This was in reference to the dismissal of 10 State Department employes.)

Can it be that we, as students, must prepare to stop classroom discussions of "governmental, national or political" policies for fear of the new American "thought police?" ROBERT I. CRANE, MICHAEL BRECHER.

Inconsistent Senate

Last year, the Congress passed the Congressional Reorganization Act which among other things provided for an increase of $2500 in salary for members of Congress, together with $2500 additional compensation, which, in fact, was an income tax business exemption. In the Senate, 49 Senators voted for the bill, 16 against, 31 did not vote.

Among the Senators who recently refused to give the American taxpayer the benefit of tax reduction, the following voted for the Congressional Reorganization Act thereby increasing their own salaries and giving themselves a substantial income tax exemption: Barkeley, Downey, Hatch, Hill, Hayden, Kilgore, Lucas, McMahon, Magnuson, Maybank, Pepper, Russell and Morse.

Senator Thomas of Utah, who was reported as in favor of sustaining the President's veto, also voted for the bill.

It has been a matter of amazement to the writer that no commentator, newspaper or Senator, as far as he is personally informed, has made any reference to the inconsistency and political inexpediency of those Senators who now deny tax relief to their own constitutents yet by legislation use the money of the taxpayer to increase their own salaries and to provide themselves with important income tax exemptions.

Mental Health

The article of July 16, "World Health Problem" by Malvina Lindsay, is timely and well put, as nations are neurotic.

Prof. S. H. Kraines, the distinguished psychiatrist and lecturer on mental diseases at the National Hospital for Nervous Diseases in London says, "The world today is insane." He points out that this diagnosis is by no means strange when one looks at the various nations racing toward the next war . . . and self-inflicted poverty because they refuse to cooperate with each other.

Insanity, however, is a broad term which covers many types of personalities and many different kinds of mental diseases. The mental process of man with whom one disagrees is always wrong. Therefore the mind of man is wrong. Where is the line between wrong mind and insane mind? All persons are insane to some degree. No one is definitely sane or insane. Insanity is a departure from normal thinking and acting.

Psychiatry is the name given to the medical study and the medical treatment for disorders of the mind. Psychiatry has been so played up by skillful, unremitting propaganda in the newspapers, schools and elsewhere that there has been developed a craze for psychiatry which has become one of the principal factors in bringing about the alarming increase in insanity, and I go so far as also to affirm is a factor in the increase of crime.

Everybody, except you and I, is a little queer and the medical man who specializes in psychiatry runs true to medical form when he is inclined to imagine that any person he examines is suffering from the particular ailment in which he specializes.

No psychiatrist on earth can make you stop hating, worrying, dreading, envying or having cussed feelings, toward your fellow man. The cure rests mainly with you.

Sudeten Germans

I am aware of the prominent reputation your newspaper enjoys and I know your country and Washington from a journey that I made as a delegate to the fifth International Congress of Chambers of Commerce and Industrial Organzations held in Boston in September, 1912.

I am a Sudeten German and was expelled with my family from the Sudetenland by the Czechoslovak military authority, though we were never members of the Nazi Party. Many people in your country might not know that the population of the Sudetenland consisted of about 95 per cent Sudeten Germans, or about 3½ millions, a population larger than each of 39 States of the United States. For this reason, we hope that justice will be done to us Sudeten Germans in conformity with the principles of the Atlantic Charter.

In 1938 the Sudetenland became a part of Germany with the consent of Great Britain and France after Lord Runciman's inquiry into the Sudetenland and Czechoslovakia. After World War II we Sudeten Germans, who had lived in the Sudetenland, were expelled by the Czechs. It had been our homeland for more than 1000 years. The cruelty of this expulsion has never been surpassed. In general, the Czechs permitted us to take only small hand-luggage and many possessed no more than the clothes they were wearing.

Driven away from our homes, we Sudeten Germans are dispersed all over the German provinces and are spending our lives in the deepest need and greatest poverty. We only hope to return to our homes again and to get back our property which we were forced to leave behind.

Reed Railroad Reorganization Bill

The Reed railroad reorganization bill, now pending in Congress, aims to end the confiscation of stockholders' properties of railroads in reorganization by governmental sanction through the procedure of Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act. To those who realize the grave injustice done to thousands of small investors of railroad securities, this bill represents the long-delayed justice which has been denied to junior security holders by the courts and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

There were $1,500,000,000 of railroad securities wiped out in the reorganization of 23 roads, and 635 million dollars additional are threatened with elimination in nine pending cases in the near future. However, the following table will show us the amount of excess profits tax our Government received from some of these so-called bankrupt railroads during the period of 1943-45, inclusive:

To clarify the basic issue of this bill, in order to understand the necessity for its enactment, the following particular points may be submitted for discussion:

1. Why should solvent railroads remain in the hands of receivers?

2. Why should creditors be given control of railroads when the debtors are able and willing to meet their obligations?

3. Why should not the interest rate of railroads in reorganization be brought down to the prevailing level of today as of the rest through refinancing?

4. Why should the Interstate Commerce Commission [illegible] 1939 earnings as a standard in estimating the value of railroads for reorganization while using 1941 earnings as a base in its class rate decision?

It is suspected that the introduction of the Mahaffie bill was designed to confuse the issue in order to sabotage the Reed bill. The Mahaffie bill aims to prevent future forfeiture of railroad securities but gives no consideration to pending cases. Can it be possible that Mr. Mahaffie wants Congress to do away with what might be a possible evil in the future but does not care to correct what is an existing evil at the present? Furthermore, unless Mr. Mahaffie expects the Nation's railroads to be in bankruptcy in the years to come, how can he tell that the future railroads will have the exact evil that necessitates the remedy Congress can prescribe today?

One argument made by the opponents of the Reed bill has been that all the work already done by the Interstate Commerce Commission in pending Section 77 proceedings would be vitiated. It is entirely untrue; "little, if any, of the work already done need be repeated, all of the existing record being made a part of new proceedings under the Reed bill," as the Senate Commerce committee pointed out in its report.

Another argument also frequently made was that the enactment of the Reed bill might only serve to benefit the speculators in the old stocks of these railroads, but we mustn't overlook the fact that there has been far more speculation in the bonds than in the stocks. An examination of the stock lists of each of these railroads will show that a greater proportion of these stocks have not changed hands ever since these roads went to its respective receivers, while the contrary is true as to the bonds. The fluctuations of the various issues of Rock Island bonds, for example, have ranged from an average low of $9.00 at 1942 to an average high of $81.50 at 1946.

Caste In Education

By Malvina Lindsay

Yokel Menace

THAT DANGEROUS GULF in American life between those who get "learning" and those who don't is widening. Action to meet the teacher crisis is under way chiefly in cities and in the more prosperous States, thus causing teachers in backward rural areas to go in search of greener pastures. Congress is about to adjourn without giving to education the Federal aid that would enable poorer areas to do more for their schools.

This means that the untaught or poorly taught yokel, hillbilly, "wool hat"—who is the delight of the demagogue and the mob leader—will gain in numbers and power. It will mean a boost to poverty, provinciality, prejudice and retrogressive legislation. It may mean more lynchings.

About a year ago the country received a shock over the teacherless condition of its schools. Progressive and prosperous communities were roused to action; some of the poor ones made what effort they could. Educators, who have recently been appraising the year's results, are encouraged by the general improvement in the teaching situation. But they are disturbed because the poor areas, lacking resources and Federal aid, have failed to keep pace; in fact, now may be further drained by their more enterprising neighbors.

EVEN IF Congress acts next session the States most in need will not get aid before the school term of 1948-49. Yet these poor States have the greatest proportionate number of pupils. One-half of the Nation's children live in small towns and rural areas, where school facilities are often behind those of cities.

Areas with the better schools attract not only the more promising teachers, but often the more ambitious students. The areas thus deserted suffer economically. Fewer books and radios are sold. Health, diet, farm methods make no progress. Worst of all, a bitter resentment against better educated and more prosperous neighbors, particularly "city slickers" is fostered. This is exploited politically with the result that the entire Nation suffers from this localized ignorance. The whole situation increases the old cleavage between town and country. In State legislatures particularly, but even in Congress, this causes emotional line-ups that deadlock and sidetrack legislation.

Better paid teachers in backward areas would not alone solve the problem, since some of the poorer States that have raised teachers' salaries to a degree still lack teachers. For bigotry and ignorance describe a circle not easily broken.

THE IGNORANCE that produces bigotry drives many teachers from the backward regions. There are still some school districts where a teacher must sign a contract that she will not have a date with a young man unless it is in church work. Many school boards write all sorts of restrictions on personal conduct into their contracts. Yet in New York City, for example, teachers may marry and they also have maternity leave. They may use lipstick and—after school hours—smoke. Is it any wonder young teachers set their sights on towns and cities where they will not only have better pay, but more liberty?

Yet the first step in breaking the back of ignorance is to get better schools and teachers in order to enlighten the school boards of tomorrow. Money to do this is the immediate need. For some of the poorer States are already spending more proportionately on their inadequate schools and teachers than richer States are spending on their high-powered systems. The poor States' chief hope is Federal aid.

In the meantime about seven million children are getting no schooling. The Nation is carrying about 10 million people who are illiterate in the sense they can't read a newspaper or write a letter. And this at a time when it must make through its voters the most momentous decisions in its history!

Public Parks

About 12:30 p. m. on a recent afternoon as I parked my car near the Archives Building and walked toward my office, I was amazed to see a D. C. motorcycle policeman walk across the Mall to a man lying alone on the grass, asleep apparently, and kick him with his foot until he made him sit up, get up, and walk away from the Mall. I could scarcely believe my eyes as I watched him go from man to man, to about seven or eight lonely, silent forms, resting in the noonday heat, kicking each awake, and ordering them up and away—to where? I was not near enough to hear the words or tone he used, but his bearing and attitude in a movie would have registered him as the typical stormtrooper of Nazi training and orders.

Is there a law forbidding people to sit or lie down on the Mall, on the grass, out of the sultry heat, beneath the elms on the Mall? Not any of the men ordered up and away when asleep were molesting either any individual or personal or Government property; they apparently were not drinking, and they left no evidence of even a lunch wrapping to be picked up after them.

In Franklin Park I have often seen people lying on the grass asleep, and thanked God for the parks of our city where people as well as pigeons could actually "park" and relax. I think also that I recall the famous "Boston Commons" where hundreds relax and sleep too, perhaps, on hot summer days and nights.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Timetable Of A Tourniquet

—AN UNNECESSARY mystery has been made of the Administration's timetable for action on the Marshall Plan for Europe. At home, rumors abound. Abroad, the British and French leaders of Europe's effort to organize for reconstruction have been bitterly disheartened by President Truman's intimation that the Marshall Plan would not necessitate a special session of Congress. As Ernest Bevin sadly remarked, "Europe is bleeding to death," and if the tourniquet is not applied in a reasonable time, the patient will expire.

There is no earthly reason for the Administration's air of aimlessness and uncertainty about the special session. President Truman, Secretary of State Marshall and the congressional leaders have in fact already mapped out a perfectly sound tentative strategy of action.

In brief, there will be no prolonged special session unless Europe begins to come apart at the seams and the quickest American aid is therefore imperative. But during the recess, all preparations will be made for the promptest possible congressional action on the Marshall Plan immediately following the opening of the regular session on January 1.

The State Department's planning section is now completing its studies of the political aspects of the problem. The President's committee of 19, under the chairmanship of Secretary of Commerce Harriman, is now tackling the economic aspects . . . Secretary Harriman expects to be ready by October 1 with an American balance sheet, showing this country's ability to pay the bill for a broad scheme of world reconstruction. By then, it is hoped, the participating European nations under British and French leadership will also have had finished their blueprint for a cooperative effort to restore European productivity and prosperity.

THUS, BY OCTOBER 1 all the data needed for action will at long last be available. At that time or shortly thereafter, there is good reason to expect that Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan and Representative Charles A. Eaton of New Jersey will call into session the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate and the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House. In view of the enormous importance of the Marshall Plan to this country and the world, it is neither feasible nor desirable for the Congress to pass upon it without the most careful study. If the presently mapped tentative strategy is followed, this study will be completed by the two committees at hearings held during October and November.

If this is done, in turn, the committees will then be ready to report out an amended, completed bill as soon as Congress meets, and the debate can begin instantly. Since the debate is likely to be extremely prolonged, there is some thought of taking the edge off the congressional itch for self-expression at a short special session in December. In any case, the hope is that this device of holding committee hearings in the absence of Congress will make it possible to bring the Marshall Plan to final vote before February 1. Thus the tourniquet should be available to stanch the terrible wounds of Europe before the grim winter has brought disaster.

THE FINAL decision as to whether to adopt this novel expedient has not yet been taken. Its obvious good sense seems likely, however, to commend it to all concerned. For President Truman, it exercises the nightmare which has been visibly haunting him. He will not have to cope with a special session of a hostile Congress with only one piece of business before it—a situation bound to prove the truth of the old rule that "Satan finds work for idle hands to do." For the members of Congress, it removes the need to curtail their vacations and to interrupt the vital labor of mending fences back home. And for the country and for Europe, it assures action to avert the dangers now menacing us at a date very nearly as early as could be achieved by a special session.

What the verdict of Congress will be no one, of course, can now predict with certainty. Three points, however, deserve to be noted. First, Secretary Marshall's triumphant success in bringing order out of the State Department's antique disarray has already begun to make the inevitable favorable impression on Congress. Second, Secretary Marshall has personally restored, to the satisfaction of all concerned, the machinery of bipartisan foreign policy to its former good working order. Not satisfied with this, he is also reported to be devising a new and quite revolutionary program of State Department congressional liaison, which will keep Congress continuously in touch with the world-picture. And in addition, plans are being made for high officials to educate the country during the summer.

Third, and most important, it may be difficult now to imagine the present Congress approving a bill embodying anything like the Marshall Plan. But a good rule in judging trends in the United States is that the country always saves itself in the end. And in this case the national survival, are as clearly at stake as in any of the great crises of our history.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Taft And His Father

LIKE FATHER, like son. That old saw has often been applied to Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio and his illustrious father, the late William Howard Taft, who achieved the distinction of becoming both President and Chief Justice of the United States.

Childs

Striking similarities are not hard to find. The son has the same remarkable capacity for hard work that was one of his father's chief qualities. In the session of Congress now ending Senator Taft has done the work of three men, moving tirelessly through the routine of committees, party leadership and strategy on the Senate floor.

His name is now attached to the most important piece of legislation to come out of the seven-month session—the Taft-Hartley Act. Whether this has helped him or hurt him as a presidential candidate is debatable. To organized labor he is a fiend incarnate. To many middle-class Americans he is a hero.

Taft is a little uncertain himself as to his standing in the country. With typical forthrightness, he intends to find out after Congress adjourns.

But first he will go for at least a month of vacation to the Taft summer home at Murray Bay in Quebec. At Murray Bay two generations of Tafts, and now a third, have rested and relaxed, away from the glare of public office.

IN EARLY September, the Senator will go out to the Pacific Coast. He will speak on September 13 before the California Bar Association at Santa Cruz, Calif. Presumably there will be other speaking engagements.

On this trial run, Taft will determine what his chances are. His friends say that, far more than most politicians, he has a capacity for self-appraisal. And, if he decides that, as the popularity polls would seem to indicate, his standing is not high, then he will take himself out of the race definitely and finally.

Like his father before him, the Senator is inherently a conservative. I have been reading Henry Pringle's fascinating biography of the elder Taft. That suggests a remarkable parallel in the two careers.

As William Howard Taft became a reluctant candidate for the Presidency, largely at the prompting of his friend Theodore Roosevelt, he was fearful that his labor record would thwart him. As a judge in Cincinnati, Taft had angered labor by several of his decisions. He took a strong line in the bitter days of the Pullman strike in Chicago, when conservative and propertied men were sure that communism was just around the corner.

The elder Taft's letters show how alarmed he was and how insistent on putting down the "anarchists" who were striking against a well-intentioned employer. Then as he succumbed to the presidential ambition, Taft worried for fear that labor would veto his chances.

PRINGLE brings out one aspect of the elder Taft's career that raises him above most men in public life today. That was his patient, unfailing devotion to a thankless task that happened to be of primary importance to America's position before the world.

After the Spanish-American War, his friend, Teddy Roosevelt, sent Taft out to the Philippines at the head of a committee to bring order and civil rule to the islands. The job called for endless patience and perseverance, tact, diplomacy and just plain grit.

Taft displayed all these qualities. Back home the romance of our first imperial adventure was wearing thin. Congress wanted to economize. People were bored with the Philippines and their troubles. But our proconsul in remote Manila stuck to his task even though high appointive office was dangled before his eyes.

He won the love and respect of the Philippine people. Although he was convinced they were not ready for independence, he initiated the first steps in self-government and prepared the way for an independent state which has been such a powerful example throughout the Orient.

If there were more men today with that kind of devotion to public duty, it would not be nearly so difficult to fulfill our obligations around the world. The quality which led the elder Taft to assume burdensome responsibility in a far-distant foreign field—one in which the political rewards seemed nonexistent—is a quality the son might emulate. And so might a great many other Americans who aspire to public office and public trust. The need is far greater now than it was at the turn of the century, when the elder Taft went out to labor in Manila's humid heat.

House Sends Interior Funds Bill to Truman

By The Associated Press

The Senate stamped final congressional approval yesterday on a $194,587,859 Interior Department appropriation, including $89,528,038 for western reclamation projects.

It adopted, without objection, a compromise agreement with the House. The appropriation bill now goes to President Truman.

Senate debate was limited to an appeal by Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) for restoration of funds to pay tuition for 400 children of Federal Reclamation Bureau employes attending Boulder City, Nev., schools.

McCarran said he did not want to see the children without education during the coming year. The Senate-House conferees struck the provision for Federal tuition payments out of the bill.

House Accepts Report

McCarran withdrew his objections after Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.), chairman of the Senate Interior Appropriations Subcommittee, and Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), a committee member, promised to attempt to provide funds for the tuition payments in another appropriation bill.

The House accepted the conference report Monday with only a few voices raised in dissent.

In its final form, the bill provides $194,587,859 of new money for the operation of all programs of the Interior Department during the 12 months ending next June 30. That is $101,500,000, or 34.3 per cent, less than the Budget estimate, but $33,174,000 more than originally voted by the House.

Power Funds Cut

Southwestern Power Administration funds, a stumbling block in the conference committee, were cut to $125,000 for administrative purposes only.

Reclamation projects accounted for 23 million dollars of the 33-million-dollar total increase over original House figures.

Representative Robert F. Jones (R., Ohio), chairman of the House Interior Appropriations Subcommittee, said the $89,500,000 of new funds added to a carry-over of $111,878,000 will give the Reclamation Bureau a $201,400,000 program for the year.

Exports of Coal Reach All-Time High Mark in June

London, July 22 (AP).—American exports of coal to Europe reached an all-time high of more than 3,250,000 metric tons last month, the European coal organization reported today.

The total for June, 3,263,000 tons, compared with 2,820,000 tons for May and 2,865,000 for May, 1946, the two previous highs, and made a grand total of 13,439,000 tons for the first six months of 1947.

Coal production went up slightly in the Ruhr, from 5,179,000 tons to 5,247,000, but dropped in the French-controlled Saar, from 831,000 tons in May to 756,000 in June, the summary showed. Poland, the other main coal exporting European country, raised her output from 4,459,000 tons in May to 4,581,000 in June.

Navy Man Denies Betraying War Prisoners to Japs

New York, July 22 (INS).—A 29-year-old Navy chief signalman, Harold E. Hirshberg of Brooklyn, pleaded not guilty today to charges that he betrayed three of his fellow war prisoners to the Japs—resulting in the torture of all three and the death of one. He made his plea before a general court-martial board at the Naval Shipyard in Brooklyn.

The principal witness against him was Army Captain Richard T. Pullen, jr., of the Presidio, San Francisco, Calif. Pullen kept a diary of Hirshberg's actions when he was ranking officer of the Jap prison camp at Nielson Field, Luzon.

Pullen testified that Hirshberg told him he had a Japanese wife.

House Votes First Big Cut In War Excises

By The Associated Press

The House yesterday voted to wipe out the 20 per cent tax on jewelry selling under $25, but Senate approval is uncertain.

If the bill becomes law, it will be the first major reduction in the wartime excise rate schedule.

However, some House members privately voiced the opinion the Senate would not concur. The bill passed the House without objection at a time when many members were not on the floor.

It also would remove the excise on the first $25 of the price of more costly articles. This would erase the levy completely on a large portion of ornamental jewelry and on flatware that is sold by individual pieces.

The jewelry excise now yields approximately $225,000,000 annually. Congressional tax experts said they could make no accurate estimate of how much the $25 exemption would cut the revenue, except to say it would be "substantial."

On motion of Representative Forand (D., R. I.), the $25 jewelry purchase exemption was tacked onto a bill excluding from excise levies musical instruments sold to religious and nonprofit educational institutions.

In addition, the measure would reduce from 15 per cent to 10 per cent the tax on cameras and unexposed amateur roll films. It would remove the tax of 25 per cent on photographic lenses, apparatus and equipment used in taking, developing, printing or enlarging still or motion pictures.

Bill to Set Up Agency Like FEPC Voted

A Senate Labor subcommittee yesterday approved by a 4-1 vote a bill by Senator Irving Ives (R., N. Y.), aimed at preventing discrimination in employment because of race, creed, color or national origin.

The full committee was not expected to act on the measure at this session, however, and Ives said that there "obviously" would not be time for Senate action.

The bill would set up a national commission against discrimination in employment, somewhat similar to the Fair Employment Practices Commission.

Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.) opposed the bill and said it would "help the Communist movement" if it became law. Subcommittee Chairman Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.), and Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.), approved the purpose of the measure, but said the full Labor Committee should study it further.

Ives and Senator James E. Murray (D., Mont.) favored the bill in its present form.

Disbursing Officer Gets Retirement Date Postponed

The Commissioners yesterday extended the appointment of Chief Disbursing Officer J. R. Lusby to March 1, 1948, six months beyond his legal retirement date.

Lusby has been a District employe for more than 40 years. He said he had requested an extension because he's "still in perfect health and would like to keep on working."

Lusby began his career in the city government in 1906 as a clerk in the disbursing office. He became chief disbursing officer in 1917.

850 Names Officially Assigned To Land and Sea of Antarctic

By The Associated Press

The United States sorted out 850 names yesterday by which future Government maps and documents will identify the land and sea features of the Antarctic.

In general, the old, established titles were retained on the official list presented to Secretary of the Interior Krug by Meredith F. Burrill, director of the Board of Geographical Names.

Large numbers of the names are of European origin. However, some of the new designations include:

Cordell Hull Glacier—named for the former Secretary of State.

The Swanson Mountains—for the late Claude A. Swanson, Secretary of the Navy from 1933 to 1939.

Ochs Is Honored

Ochs Glacier—for the late Adolph S. Ochs, former New York publisher and patron of the first Byrd expedition to the Antarctic.

Sulzberger Bay—for Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times and supporter of both Byrd Antarctic expeditions.

Rupert Coast—for the late Col. Jacob Ruppert, former owner of the New York Yankees. Ruppert provided a ship for the second Byrd expedition.

Place-Names an Old Problem

Burrill told a reporter that the 850-name list constitutes "one third of all the names known to have been applied or proposed in the Antarctic—and all the controversial ones."

"Place-names for the Antarctic have been a problem for more than 100 years," Burrill explained.

"There have been 94 Arctic expeditions, starting with that of Capt. James Cook in 1772. Some of them did a great deal of place-naming, often in ignorance of names already applied or simultaneously being applied by other explorers.

"The size and inaccessibility of the continent have added to the problem. Many of the natural features have a marked similarity, and their appearances vary with the angle of view or from time to time."

Other Names Approved

Other names approved by the board include:

Cooper Glacier at the Ross ice shelf named by the first Byrd Antartic expedition in 1929 for Kent Cooper, executive director and general manager of the Associated Press.

Finley Ridge between the end of Bingham Glacier and Lurabee Glacier on the Palmer Peninsula, discovered by Sir Hubert Wilkins in 1928 and named for Dr. John H. Finley of the New York Times, then president of the American Geographical Society.

George Bryan Coast, a portion of the coast along the southern shore of the Bellingshausen Sea named for Rear Admiral George S. Bryan, Navy hydrographer.

House Approves Oil Exports Bill

The House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday a bill to forbid exports of oil and gasoline if they interfere with National defense or security, or impair civilian supplies.

The Merchant Marine Committee sponsored the measure after an inquiry into shipment of petroleum products to Russia.

The bill would bar exports of gasoline, Diesel, bunker and lubricating oils unless the Secretary of Commerce certifies that they will not injure defense, security or civilian supplies.

THE SHAPING OF THE AMERICAN TRADITION

By LOUIS M. HACKER

"If really we are to know the heritage which has been passed down to us—to know it intimately and dearly...it is imperative that such books be read from cover to cover. Not only will such reading prove singularly rewarding for its entertainment value, but it will also prove gratifyingly revealing."

Vote Probe Waits as Congress Speeds 'Musts'

for an investigation by the House Judiciary Committee.

Senate Republican steersmen meanwhile added two more minor measures to their "must" list.

One of these, added at the request of Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), would reincorporate the Inter-American Institute, which handles cooperative health and sanitation work in South America.

The other, solidly backed by Western Senators, is the House-approved bill extending the Government's support program for copper, lead and zinc.

Others Awaiting Action

Other "must" measures awaiting action include the agriculture supply bill approved by conferees yesterday; the Army, Independent Offices and Government corporations money bills still in conference; the Army-Navy unification measure, and a bill freezing Social Security taxes at present levels.

Four additional "must" appropriation bills, including the foreign aid measure carrying Greek-Turkish aid funds and famine relief appropriations, still haven't passed the Senate.

The President's Reorganization Plan No. 3, rejected by the House but made effective by Senate approval yesterday, groups Federal housing agencies and functions in a Housing and Home Finance Agency.

Taft Regretful

Three constituent agencies—the Home Loan Bank Board, the Federal Housing Administration and the Public Housing Administration—each would maintain their individual identity and be responsible for operation of their own programs.

Senate Republican Steersman Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), coauthor of the Wagner-Ellender-Taft housing bill Congress will leave behind in the adjournment rush, joined Democratic leaders in supporting the housing agency merger. He said he regrets Congress failed to develop "a definite housing policy."

He said that should be one of the main congressional considerations next adding, "We should have a single housing agency to recommend one housing policy."

Taft termed arguments that the merger favors public as against private housing "completely fantastic." He said the Government already is lending 90 per cent of the money for FHA housing, with most of the private housing people committed to that form of Government help. Taft said he thought President Truman is as likely to name a private housing man as a public housing man to serve as administrator of the unified agencies.

Byrd Leads Attack

Senator Harry Flood Byrd (D., Va.) led the attack on the merger plan, charging that it fails to reduce overlappings and duplications and "does not reduce expenses."

"An over-all agency always costs more instead of eliminating and consolidating Government functions," said Byrd.

Senator Moses, in his unsuccessful fight to postpone action on the conference-compromised National Science foundation bill, urged restoration next January of his Senate-approved amendment earmarking 25 per cent of the foundation's funds for tax-supported State institutions.

Democrats Back Morse

He said there could be no harm in waiting until next year, since Congress will not provide funds for the program until its return.

Senators Kilgore (D., W. Va.); O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.); Lucas (D., Ind.); Russell (D., Ga.) and Fulbright (D., Ark.) supported Morse's position. Fulbright particularly attacked the proposed administrative setup, under which the part time board itself, and not the President, would name the chairman.

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.), supported by Senator Taft, told the Senate there would be no National Science Foundation at all if action was postponed. They said the House wouldn't accept the Morse amendment.

Body of Ex-Wac Missing; Husband Buried in Alaska

The fate of Mrs. Balford D. Housel, former Washington Wac, who apparently drowned with her husband near Anchorage, Alaska, will still undetermined yesterday, relatives here said.

The body of Housel, former War Department employe and soldier, was found Sunday and will be buried temporarily in Alaska pending determination of his wife's fate. Both will be buried in Arlington Cemetery when her body is found, her mother, Mrs. Zella B. Carpenter, 2503 14th st. nw., said yesterday.

Housel, a native of Rocky Hill, N. J., and his wife went to Alaska about a year ago and were last heard from when they started for an island near Homer, Alaska, aboard an 18-foot cruiser.

Pullmans Get Around

Chicago (U.P.).—During 1946, the average Pullman car traveled 186,277 miles—a distance equal to almost seven and one-half trips around the world. All told, the Pullmans, carrying their biggest peace-time load in history, traveled 1,236,000,000 car miles. Each of the 6,637 cars operated by the sleeping car company averaged 510 miles a day.

Youth Released In Accidental Killing of Father

Don H. Cleaver, 17, of 468 G st. sw., was released by police yesterday when Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of accidental death in the fatal shooting of the boy's father, Glenn G. Cleaver, 38, of Landover, Md.

A .32-caliber revolver accidentally went off Monday night while the son displayed the gun to his father at a family gathering, according to police.

Wounded in the chest, the victim, a Capital Transit Co. streetcar driver, died soon after arrival at Emergency Hospital.

Chest Committee Discusses Survey Reports, Doesn't Act

The executive committee of the Community Chest of Washinggton, in regular session yesterday, discussed, but took no action, on recently released reports of a citizens' committee survey of Chest activities.

Lee D. Butler, Chest president, said the "various reports" were considered, but that the committee decided "to continue such discussions" at another meeting, in the near future.

The "various reports" included a majority report signed by 15 members of the 25-member survery committee, which laid down six general recommendations for improving Community Chest operations. Three of the 15 later withdrew and sided with the committee members who dissented, claiming the majority recommendations were too general and ambiguous.

A minority report, signed by the remaining six committee members recommended that the Chest and the Council of Social Agencies sever relations and that 22 individual agencies be dropped from Chest rolls. That "extreme" position was also criticized by the dissenters, who made no immediate recommendations of their own.

The Citizens Chest Survey Committee was instituted at the request of the Community Chest organization last March and studied Chest operations here for four months before releasing its reports last week.

The majority report, later reduced, recommended a larger Chest board of directors, year-round public relations, a grievance committee to receive and act upon complaints, periodic surveys of Chest agency activities, denial of Chest support to "controversial" charities, and a complete survey of the entire social welfare set-up in the Greater Washington area.

Garmatz May Get in 1 Vote: Adjournment

If everything clicks, Edward A. Garmatz will take his new seat in the House in time for about one vote—adjournment.

Garmatz, a Democrat, has been certified as winner of Maryland's Third Congressional District special election July 15 to fill the seat vacated when Thomas D'Alesandro became Mayor of Baltimore.

It is rapidly becoming a race between Garmatz taking his seat and Congress' rushing for Saturday adjournment.

Swearing-in ceremonies were delayed in Annapolis yesterday when Governor Lane's signature was lacking on the election certificate. Lane is en route from Denver and the certificate was sent to him by airmail.

If it arrives in time, Lane gets it, signs it and puts it in the mail, Garmatz may claim the House seat today.

That is, if Harry F. Klinefelter's proposed investigation doesn't develop. Klinefelter, a Baltimore Republican, has complained to House Speaker Martin of "inaccuracies" in Garmatz' campaign expenditures and seeks an investigation before he is seated.

Lawyers Guild Hits Postoffice for 'Prying'

Baltimore, July 22 (AP).—The Baltimore City Chapter of the National Lawyers Guild protested today what it termed "prying into the mails of various persons" by the Post Office Department in this area.

The guild, in a letter signed by President I. Duke Avnet and addressed to Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.) chairman of the Civil Service Commission, asked for an investigation and said it was "prepared to present . . . the proof of this practice."

(Avnet told The Washington Post yesterday he was "not prepared at this time to amplify the letter" but added he knew of no other instances of its kind elsewhere.

(Senator Langer said he has not received the letter, but "if those are the charges, they certainly will have an opportunity to be heard before the proper subcommittee."

(Acting Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson said he "has no knowledge of any such happening.")

Avnet's letter said "complaints have been received by the Baltimore chapter of the guild against certain practices prevailing in the Post Office Department. The complaints are concerned with charges that the Post Office Department in Baltimore is prying into the mails of various persons without any authority of justification."

Baltimore Postmaster Neal A. Sibley said he knew "nothing whatever about it." "We don't pry into anyone's mail," he asserted. "We deliver it."

The resolution carried by 51 to 3.

Psychiatrist Sees Mrs. Ingalls

San Diego, Calif., July 22 (AP).—Mrs. Elizabeth Ingalls, 62, convicted of enslaving her Negro housemaid, today underwent a psychiatric examination in the county jail.

The findings, as well as a report from a probation officer on facts regarding Mrs. Ingalls not brought out in the four-week trial, will be before Federal Judge Jacob Weinberger next Tuesday to help him determine sentence. Maximum penalty is five years' imprisonment and $5000 fine.

Fuse Saved Hitler

London, July 22 (AP).—Dr. Otto John, a German doing special work for the British Foreign Office, told a London meeting last night that Adolf Hitler escaped assassination in March of 1943 only because an English-made fuse failed to set off a bomb smuggled into his private plane.

Ruling in Md. Vote Contest Awaits Sept. 1

The Senate subcommittee investigating the contested election of Senator Herbert O'Conor (D., Md.) will meet shortly after September 1 to decide methods of reviewing challenged ballots.

Senator William E. Jenner (R., Ind.) committee chairman, said yesterday that his group may subpena witnesses and hold hearings on alleged fraud and irregularities in the election if evidence warrants such action. He said he expects completion of a recount of ballots in 17 Maryland counties within a week.

O'Conor's election last November is challenged by his Republican opponent, D. John Markey. Markey's attorney, Charles Ruzicka, has estimated that the total number of disputed ballots in the 17 counties would approximate 60,000. O'Conor won by an official State margin of 2232 votes.

Senator Jenner also indicated yesterday that investigation of alleged fraud in last year's senatorial election in West Virginia may eventually include the whole State and may not be completed until "well into next year."

The subcommittee presently is delving into ballots cast in 12 West Virginia counties in the election of Senator Harley M. Kilgore, Democrat, over Thomas Sweeney, Republican, by a margin of about 3500 votes. The 12 counties cast 43 per cent of the 500,000 total votes in the disputed election.

Preliminary West Virginia investigations, Jenner said, indicated that "a large number" of ballots were bought for money and for whisky by both Republicans and Democrats.

Meeting to Discuss Child Labor Law

Roanoke, Va., July 22 (AP).—Virginia's child labor law and proposed amendments to it will be discussed here tomorrow. The amendments have been proposed by the Virginia Child Labor Committee, composed of representatives from community groups throughout the State.

Briefly, the amendments would: (1) raise the minimum age for employment from 14 to 16 years "during school hours," and in manufacturing or mechanical establishments at any times; (2) prohibit work for longer than five consecutive hours without a 30-minute lunch period; and (3) improve methods of issuing employment certificates to those judged unable to benefit from further school attendance.

Tomorrow's meeting will be attended by persons interested in the child labor problem. The Virginia Child Labor Committee was organized at a State conference on child labor in May.

Hotel, Apartment Inspection Fees To Be Continued

Present hotel inspection fees will be continued another year while District officials draw up a new set of regulations, the Commissioners ruled yesterday.

A bill now awaiting the President's signature will give the Commissioners the right to classify hotels, apartment houses and rooming houses and set licensing fees.

Present fees of $18 for hotels and $15 for apartment and rooming houses will continue in effect until November, 1948, they said.

Owners must file applications by August 15 for the license year beginning November 1, License Superintendent Edward Bailey, jr., announced.

The Gallup Poll

Voters Back Marshall Plan, But Cringe at Higher Taxes

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 22.—The first Nation-wide sounding of public opinion on the Marshall Plan reveals that a large majority of voters who have heard or read about the plan approve it. There is a willingness to see the United States spend large sums of money to carry it out.

The groups in the population who are best informed about the plan are the most in favor of it.

Those facts are shown in a coast-to-coast institute survey. Parallel surveys just completed in two representative nations in Europe, France and Holland, by overseas affiliates of the Gallup Poll find that public sentiment there is overwhelmingly in favor of the Marshall Plan, and that the French and Dutch people are better informed about the plan than are voters in this country. To them, of course, the proposal offers a way out of acute economic hardships.

American public opinion on the Marshall Plan is being closely watched by leaders here and abroad. The fate of millions of people in Europe may depend on how we react to the plan and whether American opinion will approve the spending of billions of dollars for the plan when the showdown comes in Congress.

The survey reveals these five salient points about public reaction to date:

1—About half the voters (49 per cent) polled say they have heard or read about the Marshall Plan, which Secretary of State George C. Marshall first outlined thoroughly in June in a speech at Harvard University. The plan is an invitation to European nations to get together and determine the needs of all the countries on the continent. Secretary Marshall stated that this country would then see what it could do to provide funds for economic recovery on the basis of a total European balance sheet rather than by piecemeal dealings with each country as at present.

The proportion familiar with the plan will presumably increase as news and discussion about it continues.

2—The majority of voters who have heard about the plan indicate support of the idea of giving European countries credit of about five billion dollars annually to buy things they need in this country.

The five billion dollar figure is one of the general estimates given in informal discussions recently as to what the Marshall proposal might cost. The exact figure is not yet known.

3—While sentiment toward the plan is favorable, this does not mean that there will not be a big fight if the plan is going to require raising money by extra taxation.

Public support for the plan would decline sharply if taxes had to go up to support it. Fewer than half the voters familiar with the plan would be willing to pay such extra taxes, today's survey finds. In short, public support of the plan so far is conditioned largely on its being paid for out of current Government revenues.

4. The survey brings to light the fact that understanding of the plan and support for it are lowest among voters with the least education and those in the lower economic levels. Of people with only a grade school education or no schooling who have heard of the plan, fewer than half favor it, as compared with two out of every three persons who have had college training. A similar split has been found in other surveys involving the issue of aid to Europe, notably in the case of the British loan last year.

In short, the people whose tax payments are largest on a per capita basis and who would therefore personally contribute the most under the Marshall Plan are the most in favor of it. Those on whom the burden would fall least show the greatest opposition.

5—The State Department decision to go ahead with the plan despite Russia's refusal to cooperate struck a responsive chord in American opinion. Of those who have heard about the plan, an overwhelming proportion, eight out of every ten, said that European nations should go ahead without Russia.

* * * *

PUBLIC OPINION on the historic Marshall Plan was sounded in a series of questions designed to measure attitudes, both quantitatively and qualitatively. The questions sought to bring out what people know about the subject, what their general attitudes are, how they react to specific proposals and how much economic sacrifice they are willing to see this country make to aid Europe.

The questions and the replies of the voters are as follows:

Have you heard or read about the Marshall plan for helping Europe get back on its feet?

Yes	49%
No	51

Among voters who have had college training seven in every ten had heard about the plan, as compared with five in ten among people with high school training only and about four in ten among those with grade school or no schooling.

All who had heard about the plan were asked the following questions:

What is your opinion of the plan?

Approve	57%
Disapprove	21
No opinion	22

By education levels the vote was:

	College	High School	Grade School or No School
Approve	67%	55%	49%
Disapprove	17	22	27
No opinion	16	23	24

Would you favor or oppose giving European countries credit of about five billion dollars a year so that they could buy the things they need in this country?

Favor	55%
Oppose	35
No opinion	10

Would you be willing to pay more taxes, if necessary, to raise this money?

Yes, would be willing	41%
No, would not	50
No opinion	9

More than seven out of every 10 voters polled in France and Holland by the French and Dutch Gallup Polls have heard about the Marshall Plan, as compared with 49 per cent of America's voters.

French support for the plan is overwhelming among those expressing an opinion.

Poll in France

Do you think that France should go along with the plan?

Yes	47%
No	6
No opinion	47

In Holland, when voters familiar with the plan whether Holland ought to cooperate the votes was as follows:

Yes, cooperate	75%
No	16
No opinion	9

Chief opposition to the plan was expressed by Dutch Communist voters polled.

IN FULL BLOOM—Jimmy Williams, 7, of 217 Adams st. ne., gazes at day-blooming tropical water lilies now at the height of their glory in the Kenilworth Aquatic Gardens. Equally brilliant displays may be seen at Rawlins Park, 18th and E sts. nw.; Meridian Hill Park, 16th st. and Florida ave. nw., and at Chevy Chase Circle

Washington's unique water lily displays in the National Capital parks are now at their peak, Irving C. Root, park superintendent, said yesterday that the tender day and night-blooming nymphaea and the American, Chinese and Egyptian lotus have reached full bloom.

The Kenilworth Aquatic Gardens, where 35 individual pools produce a daily total of approximately 3000 blooms of 80 individual varieties, offer the rare yellow water poppy, as well as the city's only display of lotus blossoms.

In addition to the Kenilworth Gardens, Kenilworth ave. and Douglas st. ne., tropical displays are featured in Rawlins Park, 18th and E sts. nw.; Meridian Hill Park, 16th st. and Florida ave. nw.; Chevy Chase Circle, Connecticut ave. at the D. C.-Md. boundary, and the small pool east of the Lincoln Memorial Reflecting Pool, southwest of 17th st. and Constitution ave. nw.

Although the water lilies make their best display from 8 a. m. until noon, park officials also recommend visits during evening hours to observe the night-blooming varieties.

Air Crash Victim Dead When Son Returns With Aid

Wertzville, Pa., July 22 (AP).—State police today found a Pennsylvanian dead in wreckage of a plane atop a mountain after his son who survived the crash crawled through dense underbrush nearly 24 hours to bring aid.

The dead man, A. N. Meek sr., Johnstown, and his 20-year-old son, A. N. Meek jr., crashed in a severe rainstorm yesterday while en route home from Ocean City, Md.

Young Meek said the small plane plowed into a clump of trees, hurling his father from the craft while his own safety belt caught in some branches.

Meek said he made his father as comfortable as possible and then started off on his night-long, nightmarish search for help.

Fairfax County Court Orders More Details on Power Line

Virginia Electric Power Co.'s plan to string a 110,000-watt transmission line across 17 miles of Fairfax County hit a snag yesterday in Fairfax County Circuit Court.

The company, which appeared to ask that commissioners be appointed to carry out a condemnation petition filed two months ago, was told to specify in its petition the exact nature of the work to be done.

An attorney for 21 property holders over whose land the line would pass asserted the pending petition failed to give an accurate picture of the damage that might be done to the property.

Judge Paul E. Brown ordered that the company submit within 15 days an amended petition specifying (1) location of poles or towers in relation to the center of the 225-foot right-of-way; (2) type of pole to be used, its maximum height, and the measurement of its base; (3) minimum and maximum height of wires, to be measured at the poles; (4) maximum voltage to be sent through the wires, to be measured at the poles; (4) maximum voltage to be sent through the wires and (5) that there will be no buildings on the right-of-way.

The court will hold a hearing on the amended petition September 4. Brown also ruled the company could proceed with condemnation without a zoning permit. Such a permit was granted last winter by the county, but later rescinded. The constitutionality of the county zoning ordinance is now in dispute before the courts.

Zing, comes the swing to your sweetheart

How's that Buick sweetheart of yours? Still giving out with that eager Fireball power surge at a toe-touch? Still answering every light finger-touch on the wheel?

Most likely you'll answer, "It's doing very nicely, thank you." But years have a way of whittling away at performance — sometimes so slowly you don't notice it.

So you can be in for a whopping surprise.

Just wheel your car into our shop and treat it to some real Buick care. The kind of care that comes from men who are truly fond of Buicks — who know what they can do and like to bring out all their oomph and go.

Let these men of ours test and tune your Buick with their special Buick tools. Let them replace anything that's worn with the right Buick-engineered part. Then, ZING, back comes the swing to your sweetheart.

Job for job, Buick car care costs no more than ordinary service. So, what's to lose? Come in to us whether it's for a tune-up, major or minor repair or regular lubrication. Your car rates it.

GEOMETRY? Ugh! But here it means Extra Comfort

Buicks take turns without swing or sway. This means more comfort and less fatigue every mile you travel. And you can credit that to the geometry of Buick front-wheel suspension.

The wheels are designed to bank slightly on curves—the inside wheel turns a degree or two sharper than the outside one. And they're hung at an angle that lets them give slightly to cushion road shocks.

So good Buick front-wheel service is a job for men who know Buick front-wheel action—who have Buick-approved checking equipment—who have at hand any needed Buick-engineered parts.

Another example of why Buick care keeps Buicks best. Whether it's for wheel alignment or any other attention, bring your car to us. We'll show you the difference between ordinary service and Buick car care.

Atom in a Mason Jar

Short Outweighs Little's Feature

By Richard L. Coe

THE LITTLE APPEARS to be having a mild case of schizophrenia. Its new bill is a lightweight feature and a heavyweight short.

James Mason is appearing in one of that endless chain of British films which pepper his past, "They Met in the Dark," a wartime comedy-melodrama whose most engaging character is a sappy heroine.

"One World or None," an eight-minute short, is the other side of the Little's currently split personality. As ably narrated and written by Raymond Swing, it is a stirring reminder of the atom and the many nationalities which played a part in developing our terrifying bomb. Nothing in it is particularly new to anyone who has kept up with The Thing, but there's virtue in the fact that such a reminder exists at all. It's a short that should be shown in every theater in the world, but probably won't be.

Alongside Swing's brief report, the Mason picture seems even milder adventure than it is. Its humor is veddy British, with cracks about ENSA, settings in Blackpool and Liverpool and a night club chorus line that must be purposefully satirical.

But its charm, as we've said, lies in a daft heroine delightfully played by Joyce Howard. The reason we liked her probably is that so many of our recent heroines have been so darned clever they knew enough to murder their husbands or else that they were only acting dumb, slyly informing the audience that the player knew the character was pretty silly and wanted you to be assured of her own personal brightness.

Mild, Modest, Uncritical

Not so Miss Howard. The girl's obviously a pretty idiot and such honesty is fairly refreshing. The adventures she gets into involve a cashiered Navy officer from whom a spy ring has stolen secret orders. (Some clue to the picture's essential modesty probably lies in the fact that the orders were merely "secret," not even "top secret," to say nothing of more superior classifications.)

Mason will possibly jolt his admirers by appearing at first in a beard, a far more luxuriant one than he sported as King David in last winter's short-lived play. But before very long he embarks on a clean shave, leaving his sullen features open for all to see.

Akchully, "They Met in the Dark is goodish escape, particularly if you can convince yourself these British are spoofing themselves, which probably is why we liked it in our mild, uncritical humor. There's really not much use going into it one way or the other. It won't do you any good but it certainly won't hurt you.

"GOING NATIVE'S" first auditions will be held Friday evening, August 1, at 7:30 in the auditorium of the National Press Club . . . Spots in the Capitol's homegrown stage revue will be open to both amateurs and professionals who claim a local residence . . . Producer Gene Ford plans to go into rehearsals about August 15, with the first performance hitting the Capitol stage Thursday, August 26.

ALL-SPORTS shows are getting to be a Trans-Lux habit . . . So successful was that first one of several weeks ago that another on a grander scale is in the works, opening tomorrow . . . Dutch Bergman will do his nightly WRC show from the Trans-Lux lobby, interviewing Turk Edwards at 6:30 Thursday and, he hopes, Ossie Bluege at the same time Tuesday . . . The shorts include a second in the "Monarchs of the Ring" series, "Diamond Gals," with an all-girl softball team; Joe Kirkwood, in some of his trick golf shots, and a badminton report . . . Closed, of course, with a Walt Disney on the Olympic Games.

KING-SMITH Studio schedules a summer program for tomorrow night in its novel little theater at the rear of 2118 Massachusetts ave. . . . Chekov's "The Proposal" opens the evening, followed by "Vogue," written by an evidently anonymous King-Smith student, and a scene from "one of Shakespeare's plays," which, according to our guess, could be "Romeo and Juliet," since John W. Warren and Virginia Jeffreys of the school staff are slated to do it in what they describe as "modern circumstances."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Ruhr Coal Output Sabotage Charged

By Drew Pearson

Secretary of State George Marshall took no chances on press leaks when he agreed to confer on "German rehabilitation problems" last week with a congressional group led by Representative Adolph Sabath of Illinois, white-thatched, 81-year-old dean of the House.

Sabath

"This is an unusual meeting, for I seldom confer with members of Congress except when I am called before a committee on some matter," Marshall reminded his callers. "Therefore, everything said here must be considered strictly off-the-record."

Events justified this precaution, for the Secretary of State found himself caught in a swirling, three-hour controversy, during which the 10 Congressmen bluntly charged that certain State Department and Army occupation officials were conniving with former Nazi interests to rebuild Germany into another potential war menace. The 10 Congressmen were Sabath of Illinois, Folger of North Carolina, Huber of Ohio, Madden of Indiana, Morris of Oklahoma, Blatnik of Minnesota, Sadowski of Michigan, Holifield and Douglas of California and Eberharter of Pennsylvania, all Democrats.

Each of the 10 put questions to Marshall as the meeting opened. He made notes and then answered the questions in order.

Marshall took up in detail Sadowski's complaint that German coal production is only 40 per cent of the prewar capacity, explaining at first that many of the mines were bombed. However, the Michigan Congressman interrupted to say that only 15 important mines were bombed and they had been back in operation for a year and a half.

German Coal Sabotage

When Marshall started to comment on the importance of a hearty diet for work in the mines, Sadowski cut him off again:

"The German miner is getting 4000 calories a day, Mr. Secretary. The Polish miner is working on an average diet of 3500 calories—and he is producing 50 per cent more coal. I don't think there is any doubt that the slowdown in German coal production is the result of deliberate sabotage, designed to prevent the industrial recovery of non-German countries before Germany has herself recovered."

Sadowski added that German coal production is largely under the direction of a Dr. Lahr, now Minister-President of the North Rhine province. Dr. Lahr served the Nazis as a key official in coal and steel production. Only recently, reminded Sadowski, Lahr said publicly that since German steel production has been limited, there is no need for top-speed production of coal.

Marshall finally admitted that the coal program is not working, and that correction is needed. Hastily he passed on to Sadowski's question about the break-up of the German war potential. The war plants, he said, are broken up except for chemical plants now needed for fertilizer.

General Marshall complained that denazification is a tough problem and calls for much personnel.

"We're between the whirlpool and the rock," he said. "Germany must be rebuilt if we are ever to be able to bring our troops out of there and stop spending billions of dollars. We know that the cost of maintaining Germany must fall to us—England and Russia can't and won't pay it. The big question is, how far we should go in rebuilding Germany."

Why Herbert Hoover

Marshall is sparing in his comments on individuals prominent in the German picture. European Theater Commander Gen. Lucius Clay, he said, is "strictly a general, not a politician. He has a 'zone complex.' He's out to do the very best job he can in administering the American zone. He has no political viewpoint."

Marshall replied also to complaints that former President Hoover and John Foster Dulles have too much to say about the policy in Germany. He laughed when 81-year-old Adolph Sabath sputtered that Hoover was "dominating" our policy in Germany.

"Judge Patterson (Secretary of War) urged that Mr. Hoover be assigned to study the European situation," Marshall said. "It was frankly a political move based on the feeling that Hoover would carry great weight with the Republican Congress.

"Mr. Hoover went over there mainly to work on the food problem, and while he was there he met on his own with German industrialists and with representatives of American business who were in Germany. It was on the basis of those conversations that he brought back his recommendations regarding the revival of German industry."

Marshall made little comment on Dewey's foreign affairs adviser Dulles, beyond a reference to Dulles' influence with the Republican Congress.

"Mr. Hoover and Mr. Dulles are not running the State Department and will not as long as I am Secretary," he said.

"Well, they are supplying information on which your policies are based," argued Chicago's Sabath. "Mr. Secretary, you are hearing only one side, the position of those who are anxious to rebuild a nation that lost the first war with us, almost won the second and is now being helped to prepare for a third war."

Marshall's attention was further directed to the fact that the chief economic adviser to General Clay is Gen. William H. Draper, jr., formerly of Dillon Read and Co., the financial firm that "floated a loan of 125 million dollars to Germany in 1926 in order to set up the largest European steel combine, the Vereingte Stahlwerke."

Another Dillon Read-er who has played a strategic part in the industrial rebuilding of Germany, Marshall was reminded, is Paul H. Nitze, deputy director of the State Department's international trade policy.

Dulles Represented Farben

Sabath and his colleagues charged that Dulles once "represented" the giant German cartel, I. G. Farben, in the disposition of its property by the Alien Property Custodian. If he, Herbert Hoover and the Dillon Read clique continue to exercise a dominating influence in German relations, they declared, we will again be faced with cartels between U. S. and German industries similar to prewar days.

For General Draper, however, Marshall had nothing but praise.

"Draper, while the war was on, wanted nothing so much as to command an infantry division, and finally I assigned him one in France. But Secretary Stimson and Judge Patterson (then Undersecretary of War) and lots of other people insisted that they needed Draper and only Draper to work on renegotiation of contracts, so finally I had to countermand the order and keep him here."

Marshall said Draper did not want the job he now has, but that he was serving because those were his orders.

Marshall contended the inside reports his callers had heard on Germany "are not as serious as you have been led to believe," but ventured no outright denials except on the Hoover-Dulles charges and the contention by Sabath that the rehabilitation of Germany, as proposed by Hoover, would mean rebuilding her into another "war potential."

No one representing the State Department wanted to see that happen again, said Marshall.

His further promise to "look into" various charges made during the meeting—the furthest he would go—did not satisfy his callers. They wanted a definite assurance that Germany would not be allowed to expand industrially, at the expense of France and other victim nations, and would be required to meet in full her reparation obligations under the Potsdam agreement.

Both Minnesota's Blatnik, who three times parachuted behind Tito's lines, together with Indiana's Madden and Sadowski, pointed out that a great many citizens of European birth in their districts are very much aware of the dangers of German militarism and greatly disturbed that it is not being eradicated.

"They're not sure," Sadowski said at one point, "that we really aim to carry out the Potsdam agreement."

Agreement Appears Nearer In Arnold Bus Wage Dispute

Settlement of the 71-day-old wage dispute between the Arnold Bus Co. and Drivers' Local 1097 appeared closer last night as three arbitrators prepared for a second round of negotiations at the Labor Department.

James Holden and James J. O'Byrne, Labor Department conciliators handling the case, said they were hopeful "something favorable will develop" in today's meeting.

Arbitrator for the Arnold Lines is Douglas Hatch; for the AFL Union, Eli Oliver. Attorney John E. Dwyer was picked by both parties as third abritrator.

The three first met Monday to hear labor's side of the dispute, which began May 12 with a union demand for a flat 38-cent increase for its drivers.

The pay hike proposal would lift wages of drivers with less than a year's experience from 97 cents to $1.35 hourly. Other drivers' wages would jump from $1.07 to $1.45 an hour.

The union also seeks severance pay, three weeks' paid vacation time for all employes with more than five years' service, and overtime pay for all work in excess of eight hours.

Meanwhile, officials of the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co. were scheduled to meet with the union this morning to head off a threatened strike of 260 company bus drivers at midnight Saturday.

Although negotiations between the two groups have been deadlocked since the union notified Gov. William Tuck of its intention to strike five weeks ago, company officials have expressed hope that agreement might be reached this week.

Chicago and Northern Illinois . . . Future Medical Capital of the World

Already known throughout the world for its schools of medicine, institutes of scientific research, and large, well-staffed hospitals, the Chicago and Northern Illinois area will continue to attract important men of medicine from the world over.

Today, the area is the site of four medical and three dental schools of highest standing. Practical training is carried on in the 174 hospitals, and 27 sanitariums and infirmaries containing 71,349 beds. Here, also, are the homes of a dozen national and international organizations in medicine and related fields. The territory is now the world center for medical information . . . more than forty medical and allied journals are published here.

Within the next few years, Chicago and Northern Illinois is destined to rank above all the great medical centers in history. Three tremendous expansion programs are far beyond the planning stage with most of the land for the buildings already purchased. Public and private sources have pledged additional funds for the establishment of new medical facilities, hospitals and laboratories to cover many acres of land and to cost hundreds of millions of dollars.

In the Medical Center District project, the University of Illinois and Loyola University, the State Department of Public Welfare and the Veterans' Administration will erect a community of new buildings for the study of public health, industry and aviation medicine. In another of these vast programs, Northwestern University plans ten new buildings, including an Institute for Medical Research in such fields as heart ailments, cancer and high blood pressure. Other buildings in this group will enlarge the facilities for special medical studies, hospital care and the nursing school. As part of this project the Veterans' Administration will erect a hospital, and Mercy Hospital will install a one thousand bed hospital unit and a research center.

At the University of Chicago still another of these expansion programs is under way. Four new clinic buildings and four buildings for atomic research, including the Institute of Radiobiology and Bio-physics, will be added. Extensive investigation will be conducted into the new possibilities in medicine, particularly in cancer, opened by the development of atomic research. Throughout all of Chicago and Northern Illinois many other groups have announced plans totaling more than 200 million dollars for hospital facilities.

Students and doctors seeking opportunities for research, advanced study, and actual training under foremost physicians and surgeons will turn to the many hospitals and schools here. As the land is being cleared in multi-million dollar programs, and as the finest hospital and laboratory equipment in the world pours in, future world leadership in the field of medicine is assured for Chicago and Northern Illinois.

Wynn Hurls 2-Hitter, Nats Win, 6 to 1

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

PERHAPS YOU NOTICED that Ted Williams has begun to climb and is now the fourth leading hitter in the American League with a .327 average. All of a sudden Joe DiMaggio and Lou Boudreau are discovering it's not a private fight between themselves for the league batting championship.

POVICH

DiMaggio is still up front with .340, three points better than Boudreau, and in third place is George Kell of the Tigers, but it's a menacing move that Williams is making. He's lifted his average nearly 30 points in the last three weeks while the leaders have been virtually holding fixed marks.

With all due respect to DiMaggio and Boudreau, the league's pitchers have always regraded Williams as the best hitter in the league. Even when he wasn't hitting, .300 on June 1, they were more wary of him than any other hitter. They've been walking him with a frequency that threatens Babe Ruth's record for passes in a single year. Neither DiMaggio nor Boudreau are pitched to so painstakingly.

If Williams does, indeed, capture the batting title this year it will be a special sort of personal triumph for him. Virtually every club in the league has adopted the Boudreau shift to right against him.

WILLIAMS' AVERAGE is climbing despite his own stubbornness in scorning the wide open spaces of left field created by the Boudreau shift. After one brief attempt to hit to left earlier in the season, Williams has abandoned the whole idea and is now reverting to his native style of pull hitting. He's still losing many a hit because of the special defenses rigged against him, but there's no defense for all of his swats.

Manager Joe Cronin concedes that Williams is an incorrigible right-field hitter. Cronin attempted to persuade Williams to hit to left all during spring training at Sarasota, Fla., without success. The Boudreau shift was a challenge to Williams' pride in his hitting and he was determined to show it up.

The formula for the pitchers now is to throw the ball inside to Williams and dare him to pull it to right. The fact that he has compiled a .327 average under those conditions is testimony of the fellow's skill. He doesn't like the walks he gets. One day when the Browns' pitcher walked him for the fourth time he told Umpire Red Jones, "Hell, I'm not having any fun, I might just as well go back to the hotel."

WHEN LOU BOUDREAU led the league in hitting in 1944 with a .327 average he was regarded as something of a flash-in-the-pan champion. He never attained that figure before, and it was one of the lowest averages to lead the league. But in more recent seasons Boudreau has been regarded as one of the most dangerous clouters in the circuit.

Boudreau is the self-made hitter of the top men. He was rated something of a push-over at bat when he first joined the Indians from Buffalo and was batting seventh. He hit out of a funny crouch, as he still does, and there was no indication that he ever would become a solid sort of hitter, but that's what he is now. By application and perseverance he made himself a good hitter, as did Joe Cronin, who was one of the world's worst at the outset of his big league career.

Six years ago when Bucky Harris managed the Nats and they moved into Cleveland, Harris warned his pitchers, "If you throw Boudreau a fast ball, I'll fine you $50." Boudreau murdered the Nats' curve-ball pitching, and on the next trip Harris reversed himself. "If you throw Boudreau a curve, I'll fine you 50. Give him nothing but fast balls."

GEORGE KELL OF THE Tigers, who is third in the race, is not exactly out of place with his .328 average. He batted .322 last year and in the minor leagues he once hit .400. There's been no tendency, however, to rate him with DiMaggio and Williams heretofore. He's the smallest guy among the top group and is denied the same advantage of the fences, but the Tigers have him hitting in the clean-up spot and he could take it all if the leaders slump.

But if Williams is to win the batting title, Joe DiMaggio appears the man he must beat out. Williams has consistently outhit DiMaggio in previous seasons but DiMaggio has superior footwork away from the plate that helps him to beat out ground balls. Williams is more of a streak hitter, however, without DiMaggio's everyday consistency.

DiMaggio has one feat to his credit at least equal if not superior to Williams' .406 average of 1941. That was his record of batting safely in 56 consecutive games. Dutch Leonard had him apparently stopped after 51 games when DiMag in his last turn at bat reached for a low pitch outside and preserved his streak with an incredible single into left field.

MODERN PONY BOY—Times have changed (it says here). The West isn't quite so horsey as it was in the days of Buffalo Bill. Nowadays many small fry like Donny Emery, jr., 6, of Burbank, Calif., grow up on a motorcycle. And can they take the bounces

Tebbetts' Hit Defeats Chisox, 3-2

Boston, July 22 (AP).—Dom DiMaggio came home on a double by Catcher Birdie Tebbetts today to give the Red Sox a tenth-inning 3-2 win over the Chicago White Sox, who have lost all six games in Boston this season.

Red Sox Pitcher Joe Dobson picked up his eleventh win against five losses for the year and big bat honors for Boston went to Johnny Pesky with four singles out of five times.

Boston took a two-run lead in the first when Dom DiMaggio singled with the bases loaded to score Pesky and Ted Williams.

Chicago scored first in the seventh on a double by Don Kolloway and a single by Pitcher Ed (Lefty) Lopat, who went the route for the visitors. The second Chicago run came in the eighth when Taft Wright scored on Thurman Tucker's grounder to Jones, whose heave to home failed to catch him.

Ted Williams collected a double and single and was hit by a pitch in the ninth in five trips.

Williams Bruised By Pitched Ball

Boston, July 22 (AP).—Slugging Ted Williams suffered only a bad bruise on his right wrist when struck by a pitch thrown by Ed Lopat in the ninth inning of today's Boston-Chicago game, won by the Red Sox, 3-2 in 10 innings.

Dr. Paul Butler said that X-rays taken after the game were negative, but that there was some question whether the right-handed throwing Boston left-fielder would be able to play against the White Sox tomorrow night.

"EVERYTHING'S FINE"—That's what Detroit Pitcher Fred Hutchinson is telling a friend who called him yesterday shortly after he and the Tigers arrived for their series with the Nats. Hutchinson, who stopped the Yankee streak Friday, goes after his ninth win against the Nats tonight

Lone Tiger Run in 5th Unearned

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Early Wynn was working for his eleventh victory of the season at Griffith Stadium last night as the Nats opened a home stand against the second-place Detroit Tigers. The Detroit starter was Al Benton, another righthander.

The Nats won, 6 to 1, on Wynn's two-hit pitching.

Mickey Vernon swatted the Nats into a 1-0 lead in the opening inning with a triple down the right field line, scoring Buddy Lewis. Two were out when it happened. Lewis reached base by forcing Yost, who had drawn a walk from Benton.

Wynn Eases Out

In the third, a walk and a hit batsman put men on first and second with one out, but Wynn got himself out of ttrouble by starting a fast double play on Mayo's rap back to the mound.

Wynn's walk to Swift put the tying run on base for the Tigers in the fifth and he reached second on Benton's sacrifice. With two out, Cullenbine drew a walk but the Tigers came up with an unearned run on Wakefield's single to center. Yost muffed Wakefield's foul pop for an error, just before the hit.

The Nats reclaimed the lead at 5-1 in their half of the fifth with a four-run inning. Yost doubled to center with one out and with two out Robertson scored him with a single to right. Robertson stole second and scored on Vernon's third straight hit, a single to center.

Priddy Doubles

Vernon moved to second on the throw to the plate and Spence was handed an intentional pass. Gerry Priddy moved the last two runs home with a double to deep left on which Wakefield missed a one-handed grab. Priddy, however, was thrown out trying to stretch the blow.

Against southpaw Stubby Overmire, who replaced Benton, the Nats picked up another run in the sixth to improve their lead to 6-1. Evans singled to left, moved to third on Wynn's single to center and scored on Yost's single to right.

Meanwhile Wynn was pitching two-hit ball through the first six innings.

Cubs, Braves Take Turns in 2-0 Shutouts

Chicago, July 22 (AP).—Charles ("Red") Barrett of the Boston Braves and Claude Passeau of the Chicago Cubs both pitched shutouts today as the Braves won the first game of a doubleheader, 2-0, and the Cubs took the second game, also 2-0.

Barrett allowed but four hits. Passeau was more generous, yielding eight safe blows, but was just as effective. A crowd of 36,216 saw the two games.

Of the day's four runs, only one was earned. The Cubs counted their two runs off Bill Voiselle on two errors and two singles in the sixth inning of the nightcap. Boston gained an unearned run off Hak Borowy in the first inning of the opener, and counted the only earned marker of the afternoon in the seventh.

The Braves exploded two singles off Borowy in the first inning of the opened but needed Don Johnson's throwing error to count what proved to be the winning run. They waited until the seventh for their second score. Then a walk to Earl Torgeson and Phil Masi's double completed Boston's run production for the afternoon.

The shutout silence lasted until the seventh inning of the second game when the Cubs scored their two runs.

Hank Camelli started it when he failed to hold Johnson's swung third strike, and Nanny Fernandez kept the Cub cheers resounding by bobbling Peanut Lowrey's roller. Uhil Cavarretta and Bob Scheffing drove in the winning markers with successive singles.

Hursey Gets 32% to Meet Kapilow Again

Smuggy Hursey, the one-punch conqueror of Danny Kapilow July 2, got in another good lick yesterday.

This time his efforts were directed at Promoter Goldie Ahearn, of the Liberty A. C., who finally succeeded in signing Hursey for a return engagement—August 11—against Kapilow.

A holdout for more money for over a week, Hursey didn't get what he originally demanded—35 per cent— but he did succeed in wrangling a contract which calls for a 32 per cent take, a record high for a local performer.

With Hursey in tow, Ahearn set out for New York last night where today he'll get Kapilow to sign. With most of the swag going to Hursey, Ahearn didn't know how much would be left for Kapilow. But signing Danny will be a mere formality as Al Weill, Kapilow's manager, is Ahearn's "agent."

Best bet is that Kapilow will be cut in for 23 per cent as promoters usually allow 50 per cent for the main bout.

Hursey and Kapilow, who each cut 25 per cent last time, realized $8200 for their quickie. The bout attracted 15,146 customers and a gate of $46,000.

New York May Act on Rocky

New York, July 22 (INS).—The New York Boxing Commission may be forced to a definite commitment on sanctioning Rocky Graziano as middleweight champion within three days.

The commission will be asked to give its sanction, whereby a boxing magazine would present Graziano with the world's middleweight championship belt from a New York ring next Wednesday. The occasion will be the Damon Runyon cancer benefit bouts.

An outright refusal would come in the nature of a tacit failure to cooperate. It also would tend to make the Italian population irritable and the political powers have given no indication that either would be desirable.

Tony won the title by knocking out defending champion Tony Zale in a Chicago ring last week. But New York took the attitude that nothing Graziano did as a prize fighter was official or recognizable in New York, because he violated Rule 64, having to do with failure to report an attempted bribery last winter.

Hutch Says Halting Yankees No Accident, 'Had My Stuff'

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

In the days of Freddie Hutchinson's apprenticeship with the Detroit Tigers the Detroit management faced the choice of either equipping the fielders with suits o farmor or farming their expensive ookie right hander.

Conditions were that hazardous when Hutch was on the hill. Freddie wasn't ready then, not for the Tigers anyway.

That was during the reign of Manager Del Baker in the 1939-40-41 campaigns. Today, however, the strapping 27-year-old Hutchinson is a journeyman hurler, crowding Hal New houser for honors on a team top heavy with pitching talent.

Hutchinson, a $50,000 purchase from Seattle nine years ago, climaxed his ceaseless efforts last Friday with a glittering two-hit shutout over the Yankees, halting the New York stampede at 19 in a row.

Big Win no Accident

And to hear Hutch tell it, it wasn't an accident.

"Somebody had to beat them," he said here yesterday, "because they couldn't go on winning forever. I had my stuff that day and any time I have it I'll be tough. That's not only true of me, but of anyone who pitches."

For the first three years with the Tigers, Hutch was a commuter between Detroit and its two farm clubs, Buffalo and Toledo. He didn't even cut a figure in the Detroit bullpen, but he was something extra in the minors, winning almost 70 games while he was out on option.

What's happened to him to make him a winner? He racked up 13 last year and has eight to his credit this season, despite being out for five weeks with a bad shoulder.

"Nothing," he says casually. I was just as good a pitcher in 1939, when I first came up, as I am now. Today, however, I've got experience. None of the batters overawe me.

'Confidence' Best Pitch

"I know I'm not fast and my curve ball is not the sharpest in the league. But I've got a good slider and a change of pace. I got pretty disgusted when they farmed me out three times, but I figured if I could win as consistently as I did in the minors, I would win in the majors.

"I didn't change my pitching style or 'monkey' with any new deliveries. I gained confidence. That's one of my best pitches.

"We've got a pitcher on our club right now—Art Houtteman—who's got as much stuff as anybody in the business. But he lacks experience and confidence. He's getting both and when he does he'll burn up the league. I know how he feels because I was pretty much in the same boat myself."

Recalls Brush-off

When he first joined the club, Fred continued, the Tigers had seasoned hurlers to spare and a newcomer, no matter how impressive his record, was given the brush-off.

"And a young pitcher must have work. I got it in the minors and also when I came back to Detroit from the Navy last year, and I won. You can't win ball games sitting on the bench."

What about the Yankees?

"Well," he concluded, "they won't win the pennant if they hit a slump like we did a couple of weeks ago, but that's pretty hard to imagine."

Pimlico Race Set Oct. 31

Baltimore, July 22 (AP).—The famed Pimlico Special, $25,000 winner-take-all race for the Nation's top stake horses, will be run this year on October 31, President Harry A. Parr, 3d, of the Maryland Jockey Club announced today.

Parr said the special should provide a good meeting ground for "Stymie, Assault and Armed and whatever other good horse might be willing to meet that trio under the special conditions."

The mile and three-sixteenths test is an invitational affair open only to the winners of such races as the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and the top handicap events.

No nomination or starting fees are required and betting is limited to a straight, or win, pool only.

Stymie, Assault and Armed, in that order, are the three top money winning horses of the world.

To date, six other horses are eligible for the eleventh running of the special, which may put an end to the horse-of-the-year debate. They are Phalanx, On Trust, Faultless, Olhaverry, I Will and Jet Pilot.

Jet Pilot, retired to stud, is the only horse definitely out so far.

Bobo Blanks Browns, 6-0

New York, July 22 (AP).—Bobo Newsom pitched his third straight victory in a New York Yankee uniform and his seventh of the year tonight, shutting out the St. Louis Browns, 6-0, with three hits.

It was the veteran righthander's 201st major league victory.

Rocky's $100 Coats Too 'Loud' for Crooks

New York, July 22 (INS).—Crooks who stole Rocky Graziano's clothes while he was in Chicago winning the world's middleweight championship apparently didn't think too much of Rocky's taste in sports jackets.

Authorities disclosed today that three gaudy coats among the 20 stolen from Graziano's Brooklyn apartment were found some days ago on a city dump.

Earle Weeks Swim Renewed Friday

A fifth annual A. Earle Weeks Memorial Swimming Meet will be staged Friday night at Takoma Park by the District AAU in perpetuation of the memory of a past AAU president long identified with local swimming.

In addition to the eight open events for men and women, the meet will be highlighted by the staging of a Junior National event, the men's 220-yard freestyle. This race already has drawn entries from as far away as New Orleans.

The entries list closes tonight.

It'll Take 55 To Qualify for TourneyToday

Youth takes a back seat to the "old men" at Burning Tree Country Club today.

They're not so old, at that, these golfers, but they've reached the age where a special tournament, the Mid-Atlantic Golf Association's senior championships, has been set up for them and no one under 55 is eligible.

The one-day, 18-hole medal play affair begins at 2 p. m., shortly following a luncheon at 12, and the winner will be awarded the Star trophy. Pairings will be made after lunch.

The tournament is called the Walter McCallum Memorial to commemorate the late Washington golf reporter. Walter Tuckerman of Southampton, N. Y., will present a cup to the oldest contestant. Mr. Tuckerman is a former senior champion.

Frank Butler of Manor is defending champion. Winner of low net will be presented the W. W. Hinshaw Cup.

Dr. Robert A. Keilty, Middle Atlantic secretary, announced last night post entries will be accepted up to 2 o'clock.

Shirley Fry, Dot Head Win in Women' Tennis

Sea Bright, N. J., July 22 (AP).—Top-seeded Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, and third-seeded Dorothy Head of Alameda, Calif., moved into the women's quarter-final round of the fifty-ninth annual Sea Bright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club Invitation Tournament today although both were afforded unexpected opposition before winning.

Miss Fry came back strong, after dropping the first set to Helen Pastell of Los Angeles, 1—6, 6—0, and 6—1; while Miss Head conquered Mrs. Wilma Smith of Downs, Ill., 7—5, 6—3.

Unbeaten Bewitch Lassie Stakes Entry

Chicago, July 22 (AP).—A field of 13, including the Calumet Farm's unbeaten Bewitch, today was nominated for tomorrow's running of the $25,000 added Arlington Park Lassie stakes for the two-year-old fillies.

Bewitch, the Nation's outstanding juvenile, has been withheld from racing for more than two weeks, because of sore shins. Calumet Farm also entered Airy and Whirlsome. C. V. Whitney nominated two—Ghost Run and Dusty Legs—for the six-furlong event.

Camp Lee Launches Title Defense, Wins 5-4

Covington, Va., July 22 (AP).—Camp Lee, defending champion, won its opening game in the Virginia State semi-pro tournament here today, defeating Big Island of the Skyline League, 5 to 4.

Ward, second baseman, singled in the last half of the ninth to score Johnson and Dike with the tying and winning runs. Camp Lee was jittery in winning, racking up six errors. Bob Kelly, who pitched on last year's State championship team, was the winner, giving up seven hits.

Plastic Curtain Combats Eye-Trap At Wrigley Field

Chicago, July 22 (AP).—The bleachers at Wrigley Field, long regarded as a hitter's eye-trap because of the predominance of white shirts, was subjected to a new experiment today when a large plastic curtain was placed in line with the vision of right-handed hitters.

The plastic barrier, blue in color, was expected to eliminate the glare for hitters and yet not hinder the vision of bleacher spectators. If successful it would be extended to include the vision of left-handed hitters.

Brown Advances In French Tennis

Paris, July 22 (AP).—Tom Brown of San Francisco advanced in both the singles and doubles of the French tennis tourney today while Budge Patty of Los Angeles was eliminated in the fourth round of individual competition. Patty, playing only casual tennis, was spilled by Anton Stolpa of Hungary, 7—9, 6—3, 8—6, 6—2.

Brown, highest ranking U. S. contestant, squeezed past Tony Mottram of Great Britain, 8—6, 6—8, 6—4, 4—6, 6—3, to gain the singles quarterfinals.

He combined with Billy Sidwell of Australia to gain the round of eight in the doubles with a 6—3, 3—6, 3—6, 6—4, 6—2 verdict over the Italian duo of Renato Bossi and Illo Quintavalle.

Carpenter Returns To Cubs Mound Staff

Chicago, July 22 (AP).—Bob Carpenter, released by the Giants this spring with a sore arm, today joined the Cubs as the latest shot in the arm to the weakened Chicago mound staff.

Carpenter gave the Cubs the maximum of 25 players and increased their pitchers to 11, including injured Russ Meyer.

Cancer Fund Gets Part of Fight Gate

Ten per cent of the gate from the Herbie (Biff) Jones-John (Honeyboy) Bratton boxing match at Griffith Stadium on August 4 will be donated to the Damon Runyon Memorial Cancer Fund.

Clark Griffith, owner of the Nats and local chairman of the drive, made the announcement yesterday after Gabe Menendez, promoter of the fight, volunteered the contribution. Howard Frazier, Bratton's manager, and Harry Groves, Jones' handler, both agreed to the contribution.

Jacobs Uninterested

No Match Race for Stymie

NEW YORK, July 22 (AP).—Hirsch Jacobs, owner of Stymie, winner of last Saturday's $100,000 Gold Cup Race at Belmont Park, said today he would not be interested in entering his champion money-winner in a special match race against Assault and Armed.

"There's been some talk about a match race between the three," he said. "I'm not against such events, but I think it would be foolish for me to agree.

"WHY should I run Stymie in a match? In the first place, it would interrupt his regular training schedule. Secondly, and chiefly, Stymie has too many other stakes engagements awaiting him through the remainder of the year. Match races are out—that's definite."

Stymie came out of the gruelling Gold Cup event in fine shape, Jacobs said. He plans to start him next either in the $25,000 Monmouth Handicap this Saturday or in the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs July 30.

Crossley Publinx Medalist With 139 Card

Oliveri Falls Back to 143, Marceyat159

Minneapolis, July 22 (AP).—Wilfred Crossley, 27-year-old insurance underwriter from Atlanta, Ga., shot a three-under-par 69 to win medalist honors in the National Publinks Golf Tournament with a 36-hole total of 139, over the Meadowbrook course here today.

It was expected that a 36-hole score of 151 would qualify for the match play which begins tomorrow.

Andy Oliveri of Washington, D. C., whose first day 71 put him one stroke off the pace, fell to a 77 yesterday giving him a total of 148. Earl L. Marcey, Washington's other hopeful, added a 79 to his first day's 80 to give him 159.

Two Baltimore competitors turned in 148s, William R. Collins, with a 71 today after carding a 77 yesterday, and William M. Cole, who duplicated yesterday's 74.

Coming in late in the day, Crossley narrowly missed chopping another stroke from his 69, the best score made so far in the Publinks competition. He had a 70 Monday.

The former New England champion came up to the eighteenth green three strokes under par. He was on the green in three and was shooting for a 68 from about 15 feet to the cup. The ball curled to the left, missing by a scant inch and gave him his 69.

Grossley achieved his 69 despite going over par figures on two holes on the first nine. He made it up by slicing one stroke off par for holes to make the turn one under each of the first, third and fourth at 35. On the back nine he was one under on the eleventh and fifteenth holes for a two under 34.

Until Crossley came in, there was a free-for-all for medalist honors, with five players tied at 143.

The five were Thomas Marlowe of Portland, Oreg.; Walter Browne of Atlanta; Thomas Card of Raleigh, N. C.; Thomas Suesens of Vancouver, Wash., and Avery Beck of Raleigh, N. C.

Three of the quintet tied at 143 shot two under par 70s to combine with first-round 73s of yesterday. They were Browne, Card and Suesens. Marlowe shot a par 72 today to go with his first round 71 and Beck had a 73 today and a 70 yesterday.

One stroke behind them with 144s were Robert Silvestri of San Francisco, Calif.; John Bloyer of St. Paul, Minn., and Patrick J. Boyle of Eveleth, Minn.

Double Windup Tonight on Mat

George Macricostas, the Golden Greek, and Red Ryan, the roly-poly Philadelphian, are co-featured on tonight's wrestling show at Turner's Arena. In the other windup Gino Garibaldi of St. Louis meets Farro Rinaldo of Milwaukee.

Olaf Erickson, the Minnesota Swede, and Billy Darnell of Camden, N. J., oppose Kola Kwariani and Joe Komaroff, a Russian duo, in a two-man team bout. Joe Montana and Sheik Badui of Arabia open the card at 8:45 o'clock.

Pepper Martin Set To Pilot Greenville

Greenville, S. C., July 22 (AP).—Pepper Martin, former member of the St. Louis Cardinals Gas House Gang and now a Brooklyn scout, reports here Thursday to become interim manager of the Greenville Spinners.

Twin Features on Tap Today As Racing Switches to Bel Air

Bel Air, Md., July 22 (Spl.)—Maryland's summer racing season—once a pink lemonade circuit, but now big business—opens tomorrow at the Bel Air track, located on Route No. 1, about 14 miles north of Baltimore.

Bel Air, top minor track in the State, offers twin features for the first program, the Bel Air Inaugural, a $1500 affair at 7 furlongs, is assured of 10 horses, including topnotchers who performed at Delaware Park and Charles Town. Bright Remark, Colored Boy, Red Wrack and Hawkwood Aress are some of those likely to draw solid backing.

Eight timber toppers were named overnight for the Leith Memorial. The entry of Mrs. R. P. Kirkpatrick's Busy Moments and John Bosley, jr.'s, Spurious Count is likely to be favorite.

Competition is expected from L. Nelles' George Corn and J. Grabosky's Ducker, another entry. The others in the approximately 2-mile test are Vaden King, Paper Cutter, Fire Bet and Topsy Rose.

Two-year-olds, as well as older horses, will have their innings. The juveniles take over for the fourth race and promise a merry scramble. The entry of Tres Chic and Glory Girl, owned by S. H. Rodgers and son of Washington, is the probable choice in the field of seven.

The Fair line-up calls for three other 10-day sessions at Hagerstown, Cumberland and Timonium. Marlboro's equal number of days have not been allotted, due to lack of facilities. However, Marlboro officials are expected to take court action against the Maryland Racing Commissioner's edict.

Pro War Goes On: Standlee And Albert Miss Clinic

Pasadena, Calif., July 22 (AP).—Co-Coaches Clark Shaughnessy and Frank Leahy open a three-day grid T-clinic here Thursday, and Rose Bowl town is slightly miffed because two highly publicized faces will be missing.

The faces belong to Quarterback Frankie Albert and Fullback Norman Standlee. Their absence, says a spokesman for the clinic, who asked to remain unidentified, is due to "intervention" by National Football League authorities in its "fight against the rival All-America Football Conference."

Pasadena sportsmen, closely associated in the Rose Bowl's Tournament of Roses, helped arrange the clinic.

They planned to make it a sort of reunion for Shaughnessy and key members of his great Stanford team which defeated Nebraska in the Bowl New Year's Day, 1941.

A fancy brochure was published. It featured Shaughnessy, Notre Dame's Frank Leahy, and announced that five of the 1941 Stanford team would be on hand to demonstrate T-tactics.

They were Albert and Standlee, now playing for the San Francisco 49ers of the All-America Conference, and Halfbacks Hugh Gallarneau and Pete Kmetovic and Center Vic Lindskog, all now of the National Pro League.

Just the other day, however, the host city announced that Albert and Standlee would not participate. "Previous commitments" would prevent their attendance, the announcement said.

Subbing for them would be highly capable Head Coach Bob Snyder and his aide, Big Joe Stydanac of the Los Angeles Rams of the National League.

There was no comment forthcoming from Leahy and Shaughnessy, the latter of whom helps coach George Marshall's Washington Redskins of the National circuit. Marshall, of course, is hardly a booster of anything or anyone with an All-American tag on it.

"We don't care about the pro leagues' rivalry, but we can't understand why it should figure in our off-season clinic," concluded the local spokesman.

Bass Grill Beats Rust Nine, 8-5

Bass Grill defeated M. T. Rust Co., 8-5, in a Metro League game at Fairlawn yesterday. Warren Earheardt gave up 7 hits and fanned 9 for the victors.

The victory for Bass Grill, first half winners of the Metro League, gave them a record of 15 wins against one defeat for the season. They meet Costello Post Thursday at Taft for the second half championship.

Mrs. Stokes Victor In Ladies Day Golf

Mrs. Walter Stokes stroked a 79—3—76 over a heavy course yesterday to win low net in the Ladies Day medal-play-with-handicap tournament at Manor Country Club.

Trailing Mrs. Stokes were Mrs. J. E. Nell with 98—18—80, and Mrs. Robert Morgan with 106—23—83. Mrs. Jack Daily, with 35, won the putting contest.

Mrs. O. L. Young of Prince Georges, led the guest entries with a low net of 92—10—82. Miss Ann Stonemetz of Army-Navy Country Club won low putts for guests with 32.

Trainer at Charles Town Barred 90 Days for Doping Horse

Bennings . . .

DEAR FOLKS: At Bel Air.

We tucked Charles Town away until December, but the horse battle goes on here for the next 10 days. The West Virginia track had a successful meeting, running slightly under the reduction in betting that has been general all over the country and there is every reason to believe Bel Air track will click. Fortunately for the Harford County track, there's no racing closer than Monmouth Park in north New Jersey. For this reason, the sporty 6-furlong oval will draw from Philadelphia and Wilmington, as well as Washington and Baltimore. Bel Air has grown from a step-child half-mile track to the chief money-maker and crowd-getter on the Maryland Fair circuit. More horsemen will get shots at purses here, due to the 10-horse field limit. Except for a rather sharp first turn, a relic of the old half-mile oval, the racing strip is a safe one. The meeting here will give the fans their first 1947 look-see at minor track steeplechasing, scheduled to be a daily feature if the fields can be filled. Bel Air will have a 2 p. m. (EDT) post time with the daily double on the first and second races. The B. & O. Railroad is running a special train from Washington, leaving Union Station at 11:30 a. m. (EDT) and making bus connections to the track. See you on the rail.

Toothman Gets Limit Under Law

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., July 22.—Trainer C. D. Tothman, southern Maryland conditioner, was suspended for 90 days today after stewards disclosed the horse Floater, in Toothman's charge, was found to have been stimulated after winning the seventh race here, July 18.

Ridden by Jockey R. D. Scott, Floater took the lead early and came into the wire with speed to spare in advance of Stanley Green, jr.'s, Buckeye.

As a result of the ruling, the winning end of the purse goes to Buckeye with On the Wane, Black Flame and Sergt. Davis also figuring in the payoff.

Draws Maximum Sentence

Officials failed to disclose the nature of the stimulant used. The 90-day suspension, the limit under West Virginia rules, was given Toothman at a hearing this morning.

This is the second stimulating case this meeting. The track had operated for more than two years without such an incident.

Today's program brought to a close 48 days of racing.

The featured Finale purse went the way of many others at the meeting—to Wayne Kendrick of Washington, D. C. His Sure Gift, saddled by Henry Houchin, leading trainer at the session, and ridden by Jockey Woodrow Kirk of Silver Spring, scored by three lengths in the test of a mile and a sixteenth over a heavy track.

Bowers Entry Second, Third

The Mrs. Carroll Bowers entry of Allridge and Unheard was second and third in the battle involving eight excellent distance horses. Sure Gift paid $4.80. His time was 1:52 1/5, creditable under the conditions.

Sure Gift wrestled the lead from Double Reward and held the Bowers entry safe in the final drive while under good handling by Kirk.

The "Go-Home-Happy" purse, the third race with all the participants figuring in the pay-off, was won by Mrs. R. K. Moore's Gal Royal, an $8.20 shot.

C. V. Ray's Coolamay and A. B. Gallon's Security G. followed the winning four-year-old maiden filly over the line in time of 1:27 for the six and a half furlongs.

The final daily double paid only $11.80. A. August's Noslen won the first at $5.40, and A. J. Poinsette's Cabin Creek won the second at $4.

Streptomycin Use Found Favorable For Meningitis

London, July 22.—A favorable report on the treatment of tubercular meningitis with streptomycin, the newest "wonder drug," is expected soon from the British Medical Research Council, but production difficulties will prevent any widespread use of the drug in Britain for some time to come.

For the last six months, the Research Council has been conducting closely controlled treatment of tubercular meningitis at six different hospitals throughout the country. Enough experience has now been obtained for conclusions, but experiments on using the drug in treating lung tuberculosis are still going forward with some uncertainties about the outcome.

1902 Automobile Speeds to Factory At 20 M. P. H.

Albany, N. Y., July 22 (AP).—A 1902 Oldsmobile, capable of making 20 miles and hour, chugged along Albany's streets today, en route to Lansing, Mich., where William A. Worth, 76, of Petersburg, Va., who has owned the car since 1904, said he planned to offer it to the Oldsmobile factory.

The ancient vehicle, steered by means of a tiller, weighs 1600 pounds (including two passengers—Worth and his sister, Miss Eunice Worth of New York City.)

Worth said he expected to drive back to Virginia in a 1948 model.

Federal Loyalty Bill Up for Senate Hearing

Kluttz

LOYALTY: The tottering Rees Federal worker loyalty bill will be given a hearing today by a critical Senate Civil Service Committee which is expected to sidetrack it.

However, Representative Ed H. Rees of Kansas, the bill's author, agreed yesterday to amend the measure to give an accused employe the right to appeal to the U. S. Court of Appeals here. A similar amendment was voted down by the House last week before it approved the measure by a big vote.

Senator Chavez (D., N. Mex.) led the attack on the measure. He described it as "dangerous." Chavez told the committee that he would not vote for a bill that might interfere with the basic American rights of freedom. He made it plain that he wanted the disloyal ousted from Government and punished but, he said, it should be done in an American way. The Senator suggested a criminal statute to be handled by the courts.

Meanwhile, the President suggested to Congress a minor change in his loyalty plan. He said the Civil Service Commission was unable to find enough high-caliber people to serve full-time on the proposed loyalty board. He urged that his plan be amended to permit the employment of 15 persons to serve part-time on the proposed board. He said the 15 would serve without salary. The President asked the Congress to exempt them from laws covering Federal workers.

PAY RAISES: The Senate committee sidetracked the Flanders-Baldwin bill to raise the salaries of Cabinet members and other high Federal officials. However, it promised to take action early next year on a bill to adjust the salaries of all top-bracket people in the Government.

In the meantime, a subcommittee composed of Senators Flanders, Baldwin and O'Conor was appointed to work with both the Civil Service Commission and the Budget Bureau during the congressional recess on a study of salaries paid top-bracket officials. A report is to be made to the full committee in January.

PENALTY: The committee also approved a bill to deny a Civil Service pension to a former member of Congress who is convicted of misusing his Congressional authority. The bill is aimed at former Representative Andrew May of Kentucky, who was convicted in the Garrson munitions case and who draws a pension of about $3000 a year.

CAFETERIAS: No report on Government Services Inc. will be made to the Senate before the Congressional recess. Chairman Baldwin of the Civil Service subcommittee which has investigated GSI for the past six months, said that General Accounting Office had not been able to complete its audit of GSI accounts. He also said he had been informed by justice officials that an FBI investigation of GSI had not been justified from the evidence.

SCIENCE: A conference report on a bill that would create a National science foundation was approved yesterday by the Senate. The proposed new agency would take over the Office of Scientific Research and Development and the National roster from the Labor Department.

HOUSING: The President's plan to reorganize the Government's housing agencies was approved yesterday by the Senate. The plan will go into effect this week. During the debate, Senator Taft said the National Housing Agency would have to be given additional funds to carry out the plan. All NHA employes have been given tentative lay-off notices.

INTERIOR: The conference report on this agency's appropriation bill was approved yesterday by Congress and sent to the White House. It provides funds to continue three divisions the House had originally ordered to liquidate. They are: The oil and gas division, the power division, and the division of geography.

The bill will give the department between 5000 and 6000 fewer employers than it had requested. Most of the lay-offs already have been made. Under the House bill, a lay-off of between 10,000 and 12,000 was first estimated.

RETIREMENT: The Senate yesterday failed to take action on the Langer-Chavez retirement bill. But the consent calendar will be called today and the bill is on it. An objection by a single Senator, however, could sidetrack the measure.

APPRENTICES: Civil Service exams are open for four classes of apprentices in the 22 trades at the Naval Gun Factory. Applicants must be between 16 and 20. Salaries range from $6.08 to $8.96 a day. Applications must be filed before August 12 with the Civil Service Board at the gun factory.

WAR ASSETS: Before many months this agency is slated to be transferred to Treasury's Bureau SERVICE has again indorsed un- of Federal Supply . . . CIVIL employment compensation, a dismissal wage, and transportation home for dismissed Federal workers. Unfortunately, there isn't a chance for Congressional approval of any such benefit.

Fire Captain To Go Before Trial Board

Hearing for James In Boiler Blast Due In About Ten Days

The Commissioners yesterday ordered Fire Capt. W. V. James to appear before the Fire Department Board to answer charges arising from the explosion which injured four firemen last Thursday at his No. 18 Engine Company.

Fire Chief Clement Murphy said charges and specifications against Captain James were being prepared and that the trial board would probably be convened in "about 10 days."

Captain James withheld comment until "I can get the order and see what they charge me with." He said he would "absolutely fight the case."

Trial of Captain James was recommended by a special board of inquiry which held a formal hearing Monday to investigate the blast. In a report to the Commissioners, the board said it found "apparent violation of rules and regulations" by Captain James.

Cleaning Boiler With Gasoline

Chief Murphy suspended the captain and ordered the inquiry Friday after a preliminary investigation showed the explosion occurred while firemen were cleaning a boiler with a mixture of gasoline and oil.

Captain James appeared to have "unnecessarily jeopardized the lives of the men under his command" and had shown "poor judgment" in delaying his report of the blast, Chief Murphy asserted.

The Commissioners approved the suspension and these inquiry board recommendations:

1. In the future, firemen should use gasoline for fuel only.

2. They should not do maintenance work which requires the services of experienced persons. (Chief Murphy said this point was already fully covered in present regulations.)

Union Backs Captain

Fire Capt. Joseph W. Conroy, president of Firemen's Association Local 36, International Association of Firefighters (AFL), said Captain James would receive the "unqualified backing of the organization."

He said Captain James would meet today with William J. Rowan, association attorney, to discuss his defense. It is not certain, however, who will defend the captain before the trial board, Conroy added.

Captain James said he did not intend to accept the association's offer to pay his legal expenses. "I'll pay my own way," he declared.

Unlicensed Agents Hurt Car Dealers, Va. Official Says

Richmond, Va., July 22 (AP).—Unauthorized automobile "dealers," operating without the benefit of State license or the cost of maintaining a place of business, are cutting into the business of legitimate dealers and salesmen, Chester H. Lamb, director of the Bureau of Vehicles, State Division of Motor Vehicles, reported today.

Eight to 10 complaints are made to the division every week by dealers who have been deprived of sales by unlawful agents throughout Virginia, Lamb said.

Persons who buy new or used cars for purposes of sale rather than for their own use must be licensed or they are liable to a maximum fine of $500 or six months imprisonment, or both, on each count violated in the Virginia Motor Vehicle Dealer Licensing Act, he pointed out.

Youth Hurt When Plane Crash-Lands

Nineteen-year-old Leroy Cole, Mount Rainier youth who saw Navy combat duty at the age of 14, was injured yesterday when his Piper Cub forced-landed at 3 p. m. on grounds of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Beltsville, Md.

Cole

In Leland Memorial Hospital for a brain concussion and sprained neck, Cole, a student pilot of 3503 Otis st., Mount Rainier, told a reporter the engine conked out while he was executing "seven-twenties"—steep rolls—at about 2000 feet.

Condition Reported Good

He tried to land the plane on a level stretch but the left wing and nose speared into a shrubbery-coated hill, he said. The plane settled on its belly, demolishing the undercarriage.

The Branchville Rescue Squad took Cole to the hospital where his condition is reported good.

Damage to the plane was estimated at $600 to $800 by William Henderson, its owner and manager of the Queens Chapel Airport where Cole took lessons. Cole has had some 28 hours in the air, Henderson said.

Lied About Age

Cole received national publicity two years ago when his mother revealed he had lied about his age to enlist in the Navy at 14.

Before discharge, he served three years, having fought at Pelelieu with a combat beach party, at Tarawa and in Marshall Island campaigns aboard an LST. He also served in the Atlantic.

He is now studying to complete his interrupted education. He left for the wars as a seventh-grade student at Langley Junior High School.

Parole Awaits Man Convicted of Slaying

Harrisburg, July 22 (AP).—Frank Harris, whose life sentence for the murder of a Philadelphia policeman recently was commuted, will be free as soon as he shows the State parole board that he has a job and a home.

A parole plan presented today was rejected.

Gov. James H. Duff commuted Harris' life term to a period ending July 17 after Harris' attorney told the State Pardons Board that the bullet which killed the policeman could not have come from the weapon the convicted man was alleged to have used.

Walking Horse Finishes Career

Wartrace, Tenn. (U.P.).—Strolling Jim, America's most famous walking horse, is back in the bluegrass section of middle Tennessee.

Horse lovers in this section gave a reception for him when he came back to retire from the life of a show horse. Strolling Jim is a farm horse that made good. The late Floyd Carothers rode him to the championship in the first National Walking Horse celebration at Shelbyville, Tenn.

Driver Reexamination Studied As Means of Cutting Accidents

Traffic Director George E. Keneipp said yesterday he was considering reexamination of drivers as a step toward cutting down traffic accidents here.

(Keneipp's proposals were broadcast over Station WOL in a safety interview last night by Announcer Lou Brott.

He said it was obviously impossible to reexamine all of the 300,000 licensed drivers in the District.

"A start might be made, however," he said, "by giving tests to persons who become involved in more than one accident and persons who have reached the age where their driving ability is impaired."

Such examinations, he said, would probably consist of eye tests, a review of driving regulations, and tests to determine the time it takes for the driver to react to signals and the movement of other cars.

Setting up of such a reexamination system, Keneipp added, would depend on the number of personnel available to the department.

These other safety moves are also under consideration, he added:

Ask the District Medical Society to report to the Health Department names of all patients suffering from epilepsy so the information would be available to licensing authorities.

(Keneipp admitted this was a controversial idea, but maintained it was just as important to keep epileptics from driving as it is to isolate persons with contagious diseases.)

Make all applicants for driver's licenses view safety films and pass tests on the objects covered.

Issue chauffeur permits to drivers of trucks, buses and cabs; giving them tests in the vehicles they propose to drive.

Keneipp said he hoped it would soon be possible again to send warnings to motorists whose driving licenses are due to expire. Meanwhile, he announced, application blanks for driver's licenses are available at the city's 13 Police stations, the American Automobile Association, and the Keystone Auto Club.

Motorists should obtain blanks from these sources rather than requesting them by mail or telephone, he added.

1000-Unit Project On Rockville Pike At Pook's Hill to Be Like Shoreham

Erection of a 15-million-dollar apartment hotel on the Merle Thorpe tract, known as Pook's Hill, along the Rockville pike near Bethesda, was approved yesterday by the Montgomery County Commissioners.

In another major decision at their regular meeting, the commissioners approved three changes in the county's new taxicab ordinance. The changes had been urged by protesting groups of cab drivers.

By a slim 3-2 vote, the commissioners paved the way for construction of the huge apartment project, which will have approximately 1000 units on the 103-acre tract.

Approval by the commissioners took the form of favorable action on a rezoning application asking Residential C reclassification from the present Residential A on the estate owned by Doris C. Lowe.

Was Home of Princess Martha

The estate, which was the wartime home of Crown Princess Martha of Norway, has a 1400-foot frontage along the west side of Rockville pike, beginning at a point about 1200 feet south of Grosvernor la.

At a hearing on the petition last month, builder Harry H. Brodie said the project would be similar to the Shoreham Hotel in both appearance and operation.

Approval of the taxicab ordinance changes came after a 35-man delegation of cab drivers and operators appeared to protest the recently enacted regulations, first in the county's history.

Spokesmen for the group were James H. Pugh, former State's attorney, representing Suburban, We, Community and Bethesda Cabs, and Ralph Shure, attorney representing Takoma Park Taxi Service and Piney Branch Cab Co.

After the complaints of the hackers were aired at a two-hour hearing, the commissioners held a closed session and emerged with approval of the following changes in the ordinance:

1. The $50 fee for each cab will be reduced to $25 and the $10 driver's fee reduced to $5.

2. The present prescribed 25-cent fare in Zone 1 in Bethesda, Silver Spring and Takoma Park will be increased to 30 cents.

3. Instead of children 12 years and under riding free of charge, only 5-year-olds or younger will not pay a fare.

County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr said it will take from three weeks to a month to effect the proposed changes in the ordinance and said the commissioners had ordered the present provisions into effect when the changes can be made legally.

Patrolman Shot As He Surprises Burglar in Store

Baltimore, July 22 (AP).—Patrolman Walter Wood, 39, was critically wounded early today when he surprised a burglar in a grocery store in the northwest section of the city. The burglar escaped.

The officer was shot in the abdomen and left elbow and was taken to South Baltimore General Hospital for an emergency operation. His condition was described as "grave."

Wood told fellow officers he found the rear door of the grocery ajar about 4 a. m. and went inside to discover the burglar standing inside near the front entrance. The man fired two shots and fled.

Wood emptied his service revolver into the air to attract aid and staggered a block, where a motorist picked him up and took him to a hospital.

Investigators found the store ransacked, but nothing missing.

Eloping With Girl, 13, Laid to N. C. Cabbie, 26

Raleigh, N. C., July 22 (AP).—Sheriff Robert Pleasants said today that James Bullock, 26-year-old taxi driver, had been returned here from Bel Air, Md., and charged with eloping with a girl under 14.

The sheriff said that Bullock, who lived near here, was returned with the girl by Deputy Sheriff W. C. Shaw. The couple's whereabouts, the sheriff said, was discovered when Bullock contacted members of his family asking for money.

Bullock was placed in jail here today. The girl, who is 13, was turned over to her parents.

Students Date Girls To Pay College Bills

Austin, Tex. (U.P.).—Students who used to work their way through college as magazine salesmen lacked imagination. Here are a couple of Texans who date women for a price to raise next semester's fee or the cost of new textbooks.

Vincent Roby of Houston and Robert Cummings of El Paso, announced their new escort bureau in the Daily Texan, the campus newspaper. The rates are $1 plus all expenses on week nights and $2 plus expenses on Saturday night. Formals cost $5 plus expenses.

The boys claimed the girls were still getting the best of the bargain. Nothing modest about these chaps.

"Our service caters only to those who can afford the best," said Roby. "The women of distinction."

Garfield Head Faces His Job: First, Hold Building Together

The immediate task of Arkell B. Cook as new administrator of Garfield Memorial Hospital is to hold together the 66-year-old hospital building until Washington's proposed hospital center becomes a reality, he said yesterday.

In a tour of the structure at 10th st. and Florida ave. nw., Administrator Cook pointed to the physical defects in the building "that make it so difficult for the staff to carry on."

While he stood in the building's main corridor, a right of way of less than six feet wide that connects with the operating rooms, he dodged nurses and attendants and stretcher-borne patients as the busy hospital staff went about its task.

He said he agreed with his predecessor, Dr. Francis J. Eisenman, who headed the hospital for 17 years, that the building actually is falling apart. Cracks in walls and floors, and outside stone and brick facing eaten away by weather, bear him out.

The problem, Cook said, is to decide what repairs to make. He hopes that the new center, which Garfield will share with Emergency and Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospitals, will be completed in four years.

Forty-one-year-old Administrator Cook was picked for his new job partially because of his youth.

"We wanted a young man to grow up with the problems of the new building," said W. B. Castle, president of the hospital.

A business man, rather than a physician, Cook brings to his new post 15 years of experience at the University of Michigan Hospital at Ann Arbor and two years as superintendent of the Monmouth Memorial Hosital at Long Branch, N. J.

'Eat All I Can Get'

Takoma Park Woman 97 Next Week

After a self-imposed winter "hibernation," Mrs. Abbie Cleaveland is fast recovering her usual vim and vigor on the eve of her ninety-seventh birthday next Tuesday.

For this Takoma Park nonagenarian has hopped out of bed, taken up the knitting which absorbed so much of her time in the last war—as well as World War I and the Civil War—and said that once again she is ready for visitors.

Last winter she caught a slight cold, staying in bed for several months as an insurance against further sickness.

Readers may remember the splash she made last November when gossip dealers hinted at an "affair" between Mrs. Cleaveland and Jascha Heifetz, violinist. The occasion was a Telephone Hour program when Heifetz dedicated Sarasate's "Gypsy Airs" to her.

Follows World News

Although their relationship has never gone beyond the correspondence stage, she still has plenty to keep her busy, in her home at 614 Flower ave. and "around town."

The most consuming home interest is following world news over the many radios which dot the modest home she shares with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Elon Salisbury.

Other indoor pastimes include bird feeding and knitting. During the war she gave 1200 hours to the Red Cross, turning out 40 sweaters and 40 helmets.

Until several years ago she was a frequent visitor to the downtown shopping and movie district, getting around without the assistance of her daughter. Now, she usually allows Mrs. Salisbury to drive her to frequent movies, and to church.

Mrs. Cleaveland is not the stay-at-home type. Her travels have taken her to all but four States, and on two European tours. She also has managed to work at a variety of jobs, from giving piano lessons, to teaching French, German and Italian and working as a stenographer in New York.

Born in Marietta, Ohio

Two years after her birth in Marietta, Ohio, in 1850, her father, later founder of Lombard College, Galesburg, Ill., moved the family to Illinois, and several years later to St. Louis. She eventually wound up in Lawrence, Mass., where she attended high school. The Peterssilea Conservatory of Music, Boston, followed, after which she gave the piano lessons.

In 1889 she was married to Frank Cleaveland, secretary of the board of trustees of St. Lawrence College, Canton, N. Y., and a descendant of the founder of Cleveland, Ohio. Before his death in 1922, they lived in Oklahoma, Pittsburgh, and New York, as well as Canton. She now promises to stay "awhile" in Washington. She has lived here four years.

Mrs. Cleaveland says: "I eat all I can get." And she adds that she doesn't exceed the one glass of port her doctor allows her every evenings before retiring.

CAA to Run Radar-Radio Landing Aids

AAF Transfers Title To GCA Systems Here And at N. Y., Chicago

National Airport's radar-radio landing aid, which "talks" aircraft through fog to runways, yesterday was given to the Civil Aeronautics Administration for permanent operation here.

The Army Air Forces transfered title to the war-developed equipment and that of two other sets now on loan to CAA and in use at New York's LaGuardia Field and Chicago. They are valued at $176,000 each.

The transaction also gave CAA six months' supply of spare parts.

All three sets will go into 24-hour operation August 1.

The GCA (ground control approach) system allows ground technicians to follow the fog-bound plane by radar while lining the pilot up with the runway through radio conversation.

Three GCA-Equipped Airports

The AAF agreement, coming after expiration of the loan period, leaves Washington, New York and Chicago as the only three civilian airports in the country equipped with GCA. National Airport also has ILS (instrument landing system), which employs a radio beam to guide a plane through fog to where the pilot can see the runway.

Elsewhere on the air safety front yesterday, the Civil Aeronautics Board gave formal notice of two new proposals from President Truman's special air safety inquiry board.

Increased Clearance Rule

They are:

A new rule requiring increased clearances in flying over mountainous terrain during bad weather.

Revival of a prewar rule requiring carrying of an automatic flight recorder. The flight recorder shows a plane's path through the air and the effect of rough air on a plane. Its use was halted in 1944 due to material shortages.

The CAB also gave formal notice of a proposed rule to require radar terrain clearance indicators in airliners for a two-year experimental period beginning January 1.

60 Slot Machines Seized by Police At Martinsburg

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 22 (Spl.).—Eighteen persons were arrested yesterday in the largest slot machine and liquor raid ever conducted here.

Sixty slot machines and a number of whisky bottles and tipboards were confiscated by 25 plain-clothes State Police. Capt. J. H. Fillingerm Elkins, captain of Company C, State Police, was in charge of the raid.

Raids were conducted on service stations, inns, grocery stores, restaurants, lunchrooms, Elks Club, American Legion Home, Veterans of Foreign Wars Home, Moose Club and a bowling alley. All the places raided except one were within city limits.

All 18 persons arrested posted bond of $300 each for appearance at a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace King Larkin November 30.

D. C. Boards Ask Congress Not to Change Their Setup

Library Trustee And Other Officials Urge Independence Under Home Rule

Officials of city boards told Congress yesterday their organizations should be kept independent under a District home rule setup.

The officials included:

B. M. McKelway, editor of the Star, testifying as a public library trustee; Thomas G. Walsh, chairman of the Mental Health Commission; Col. Campbell C. Johnson, chairman of the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole; Miss Carrie L. Allgood, secretary of the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board, and Alan W. Payne, chairman of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

They testified to a House subcommittee on District reorganization and home rule.

Same As in Other Cities

McKelway spoke for Albert W. Atwood, president of the library board, and said the present set-up for running the public libraries should be kept. He said the local organization followed the pattern of most other cities.

"There is nothing in the record of municipal government under the Commissioners to indicate that the interests of the library, the schools or public recreation would be better served by placing their control more directly under the Commissioners," McKelway said.

He sadi the relations between the Commissioners and the library board had been marked by "cooperative partnership, unmarred by any important disagreement."

Walsh pointed out that the Mental Health Commission was a unit of the District Court, and not under the Commissioners. To do its present job, Walsh said the agency should remain under the court.

Distrusts One Man's Judgment

Colonel Johnson said the parole job could be performed better by the present three-member board than by a single administrator.

"I definitely do not believe that the question of whether a person is to be released on parole or is to be required to serve his full sentence should be intrusted to the judgment of a single individual," Johnson said.

Miss Allgood testified for Mrs. Albert W. Atwood, chairman of the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board, and wife of the library board president. Her statement cautioned that the present wage and safety functions should be safeguarded in any city government reorganization. With these safeguards, she added, "it might conceivably strengthen the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Administration to be part of a labor department under either a labor commissioner or industrial board."

House Approves Payment for Boat Lost by Explosion

By The Associated Press

The House passed yesterday legislation to reimburse two Virginians for losses in the sinking of a fishing trawler by an underwater explosion in 1945 near Ocean City, Md.

The measure, which now goes to the Senate, would pay $8295 to Mrs. Annie L. Taylor, Seaford, Va., for the loss of the trawler, Joyce, and $315 to William B. Taylor, Seaford, her captain.

A committee report on the bill, by Representative Bland (D., Va.), said the trawler was blown about 25 feet in the air and sank within a minute. It said the explosion probably was caused by a mine. The captain suffered "superficial" hurts.

The House also passed and sent to the Senate a bill to pay $176 to Mrs. Mattie A. Horner, Richmond, Va., for injuries in a fall upon a highly polished floor of the theater at the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Naval Air Station in 1944. The bill was offered by Representative Gary (D., Va.)

Rowboat, Life Raft In Collision on Ritchie Highway

Annapolis, Md., July 22 (AP).—A collision involving a rowboat, life raft, ice box, trailer and two cars was described before Trial Magistrate David B. Dunker of Ferndale in a case which resulted in a $5 fine imposed on George Gac, Baltimore.

Patrolman Joseph C. Hopp in his testimony unwound the complicated collision, which sounded like an imitation of the House that Jack Built.

Hopp said Gac was driving along the Ritchie hwy. with a 12-foot trailer attached to his car. In the trailer were the rowboat, the life raft and the ice box. Gac turned his car at Pasadena rd., Hopp said, and a car driven by Lester D. Parker, of Hammond's Ferry rd., struck it. The rowboat fell on the hood of Parker's car and the raft and ice box landed on the road.

Magistrate Dunker fined Gac for reckless driving, but dismissed a similar charge against Parker.

Death of Thousands Of Fish Investigated

Luray, Va., July 22 (Spl.).—State game officials came here yesterday to investigate the cause of death of thousands of fish Sunday in Hawksbill Creek.

All fish in the stream, including carp, sunfish, catfish, bass minows and suckers, died from a point near Virginia Oak Tannery in Luray to Sandy Hook, a distance of 3 miles.

Officials were called in by Game Warden William Keller and William Harnsberger, president of the Page County Fish and Game Association. Harnsberger said there had been many instances before of fish dying, but he had learned about them too late to notify State game officials.

Samples of water and fish were taken to Richmond for analysis to determine the source of pollution.

Hawksbill Creek, which flows through Luray, is a tributary of the Shenandoah River, one of the chief sources of bass in the East.

Baltimore, July 22 (AP).—Household Hints: To get your arm out of a wringer, saw off the top of the wringer with a hacksaw.

Ten-year-old Hugh Kavanaugh 3d yesterday caught his left arm in his mother's electric wringer, and 15 neighbors pulled and tugged and offered advice for an hour without result.

Then police arrived, asked for a hacksaw, and had the wringer apart within a few minutes. Hugh was sent to bed for a rest.

He spoke prior to the showing of a film, "Candy and Nutrition," at the twenty-fourth annual convention of the Southern Wholesale Confectioners Association at Hotel Roanoke.

Registration for the convention, which is being attended by candy manufacturers and jobbers from nine Southern States, reached approximately 900 today, accordig to I. T. Brewer of Roanoke, general convention chairman.

Richmond, Va., July 22 (AP).—The State highway department today announced the addition of .623 mile of driveways within the grounds of Piedmont Sanatorium at Burkeville to the official primary highway system. The department said consideration was being given to a proposal that 1.29 miles of roads within the Copeley Hills housing development at the University of Virginia also be added.

Potts House Bid $2600

Richmond, Va., July 22 (AP).—Mrs. Virginia B. Haughmont of Williamsburg has submitted a high bid of $2600 for the eighteenth century Potts House, at Providence Forge.

The House, legendary camping site of several Revolutionary War generals, was offered for sale by the State Highway Department, because it was directly on the route of the new four-lane highway 60 between Richmond and Williamsburg. Owners of the property were awarded $19,000 in condemnation proceedings.

Measured Justice

Annapolis, Md., July 22 (AP).—Trial Magistrate David B. Dunker of Ferndale has one answer when witnesses can't agree on the distance between a pig pen and a house—measure it.

The magistrate has ordered the measuring in the first prosecution arising under Anne Arundel County's new pig pen distance law, brought by Charles R. Reimsnyder of Hanover against Roy Costello of the same place.

Under the law, with certain exceptions, pig pens may not be operated within 500 feet of a dwelling.

Dunker heard arguments of both sides. Reimsnyder's witnesses said the pig pen was nearer than the legal distance, Costello's said it wasn't.

The magistrate continued the case, saying he would decide it according to the results of measuring.

Liquor Licenses on Rise

Baltimore, July 22 (AP).—Although retail sales of alcoholic beverages in Baltimore County have dropped sharply in recent months, the county revenue from liquor licenses reached an all-time high for the first six months of 1947.

George G. Wheeler, secretary to the board of liquor commissioners, said that retail permit fees since January 1 totaled more than $210,000, and applications for new licenses show no decline.

Some of the revenue increase is due to a $40 step-up in the beer license.

Flogger Convicted

Baltimore, July 22 (AP).—Convicted of flogging his foster daughter, the Rev. Philip Hiers, 72, today was free in $1000 bail to await sentencing.

Hiers was convicted in Criminal Court on a charge of assault on 8-year-old Naomi, whom he said he had adopted in 1941 when she was "puny and emaciated."

Judge Joseph Sherbow said the clergyman had used more force than "anyone had a right to use" after witnesses testified Hiers had lashed the girl with an electric light cord for 15 minutes.

"I could have whipped a mule to death in that time," the 226-pound minister replied.

Judge Sherbow said he would make a further investigation before imposing sentence.

Radar Unit Wrecked

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 22 (AP).—Three persons were injured, one seriously, when a large naval mobile radar unit was wrecked yesterday on Laurel Mountain while en route from here to Cumberland, Md.

Lloyd Green, 22, a sailor and member of the crew that had been exhibiting the unit in various cities, was in a Grafton hospital with serious head injuries. He was reported to have been pinned under the wreckage for a time.

Kenneth Laubach, another sailor, was treated for cuts and bruises and released from the hospital.

Sheriff Hobart Spindler of Kingwood said a man named Knotts was struck by the unit when its brakes failed on the mountain.

Just a Mistake

Baltimore, July 22 (AP).—It was a mistake that Maryland State police stationery was used in soliciting contributions to finance a recruiting campaign for the force, officials reported today.

Col. Beverley Ober, State police superintendent, made the explanation after hundreds of Maryland businessmen received letters asking for contributions of "not more than $250."

He said the stationery was given to the committee in charge of the campaign without his knowledge.

Karl F. Steinman, campaign chairman, and Abraham Watner, vice chairman, who signed the letters, issued a statement expressing regret "if any impression has been created other than that subscriptions were sought voluntarily by the committee and not by the State police."

The recruiting drive to fill 35 vacancies opened last week. To date, about 1000 applications for appointments have come in.

Stylish Couple Robs Grocery Of Safe, $355

A stylishly-dressed woman with blond upswept hair and her muscular escort early yesterday marched out of a grocery store at 2200 Minnesota ave. se., with a safe containing $355, police reported.

Store owner George Maier said neighbors saw them drive away at about 4 a. m. in a black coupe with Maryland license tags. Entrance was gained by breaking the glass in the front door.

In another predawn theft yesterday $300 in a metal cash box was pilfered from a desk in the National Tire Sales Co., 2006 Fenwick st. ne., Manager James L. Britt told police.

Some 36 fifths of liquor valued at $111 were stolen from a restaurant at 417 H st. ne., early yesterday. Also missing, reported Manager Thomas Flynn, were three boxes of cigars, a radio and a German bayonet.

More Officers To Guard 'Hill' Will Be Asked

The Capitol Police Board will ask for additional policemen to insure the safety of the Nation's legislators, Edward F. McGinnis, Senate sergeant-at-arms and board chairman, said yesterday.

It will be up to the Senate Rules Committee to determine the number of extra bluecoats needed to afford adequate guarding of the five buildings on the "Hill," said David Lynn, Capitol architect and member of the board.

McGinnis also announced board plans for a survey to determine how to improve the force's system of communication between posts.

The board's proposals are designed to forestall repetition of the incident July 12 when Senator John W. Bricker (R., Ohio) narrowly escaped being shot. The alleged assailant, William L. Kaiser, disgruntled ex-Capitol policeman, is now under mental observation at Gallinger Hospital.

Farmers Favor Atomic Bomb

Des Moines, Iowa (U.P.).—More than three-fourths of American farmers believe the United States should continue making atomic bombs for defense, a survey by the magazine Successful Farming revealed.

Only 18 per cent of those interviewed favor stopping bomb production and destroying those already produced, the magazine said.

The survey showed that the farmers interviewed believed atomic bomb secrets should be withheld from Russia.

"Views of an overwhelming majority point out that Russia would not allow a United Nations committee to investigate her country, even if the United States did destroy its bombs and stop production," the magazine said.

More than 100 bicycles, piloted by Arlington youngsters, yesterday went through tests of skill on S. 8th st., near Fillmore st., in semifinals of the county's first bicycle rodeo.

Group Approves Bill for Check on Oil Sent Abroad

The House Merchant Marine Committee yesterday approved a bill to block petroleum shipments to any foreign country unless the Secretary of Commerce certifies that the exports will not interfere with national defense or national security.

The bill tentatively is scheduled for House consideration late this week. It grew out of a committee inquiry into shipments of petroleum products to Russia.

The bill would embargo shipments of gasoline, diesel oil, bunker oil and lubricating oil unless the Secretary certifies to the President that the shipments will not interfere with national defense or national security and will not impair civilian supplies.

The Secretary would be required to make monthly reports of shipments to Congress.

International air freight traffic increased 34 per cent in the first quarter of 1947, totaling 131,824 shipments, according to Railway Express.

Freedom Party Dissolves Self In Hungary to Protect Members

Budapest, Hungary, July 22 (U.P.).—The Freedom (Liberty) Party, open foe of communism for more than a year, today announced its own dissolution rather than "risk the life and safety" of its members in opposing the leftist government coalition.

Vincenze Nagy announced the step in parliament during a debate on the proposed new election law. The 16 Freedom Party deputies immediately walked out of the assembly in a body.

"The Freedom Party hereby announces that it dissolves itself because it has no other course," Nagy read from a prepared statement. "Although the terms of the peace treaty declare there should be no discrimination as to political freedom and legal equality, the Freedom Party has not been given an equal opportunity."

Five Charges Listed

Dezso Sulyok, leader of the Freedom Party and constant critic of communism, also announced his resignation in a letter read into the record. Sulyok shocked parliament last month in a bitter denunciation of terroristic conditions in Hungary.

The Freedom Party statement set forth five charges:

1. Recent events made it clear the Russians that opposition deputies' privileges are not respected in Hungary. This referred to the beating of Deputy Ferenc Palinay last week when he visited party headquarters.

2. The new electoral law contains clauses violating the principles of equality since only the opposition is required to file its petitions in advance to get on the ballot.

3. The party believes the electoral law undemocratic and will not debate the law nor take part in elections.

4. No deputy of the party has been involved in any alleged "conspiracy" against the regime, for which the Smallholders Party was purged.

Communists Attack Action

Communist speakers at once attacked the action as "a deliberate provocation aimed at smearing Hungary's name abroad."

Political observers here believed that most of the Freedom Party's deputies will retire from political life. Some, however, already have said they will join the "Kossouth Party," which Zoltan Pfeiffer announced Saturday he will organize.

On Saturday night the members will be addressed by Ernest H. Dervishian, national vice commander of the American Legion, of Richmond, Va., a Congressional Medal of Honor winner.

On the District housing front, A. E. Casgrain, District Commandery veteran's housing committee chairman, will present his annual report to the organization's legislative committee for convention action. The report will call for Congressional action to secure low-cost homes and housing projects in the District area.

Woman Hunts Son Reported Dead in Battle

Dayton, Ohio, July 22 (U.P.).—There's a white cross on Luzon with Victor D. Ramsey's name and Army identification tag tacked to it.

But his mother, Mrs. Owen D. Ramsey, a farm woman from near Piketown, Ohio, doesn't believe her son is buried beneath it.

Mrs. Ramsey believes her son is an amnesia victim roaming the streets of Dayton, where he worked before 1943.

The first telegram she received reported her son had been wounded and was in Manila. The second said he had been killed instantly on Luzon. The third message said Ramsey had been wounded and had died before reaching a hospital.

One of the two men in the foxhole with Ramsey on that fateful April 25 survived and told her Victor had been carried from the battlefield alive.

Seen by Relative

Last winter Mrs. Ramsey's aunt said she saw Victor leaving a streetcar here. Last week persons in business establishments here said they had seen a young man answering Victor's description recently. Mrs. Ramsey traced the young man to the U. S. Civil Service office, where she was told he had been referred to a Dayton construction firm.

At the construction office she was told a young man answering Victor's description had been in for an interview earlier.

When the interviewer asked the young man if he had been in service and wounded, the man rose and left.

There the trail ended.

He said he expected his requisition for $95,000 from Federal Security funds to clear the Treasury Department and General Accounting office "by noon."

Adjustment with Federal Security will be made following final passage of the District Budget for 1948, Welfare officials said.

Pilkerton revealed that most District employes were paid yesterday with funds provided by Congress in a special resolution passed July 17.

Shot, Row Charged

Caretaker At Embassy Held in Bond

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

A shot from a .45-caliber pistol pierced the night at a unit of The Netherlands Embassy, 1620 Belmont st. nw.

A woman fell onto the embassy steps with blood streaming from her face. Two passersby were soon to be embroiled in a wrestling match.

As it turned out yesterday, these incidents of Sunday night comprised no mystery. The pistol shot was just a caretaker firing, he said, to frighten away what he thought were prowlers. The woman on the steps was his wife, who suffers from nosebleed.

They both said they mistook the passersby for the prowlers and wrestled with them in attempting to apprehend them. The caretaker is William M. Klepp, 44. He and his wife, Claudia, live on the embassy grounds.

U. S. Attorney Puzzled

As if this weren't complicated enough, Assistant United States Attorney William S. McKinley yesterday had to worry about protocol.

Is the caretaker of an embassy entitled to diplomatic immunity? Can they be charged in court for criminal offenses? McKinley wondered.

The State Department said caretakers are on the "white list" as members of the embassy household and entitled to "quasi-immunity." They are not like diplomats who are on the "blue list" and therefore get complete immunity.

Diplomatic Immunity Waived

At McKinley's request, the State Department contacted The Netherlands Embassy which waived diplomatic immunity in the case. Klepp is an American citizen.

McKinley then took the case before Judge Elen K. Raedy in Municipal Court.

Klepp was held under $600 bond charged with assaulting the passersby, discharging a firearm and keeping a pistol with obliterated serial numbers. Mrs. Klepp was placed under $400 bond on an assault charge. Both cases were continued until July 29.

Benjamin Trammell, 1527 S st. nw., and Mrs. Florin Cook, 2300 17th st. nw., were the passersby.

Police Pvts. Charles W. Yeatman and Ernest G. McClanahan made the arrests.

Your Questions on Homemaking

Shortly after making a pouch pocketbook of navy blue rayon faille, I spilled glue on it. I have tried to soak off the spot by sponging with water, but it has no effect. What would you suggest? E. B. B.

White vinegar might dissolve the glue and so might acetone, which can be purchased in drug stores. Both should be tried out first on a scrap of the material, to be sure they will not remove the color or damage the fabric. Rinse the spot after treating by sponging with water. When sponging, place a towel or some other absorbent cloth inside the purse behind the spot to absorb excess moisture.

How can I soften bath towels which have hardened gradually from launderings? They are prewar quality and have been used only about 18 months. E. K. B.

There are several things that may have made these towels harden. Ironing could have done it, or the fibers may have been damaged by too strong a bleach or by insufficient rinsing after bleach was used. If bleach has damaged the fibers, it will be difficult to make the towels soft and fluffy again. At any rate, give them a good laundering and fluffing as follows:

Soak for about 15 minutes in cool water, then wash well in thick soap suds. Rinse two or three times in clear water. After washing, shake them vigorously. Then hang them outdoors to dry. If the day is windy, so much the better. The wind will help to whip up the pile. Shake the towels as you remove them from the line. Fold and put away. Turkish towels should never be ironed.

If you have been sending these towels to a commercial laundry, it would be well to look around for a company that will give them better treatment.

(1) My rayon shower curtain is getting mildewed. How can I prevent this mildew from spreading? (2) Is there any way of removing the stale coffee odor from the rubber part of a glass coffee maker that was stored for a number of years? It imparts an unpleasant flavor to the coffee. (3) The finish is wearing off my blonde maple chair seats. Should they be revarnished? W. W.

(1) To remove the mildew, wash the curtain thoroughly on a flat surface with a brush and mild soap suds. Rinse and dry well in the sun to kill the mold spores. To prevent mildew in the future, stretch the shower curtain out to dry whenever it is wet. You might also like to treat the curtain with one of the special products sold by drug and department stores to protect articles against mildew.

(2) Soaking the rubber part of the coffee maker in a soda and water solution may get rid of the stale coffee flavor that clings to it.

(3) Revarnishing jobs aren't very satisfactory unless the old varnish is removed first. This can be done with varnish remover and sandpaper. However, if the finish on the chairs isn't too badly worn, you can preserve it for a while longer by waxing.

The nickel-planted faucets in our bathroom look dark and in some places, rusty. How can I polish them? T. R. M.

Use a household cleanser on the nickel plate. If the rust doesn't come off, you can obtain a special rust remover at department and drug stores which will be effective.

I have noticed small black marks appearing on several pieces of my sterling silver flatware and on a silver pickle dish. Repeated cleanings with silver polish fail to remove these spots. Can you tell me what causes them and how I can remove them? C. R. D.

Such spots are usually caused by salt or acids like vinegar which eat into silver if they stand on its surface too long. Buffing by a jeweler will probably remove the spots.

SUN-BATHING is just as beneficial for white linens as for you, and summer's the time for it! Get out your table linens now, the Irish Linen League advises, and recondition them in the age-old way by spreading them on the grass in the sun. Wash them thoroughly first by whipping through heavy soap suds and rinsing in at least two clear waters and one bluing water. After they bask all day in the sun's rays, iron them while quite damp with the temperature control on your iron set at it's highest point

Laugh Those Frown-Grown Wrinkles Away

By Ida Jean Kain

Many of you inquire wistfully if facial exercises can tone the muscles and prevent wrinkles. I've never had the time to plunge headlong into facial exercises, but just between you and me and a wrinkle, I'm convinced there are other measures that bring more beautiful results . . . namely, relaxation and laughter.

Laughter is a tension breaker. Laughter lines are always up . . . that's why they give the face a lift. A relaxed smile eases tension and "rests" the face. When a person with a tense, set expression smiles, the tension lines ease right out. And when a cartoonist depicts a sourpuss, he draws all the lines down.

Fine lines, the beauticians tell us, come from a dry skin. I know one delightful old lady who has never been ill and has always been happy, and while she has no frown or tension wrinkles, she does have tiny, fine lines. She has never used cream on her face. Cream lubricates the skin, and pliable skin does not wrinkle as readily. I believe creams play an important role in skin beauty.

But deep lines, the kind that comes from set expressions and tension, cannot be prevented by anything as superficial as cream. Those lines that ridge the forehead, the concentration lines between the eyes and the deep grooves from nose to mouth, and down-at-the-mouth lines . . . these are the result of habitual expression and tension. Exercises can help to erase them by developing unused muscles, but it takes relaxation and a change of expression to keep them away.

Try this . . . throw back your head, tip chin in air and yawn, big. In finishing, draw the under jaw up slowly, prolonging the yawn. Repeat lazily, several times. That is guaranteed to take out the kinks that make wrinkles.

Don't Walk Plank When Junior Plays Pirate

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

CHILDREN often act wild and pugilistic at about 5 years of age. They pull a menacing gun on parents or astounded relatives and proclaim, "I am going to shoot you," which they do with a realistic bang! bang!

They do not hesitate to wish their parents dead and they express the intention of killing any playmate who does them wrong.

This behavior seems terrifying to the placid, peaceful parent. Children do not mean their threats literally. They have not learned enough in their short lives to know what a crime it is to kill. Instead, they are expressing strong emotions for which they have no other outlet.

They Realize Limitations

UNQUESTIONABLY, they do feel anger at parental prohibitions. They feel, at times, completely helpless under their domination. They find themselves increasingly unable to act as they please. They may be mad enough to do something about it.

But they know their limitations. They don't hurt people. They act like good, little boys. But when the opportunity rises in play, they give vent to their emotions. They become wholesale killers, and slay everyone in sight. They act vicious. They act as tyrants. They make everyone step around and do their bidding. They get rid of strong emotions, which would be harmful if bottled up, and no one comes to any harm. It is all in good, clean fun.

The books they read, the radios and movies they favor are those in which the characters revel in strong emotions and are capable of terrifying deeds. They may applaud the hero, but the villain thrills them. It is he who makes the play with his dastardly acts, his gunfire and rough behavior.

Villain Fascinates Them

THEY'D like to be someone similar to the villain, though they know they dare not be. But they put themselves in his place and wrestle in imitation of him, get themselves into tight places in order to fight their way out, express through him, all those emotions which civilization squelches and denies them.

Take this period with a bucket of humor. Play of this "fighting" character, the vicarious satisfactions of blood and thunder literature, radios and movies, are safety valves.

Tired of Marriage After Three Years, Girl Returns to Mother, Who's Long Campaigned For That; Distracted Husband Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 25, have been married three years and have a fine wife—she is 21—and a son, 2 years old. My wife is an only daughter, though she has three brothers, and was always spoiled by her mother, who did her best to stop our marriage until she saw that Ann really loved me, and then she said no more for a while.

After we married Ann went to her folks' house—a few doors from ours—several times a day. In fact, she lived there, almost; and was home only when I was home from work. About a month ago Ann told me her mother wanted her to "come home," and for the next few days she was hostile to me.

On the fourth evening she refused to fix supper for me, so I went to a restaurant and when I returned an hour later she was gone, leaving a note saying she was at her mother's and would be back tomorrow. The next evening when I got home Ann was there, ready to leave, looking like a wild woman.

Wife's Brothers Uphold Husband

SHE HAD moved most of the furniture to her mother's and said she had started divorce proceedings. I didn't believe her but soon got the papers. Now she is living with her mother and when I went there to ask why she'd left me, she said she was tired of being married. The more I urge her to return, the more she is set on divorce, although her mother does most of the talking. Ann says hardly a word.

The trouble is too much mother-in-law. She says, "Ann won't ever come back to you." She tried to break up one brother's marriage, but he told her where to get off; and I've had letters from two of the brothers, who say they're absolutely on my side and are advising Ann to come back to me. I've lost 16 pounds in four weeks and couldn't feel worse if Ann had died.

How can I stop the divorce, make opportunity to see Ann alone, wean her from her mother and show the mother I'm all right and that she ought to leave us alone? She is trying to turn my son against me. I have average faults, I suppose, but I don't drink, smoke or gamble; I dearly love Ann, as she knows; and I've always let her handle the money. Please advise at once. C. S.

Foolish Fellow, But Blameless

DEAR C. S.: You are a foolish fellow, but nonetheless a blameless husband, and you can easily block divorce proceedings by employing good legal counsel to present your side of the case, which would knock the props from under your wife's suit when it comes up for hearing—and might also prompt the court to engineer a confidential talk between you and Ann, in the hope of establishing a reconciliation for the boy's sake.

However, neither you nor the court can wean Ann from her mother, if she doesn't see fit to try to save herself in that respect.

She looked like a wild woman when the break came, you say. And since then her mother does most of the talking when you show up. This indicates that Ann is emotionally sick almost to the point of mental collapse, due to the mother's ruthless drive to completely possess and dominate her.

Child's Welfare Is in Jeopardy

OBVIOUSLY the mother would be a ruinous influence on your son, too, if allowed a free hand, and in my opinion it's your business to prevent that, if possible. Ann's distrait behavior indicates that temporarily, at least, she isn't a fit custodian of the child; and neither is her mother, of course,—as I gather Ann's brothers would testify, if it came to a showdown.

Thus if you were to contest Ann's divorce suit with a counter suit for custody of the boy, arguing your good character, Ann's instability and the mother's infamous record as a troublemaker, you might win a verdict that made you master of the situation,—a verdict which restored the boy to you, in which case Ann might return of her own accord. Whatever the outcome, both you and Ann need psychiatric help; but for the present, take this problem to a lawyer.

Dries and Shines

A new dish towel, containing approximately 20 per cent asbestos and having excellent water absorption and polishing properties, is now available to help speed dish wiping. The asbestos, combined with 80 per cent cotton produces a fabric resembling linen, say manufacturers.

In the Gravy

When served on mashed potatoes, hot biscuits, bread dressing, spaghetti or rice, gravy not only extends the good flavor of meat, but also adds nourishment to the meal. The fat in the drippings has energy value; and research has shown that some of the vitamins in the meat go into the drippings during cooking.

Lipstick Tissue Books

Booklets of lipstick tissues, packaged like book matches and carrying advertising on the covers, are now being produced by a leading match company. The booklets will be handed out in women's shops, hotels and restaurants like book matches are given away with tobacco purchases.

Should Be Jarred

If you're planning to put up fruit preserves this year, keep this tip in mind. Weigh rather than measure the ingredients because the weight of a quart will vary with the kind of fruit, the way it is packed, and the shape and size of the pieces. Weighing is more accurate and gives better results than does measuring.

Mme. Trompowsky Says Farewell

By Marie McNair

FASHION'S forecast for fall was on view yesterday at the farewell cocktail party at the Statler given by Mme. Trompowsky, wife of the Brazilian Air Minister, who leaves tomorrow for home.

The hostess who has been in this country two months, has visited many such historic places as West Point and the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

She must also have toured the shops, for her satin gown of gunmetal gray, bespoke Paris, with its long skirt artfully draped with a front swag.

Receiving with her were her son-in-law, Commodore Heck of the Brazilian Purchasing Commission, and her daughter, Mme. Heck, as smartly dressed as her mother in a floor length gown of electric blue accented with silver bugles.

Mme. Lima in Attendance

Dark eyed Mme. Faria Lima, wife of the Assitant Air Attache of the Brazilian Embassy, was another one of the "best dressed" in the room, wearing a slim black frock with draped bustle back and a drape at the front, and a brimmed black hat trimmed with net.

The room was filled with handsome women. There were Mme. Carneiro, in sheer black with a hat of palest pink ostrich; Mrs. Lauris Norstad, wife of the General, in a group which included Gen and Mrs. E. M. Powers and Gen. Burton Hovey, commandant of Boiling Field, and Mrs. Hovey, who wore a champagne-colored striped satin frock. A passing waiter beamed upon Mrs. William O. Spears with, "You're Mrs. Roosevelt, aren't you?" And Mrs. Spears, who bears no resemblance to the former First Lady except in height, told me that it had happened once before, when Admiral and Mrs. Spears had been present at a plane-christening by Mrs. Roosevelt. The next day Mrs. Spears' maid came to her with the newspaper picture, which showed the Spears and Mrs. Roosevelt. "Why, you look just like her," the maid said with pride.

Service Set on Hand

Gen. and Mrs. Carl Spaatz were there and Gen. and Mrs. J. G. Ord, Capt. Floyd Ferris, USN, with Mrs. Ferris; and Admiral Dodsworth Martin, of the Brazilian Naval Commission; Maj. Gen. C. C. Chancey, Maj. Gen. Frederick Anderson, Admiral and Mrs. Clinton Braine, Mr. and Mrs. Garrison Norton, Gen. and Mrs. I. C. Carpenter.

Allen Dawson, head of the Brazilian desk at the State Department, brought his pretty bride in gray satin with a halo hat of varicolored flowers, and others there were Gen. Henrique Teixeira Lott, Military Attache of the Brazilian Embassy, draped with braid and service ribons, who was accompanied by Mme Lott, and Olavo Fontoura, member of the Cabinet of Sao Paulo, Brazil, a visitor here with Mme. Fontoura.

Country Club Scene Of Starlight Dance

MISS Martha-Best Yorke and Miss Anne Revercomb shared honors at a dance given by the newly appointed Secretary of War and Mrs. Kenneth Royall, who entertained at a roof-top party at the Army and Navy Country Club last evening.

Miss Yorke is the niece of Mrs. Royall and the datghter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Jones Yorke of Concord, N. C., who are here for a week. They will attend the ceremony tomorrow when Undersecretary of War Royall takes the oath of office as Secretary. Miss Revercomb, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Chapman Revercomb of West Virginia, is leaving the end of the week with her mother for their home in Charleston and later will visit Miss Mary Page Swift in Long Beach, Calif.

Before the dance got under way at 9 o'clock, Miss Yorke and Miss Revercomb were entertained at a small dinner given by Miss Katherine Elkins, who came down with her mother, Mrs. Davis Elkins, from their summer home at Ventnor, N. J., and will return today.

In the group also were Miss Nancy Graney, here from West Virginia for the festivities; Tom Camby of Maryland, Wiley Smith of Goldsboro, N. C., a guest at the Royall house, Charles Moran, John Bowles of Washington, Miss Maureen Elkins, sister of the hostess, and Fred Horsemann of Philadelphia.

Army Band Plays

The Army Air Forces Band played as the 200 young people swirled about the dance floor, which was swept by cool breezes and lighted with colored lights.

In the receiving line, with Col. Arthur W. Allen to make the introductions, were Mr. and Mrs. Royall, the latter in a bright flower print; Senator and Mrs. Revercomb, she in chartreuse chiffon, and Mrs. Yorke, wearing a black faille gown and looking as young as her daughter. Miss Yorke's gown was a bouffant white mousseline de soie. Miss Revercomb wore a black and pink pique. The girls wore orchids in their hair. Their mothers and Mrs. Royall had pinned their own orchids to their gowns.

Today Senator and Mrs. Revercomb and their daughter will entertain at a luncheon for Mr. and Mrs. Yorke, Miss Yorke and Miss Graney, to be followed by a swimming party by Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz and a cocktail party at which Miss Ann Currier will be hostess at her home in Georgetown.

McGinnis Entertains

A cocktail party for the press was given yesterday afternoon by the sergeant at arms of the Senate, Edward McGinnis. The party was held at his office in the Capitol.

Man From Grindstone

Chip's Unbroken After 1500 Hours Bucking Molotov

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

NEWLY appointed State Department Counselor Charles Bohlen estimates he's sat opposite Molotov between 1500 and 2000 hours. So disturbing a vis-a-vis would make any ordinary person a subject for shock treatment. But handsome, imperturbable "Chip," whose conference attendance record is unrivaled, thrives on such encounters.

Chip started his Russification back in 1928 when, after a spell in Prague, the Foreign Service sent him to Paris for two years' study. He spent his summers in Estonia, with a Russian family knee deep in "charme slav," mastering the language's complicated quirks. Since then, except for a year and a half in Tokyo, he's been enmeshed in Russian affairs.

He obtained his first Moscow toehold under Ambassador Bill Bullitt, later became interpreter for Presidents Roosevelt and Truman. Though he likes the more obvious activities like tennis and shooting, his real sport is reading. Chip reads, reads, reads, always about Russia.

Chip was born on Grindstone Island, 50 yards from the Canadian border, in a house which Mrs. Robert L. Bacon now owns. He was brought up in Aiken; later his family lived in Ipswich, Mass. He and his pretty blond, dimpled Mrs. Bohlen have a young daughter and a son born a few months ago. Her brother Charlie, of Philadelphia, is also a Russian scholar and at present directs the State Department's radio broadcasts toward Sovietland.

Relatively Simple Victory

JOHN FOSTER, M. P., once the British Embassy's prize charmer, will be back in September. He will address the American Bar Association out in Cleveland on some suitable obscure subject.

John, who astonished even his most abject admirers by rising from civilian status to brigadier general in one magnificent swoop, is now a Member of Parliament, having gained his Conservative seat by 7 votes. His margin of victory was achieved, so he says, by mobilizing all his relatives, including a crippled great aunt.

Right now he's having a wonderful time, for he has proposed to Britain's austere legislative body an investigation of vice and white slavery. It wasn't so long ago that Foster defended John Amery in Britain's most famous modern treason trial and earned the apt sobriquet of "Renaissance Bravo" from Reporter Rebecca West.

A Bucolic Discord

THOSE WHO love Francesca Lodge, wife of Representative John Davis Lodge of Connecticut, and her numerous Braggiotti family, will be sad to hear that brother Mario will soon be divorced. Mario, one of the eight Braggiottis, is the most musical, and for many prewar years performed in a double piano act with Jacques Frey. Late in the war he broadcast for the OWI from Rome.

Now he's back in the professional world.

His wife is the exotic "Baby" Clow, daughter of the late Mrs. William Clow, one of Chicago's truly great ladies. The Braggiottis and their young son tried living on a Connecticut farm. It was great fun for a visit but proved a trifle difficult for steady living. So they decided to sell the barn and live, more comfortably, apart.

Mario, who's always called "Tunti," was in Washington this spring with his brother, Stiano, who plays a leading part opposite Elizabeth Bergner in "The Two Mrs. Carrolls."

Speaking of Silver

UP ON CAPITOL HILL the anti-Brickerites, who seem to be vociferous and many, are still joking about the attempt made to shoot the stylish Ohio Senator. They insist that the assailant, who fired at practically point-blank range, missed only because he didn't use a silver bullet!

A few wealthy Midwestern families soon will be sitting on chairs and eating off plates once owned by the Duchess of Kent. The lovely, Greek-born duchess recently had an auction and not only sold furniture, porcelain and pictures—but a quantity of silver which the royal family felt obliged to buy back. The silver was engraved with royal crests and monograms, so it was considered bad taste to let any outsider own it.

Many of the duchess' things were bought by Alfred Farber of Cleveland, owner of some of the country's most breathtaking antiques—and who sells as well as buys in a remarkable museum like a store.

No one knows why the duchess auctioned off so many of her possessions. Some say H. R. H. will marry again, but the chances are she's like any housewife—and has accumulated too many dust-catching gadgets through the years.

National Holiday Celebrated At Polish Embassy Reception

POLAND'S national holiday was celebrated last night at an embassy reception given by the Ambassador and Mme. Winiewicz. It was a black tie affair with receiving hours between 9 and 11. Field flowers, like those which are so plentiful in Poland at this season, decorated the rooms, and Mme. Winiewicz wore the colors of Poland in her red and white corsage.

Guests were greeted in the large drawing room. A bar and buffet were set up in the ballroom, and coffee and tea were served with sweets in the dining room. Daughters of embassy staff members assisted, costumed in native Crakow dress.

The national holiday of Poland was created in 1944 by the Polish Committee of National Liberation, when only a section of Poland had been liberated from German occupation.

Among the many diplomats and their wives who attended the function were Ambassador of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Slavik, the Ambassador of Yugoslavia, Sava N. Kosanovic, the Ambassador of Russia and Mme. Novikov, the Ambassador of the Argentine and Mme. Ivanissevich, the Ambassador of Turkey, Huseyin Ragip Beydur, and the Ambassador of Haiti, Joseph D. Charles.

Others included the Ambassador of Australia and Mrs. Makin, the Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de Espinosa de los Monteros, the Ambassador of Italy, Alberto Tarchiani, the Ambassador of Portugal and Mme. de Bianchi, the Ambassador of China and Mme. Koo, the Ambassador of Peru and Senora de Prado, the Ambassador of Honduras and Senora de Caceres, the Ambassador of Costa Rica and Senora de Gutierrez, the Minister of Sweden and Mme. Eriksson, the Minister of Iceland and Mme. Thors and the Minister of Ireland and Mrs. Nunan.

Attaches Are Feted At Embassy

By Elizabeth Maguire

THE military and the social gathered at the Indian Embassy late yesterday afternoon for cocktails. The host, Ambassador Asaf Ali, gave the party as a farewell to the retiring Military Attache, Col. Nawabzada Mohammed Sher Ali Khan, and to introduce the new Military Attache and Mrs. B. M. Kaul.

Mrs. Kaul, who is young and very beautiful, has two daughters, aged 6 and 4. At the party yesterday she met an interesting group of Washington society. The new Undersecretary of State, Robert A. Lovett, was there, and also the new Assistant Secretary of State, Norman Armour.

From the British Embassy came Gen. and Mrs. Julian Gascoigne and handsome Col. G. E. Prior Palmer. The later is a famous polo player and before the war played on the English team against the Americans. He and the First Secretary of the Indian Embassy, M. O. A. Baig, recalled the time when they were classmates at Sandhurst.

The French Military Attache, Gen. Maurice Mathenet, and Mrs. Mathenet, attended with Col. L. G. Clark, new Military Attache of the Canadian Embassy. Miss Virginia Baker came without her twin, looking slim and lovely in a black satin cocktail dress. She accompanied her mother, Mrs. Harold E. Baker.

Ratan Nehru, U. N. delegate from India and cousin of Pandit Nehru, talked with the Indian Minister, B. R. Sen, about the division of India, which becomes legal after August 15. He is also a cousin of Mrs. Raja Hutheesing, who recently visited here.

The Indian ladies in their saris and sandles made the flowers decorating the rooms superfluous. Although the large drawing room of the embassy is one of the loveliest in Washington, the colors of the saris were what caught the eye. Mrs. Chopra, wife of the Second Secretary, wore pearls and emeralds with her white chiffon sari edged in green, and Mrs. Sen, wife of the Minister, wore a sari of beige chiffon trimmed with red and green sequins. Mrs. Baig's sari was a Hattie Carnegie print.

Dr. Kenneth Landon was at the party with his wife, who is the author of "Anna and the King of Siam."

Study Types To Get Along With Others

Do you know how to get along with opposites in human personality types—the extroverts and the introverts?

If you don't you may find that at times you aren't able to deal effectively with other people, according to Redbook magazine for July, which tells of the outstanding characteristics of each type and some general rules for dealing with them:

"Introverts are just as important to the world as extroverts—some have made great contributions—but they tend to be self-conscious and sensitive. They like to work alone, are often suspicious of others and are sometimes envious. Extroverts, on the other hand, find their satisfactions outside themselves. Their characteristics are geniality, warmth and heartiness—sometimes accompanied by noise and bluster. They enjoy being with others.

"Here are some good general rules for getting along with other people, but some are more suitable for dealing with introverts, while others are more effective with extroverts.

When to Argue

"The odd-numbered statements are more effective in dealing with introverts and the even-numbered apply better to extroverts. For example, you can argue safely with an extrovert but not with an introvert. Introverts like flattery and praise and resent criticisms or comments on mistakes. However, they are uncomfortable in the presence of excessive glad-handling and enthusiasm. It is not advisable to try to help an introvert without being asked and they resent being watched at their work.

When an introvert asks for your opinion, he may not want what you think but may seek reassurance for his own ideas. Introverts are neither borrowers nor lenders. They like to have things in writing.

Don'ts Begin Here

1. Do not argue. Give the other person the satisfaction of winning his point.
2. Avoid flattery, apple polishing or praise where it is not deserved.
3. Don't criticize or comment on the mistakes of others.
4. Don't wait to be asked to help a person with a difficult task or in making a difficult decision.
5. Don't stand around and watch another person work.
6. If your opinion is asked, say what you think, not what you suspect the person wants you to say.
7. Keep all appointments and promises faithfully and promptly.
8. Always be cheerful, optimistic and full of enthusiasm.
9. Don't borrow things.
10. If an invitation is declined, don't indulge in further coaxing or persuading.
11. Take nothing for granted. Check all assumptions concerning what others might like or think.
12. Don't insist that all important understandings be put in writing."

Ringside Table — With Mary Harris

A DANCER'S LIFE IS A HUNGRY LIFE. "Gosh I'm glad to be working at the Lotus. It means I can have a big steak lunch to carry me over until dinner after the midnight show," said Dillard Winton of the Winton and Diane dance team. This does not mean that Dillard's bankroll is usually anemic, but dancers can't eat before going into action. So the night shows at the Lotus mean daytime eating in contrast to the one-meal-a-day theater grind when shows begin in the morning and only an occasional sandwich is permissible until after the last show . . . Winton and Diane will soon move on to Miami's Olympic Theater. It's a top spot. But to them it means a return to going hungry all day—on a caviar and lobster salary.

Commander Vincent Gallagher and the staff of his King Cole Room will unlax next Sunday at a party on the Gallagher farm, out in Howard County, Maryland.

JUDITH SARGENT, character ballerina, heads the new Casino Royal revue which opened last night. She's just finished seven weeks at Leon and Eddie's—a gilt-edged guarantee of ability. Also at C. R. are Sis and Sonny Arthur, lively young comedians, singer-femcee Louise Lee, the daintily stepping Elaine Shaffer Dancers and that wildcat of rhythm, Jack "Jive" Schafer, and his band.

SURE-FIRE PROGRAM. When Bob Knight, bandleader at the Lounge Riviera, opens at the Capitol Theater tomorrow he'll do three electric guitar solos that always click in a big way with theater audiences. They're "Tiger Rag," "St. Louis Blues" and "Bells of St. Mary's."

Should anyone possibly be interested, a first-rate hangover is said to be a bottle of beer plus some stuffed celery. Credit for this info goes to a wide-eyed young lady dining in Wardman's Metronome Room.

CHOPSTICKS VS. FORKS. You'll see many Good Earth guests using chopsticks. Usually they're service people who've learned the trick in the Orient. On asking Manager Jimmy Lee if it was hard to acquire chopstick technique, he said, "Oh, my, no! It's much easier than for a Chinese to learn to use a knife and fork. He has to acquire skill and study Emily Post at the same time."

GIRL MAJOR DOMOS. The tall 'n' lovely blonde now greeting folks at Michel's is Anna Marie Schultz. She's the widow of a major who lost his life in World War II . . . Another eye-filling blonde, Anne Ogden, is now in charge of the Dubonnet Room. She succeeds sweet Betty Rundvold who's taking a long rest at her home on Staten Island . . . One of the most efficient hostesses in town is dark-eyed Alice Gleason who keeps things moving but pronto in the Neptune Room. Also, to prove that some girls have everything, she looks like Rosalind Russell . . . Dignified Martha von Kleist who ushers customers to their tables in the Rainbow Room, could claim the title of a German baroness if she wished. But she doesn't. The late General von Kleist was her uncle.

Mr. Wiz, the jovial seer of Merry-Land, recently went to New York to read the palms of a party at the Plaza. Among the celebs whose future he inspected were Elizabeth Arden, Clarabelle Walsh and Douglas Chandor, famed portrait painter.

COOLER-OFFERS. Huby Foo's has just gotten out a new card of summer tropical drinks. Most of them have a base of fortified rum—151 proof. (Brother!) . . . Chicken salad espagnol topped with sour cream is a refreshing July item at Normandy Farm . . . New Orleans fizzes and sazerac made according to old Louisiana formulas are among the fine summer standbys at the Old New Orleans . . . A jigger of rum is poured spang into the middle of the "Carioca parfait" served at the Muses . . . The Silver Fox takes a lot of pride in its mint juleps. They're really fitten to please a Kentucky colonel . . . Smoked turkey with fruit salad is a Congo Room inspiration for hot-weather dining.

D. C. Banks Show Decline In Earnings

Net earnings form current operations of national and nonnational banks in the District of Columbia in the first half of 1947 amounted to $3,405,000, a decrease of $212,000 from the results in the first half of 1946, the Comptroller of the Currency reported yesterday.

The decrease occurred notwithstanding that total current earnings aggregated $10,592,000 in the 1947 period and $9,879,000 a year previously.

Salaries of officers increased from $1,040,000 for the first half of 1946 to $1,132,000 this year. Compensation to employes other than officers amounted to $2,128,000 for the 1946 period against $2,550,000 this year. Taxes, other than on net income, amounted to $349,000 last year and $483,000 this year.

Current operating expenses totaled $7,187,000 in the first half of 1947 and $6,262,000 in the comparative 1946 period.

PCA Changes Plans

Pennsylvania-Central Airlines Corp. has asked the Securities and Exchange Commission for authority to withdraw registration statements.

The airline told the commission "substantial changes in conditions" have occurred since it registered $9,850,000 of 15-year 3½ per cent convertible income debentures last May 29.

"The directors have concluded," the company said, "that the complete financing program . . . is impracticable."

United Cigar-Whelan Stores

United Cigar-Whelan Stores Corp., reports that the corporation and its subsidiaries had a net profit of $384,124 in the second quarter of 1947, compared with $450,624 in the corresponding quarter last year. Net profit for the six months ended June 30, 1947, amounted to $614,485, compared with $800,635 in the corresponding period last year.

Net sales, after deducting sales and excise taxes, amounted to $18,890,451 for the second quarter and $37,337,983 for the six months ended June 30, 1947, compared with $19,252,995 for the second quarter of 1946 and $36,143,865 for the first six months of 1946.

Oriental Building Association

Oriental Building Association directors at the first meeting of its eighty-seventh year elected Ernest R. Gerner to the post of assistant secretary-treasurer.

The new officer has been with the institution since 1935 and served in the Navy during World War II.

Ralph A. Xander, secretary, told the directors that the past year was one of the best in the history of the organization, with loans, savings shares, reserves and resources reaching new highs.

He stated that assests are expected to pass the 10-million-dollar mark during the current year.

Return of U. S. War Dead Will Begin Monday

Paris, July 22 (AP).—The return of United States World War II dead from European graves will get underway Monday, at Henri Chapelle Cemetery near Liege, Belgium, the American Graves Registration Commission announced today.

The Henri Chapelle Cemetery is the second largest in the European area, and 17,319 Americans are buried there. It was established by the First Army in September 1944.

Many of its dead fell in the battle for Aachen and in the Ardennes campaign.

"Only those dead whose next of kin have elected to have their remains brought back to the homeland will be returned," the AGRC said.

The first shipment is scheduled to depart from Antwerp early in October.

The announcement pointed out that the Henri Chapelle Cemetery will be closed to all visitors as of July 28, including relatives of the dead.

$38,884 Is Bid For Surfacing County Road

Baltimore, July 22 (AP).—B. H. Houghton, Inc., of Annapolis submitted a low bid of $38,884 for surfacing 1½ miles of Woodyard Road between Marlboro and Patterson Roads in Prince Georges County, the State Roads Commission reported today.

In another bid opening, for construction of a treated timber pile bridge and dam over Tonytank Creek from Salisbury to Shad Point, low price was $47,471, submitted by the George and Lynch Co. of Wilmington, Del.

Other bids for the Prince Georges County project included:

Eugene Chaney, Upper Marlboro, $39,846; F. L. Houser, College Park, $43,655, and the Reliable Construction Co., Annapolis, $43,870.

Bids for the Worcester County project included:

Walter Paving Co., Salisbury, $48,733; Hamill Construction Co., Baltimore, $58,250.

Sagebrush Deserts Give Way to Plow

Boise, Idaho (U.P.).—A new type of sage-busting plow is being demonstrated in southern Idaho which may mean the end of the sagebrush deserts.

Most reseeding on the range now is done by airplane. But a lot of the seeds don't germinate. They must take root from the top of the ground.

A. C. Hull, ecologist for the range division of the intermountain forest experimentation station, says a grass seeder may be developed to fit right behind the plow. That would put the seed under the earth where it belongs. Furthermore, the ground would be stirred up.

The plow was developed in Australia and is known as a "stump-jumping" plow. It is a knee-action disc plow. Rocks and other obstacles don't faze it.

Virginia Beach To Urge Early Erosion Check

Virginia Beach, Va., July 22 (AP).—Erosion control proposals were considered here at a mass meeting attended by 300 residents despite the heavy downpour of rain.

Clyde P. Nicholson, town engineer, reported that plans being drawn by Army engineers are expected to call for about 29 jetties to be built at a cost up to $750,000 to stabilize the beach. It is expected one third of the cost would be borne by the Federal Government, and town officials have been considering various means of raising the remainder.

Garrett Smith suggested annexation of North Virginia Beach, beginning at 50th st., which he said was receiving town advantages. This, he pointed out, would provide additional revenue to help finance the erosion control program.

It was decided at the mass meeting to advise the Town Council that citizens feel immediate action should be taken to check the erosion, which, it has been stated, has been washing away the beach at the rate of about one foot a year for the last 20 years. In one area, the water now frequently covers the beach back to the boardwalk at high tide.

House Would End Tax Exemptions For Servicemen

By The Associated Press

The House passed and sent to the Senate last night a bill terminating December 31, 1947, the extra tax exemptions allowed members of the armed services. The vote was 119 to 19.

The law to be ended exempts from taxation all the service pay of enlisted men and gives officers an exemption of $1500. The exemption of a civilian is $500.

Representative Eberharter (D., Pa.) said the bill would yield 200 million dollars more revenue annually but opposed it on the ground it would wreck the recruiting program.

Special treatment under the admissions tax for members of the armed forces in uniform would be terminated December 31 under the bill. The trasnportation tax exemption to service men and women traveling on furlough also would end on the same date.

Fleming Favored For Smithsonian

Robert V. Fleming, president of Riggs National Bank, yesterday won approval of the House for a six-year term as a member of the Smithsonian Institution's board of regents.

Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.) presented the resolution, to appoint Fleming as a regent to succeed Frederic A. Delano, former chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and an uncle of the late President Roosevelt.

Halleck said Delano had resigned because of ill health. He pointed out the resolution must clear through the Senate.

Frederick Policeman Charges Chef With Breach of Duty

Fredericks, Md., July 22.—Veteran Police Sergt. Daniel Swomley, his work recently changed from crime-cruising to beat-pounding, today filed charges against his superiors of "dereliction of duty."

No date was set for hearing on the charges, which informed sources say may lead to a wide-open expose of police practices in the Frederick force.

Swomley's charges were placed against Police Chief Frederick M. Straley and Police Lieut. Reno S. Six, both of whom worked their way up through the ranks as fellow-patrolmen with Swomley.

Chief Asks to Be Heard

Chief Straley promptly issued a formal statement denying "any improper conditions exist within the Department" and said he would ask for an immediate hearing. A regularly scheduled meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners today was cancelled without explanation though the board is authorized to hear such complaints.

In preferring the general charges against Chief Straley and Lieutenant Reno, second in command Sergeant Swomley said he would present specifications at a hearing, which the Frederick City Charter provides must follow. The Board of Police Commissioners is expected to conduct the hearing, though the Charter provides it may be held by the board, the mayor, or the Board of Aldermen.

Officials Receive Charge

Swomley, 48, and a member of the force for 13 years, was, until this week, a round sergeant. In such capacity, he cruised Frederick streets daily in a radio-equipped scout car investigating crime complaints. On Saturday, Chief Straley assigned him to permanent night duty, pounding a beat in the town's northwestern, residential section.

The transferred sergeant sent copies of his general charge to Mayor Lloyd D. Culler, to members of the Board of Aldermen, to City Attorney Richard E. Zimmerman, and to the five-man Board of Police Commissioners.

The Police Commissioners are headed by William M. Storm, former State's Attorney for Frederick and a leading lawyer here. Others on the commission are Roger R. Rice, wholesale merchant; A Hart Atchison, undertaker; Benjamin Rosenour, retired merchant, and Roger B. Wolfe, district manager for a leading oil company.

Goering's Last Regret: Czechs, Jews Still Live

Berlin, July 22 (AP).—Unrepentant Herman Goering went to his self-inflicted death with regrets that he had not been "completely ruthless" and "completely exterminated the Czechs and the Jews," according to records now in possession of American authorities.

The records are of conversations he had with one of his attorneys during the Nuernberg trials. The attorney, Dr. Werner Bross, made copious notes, a portion of which were disclosed by the Associated Press.

Dr. Bross noted that Goering said: "I'll tell you one thing. I have learned now that one must not take half measures. If I were in power again, I would completely exterminate the Czechs and the Jews. Then at least, come what may, two ethnic European groups that will only cause us more misery would be destroyed. One must be completely ruthless in such matters."

The atttorney said Goering also would have liked to massacre some of his codefendents at Nuernberg.

American experts who studied Dr. Bross's notes remarked that Goering was still obsessed in July 1946 by the thought of an impending war between the Soviet Union and the Western Allies—a war, moreover, in which the Germans would be fighting on the side of the Western Allies.

Diphtheria Deaths Cut

London (U.P.).—Under a national immunization program begun in 1940, deaths from diphtheria in Great Britain have dropped by almost two-thirds. Before the war, diphtheria claimed some 3,000 victims a year.

Fake Murder Used to Get $5000 'Bribe'

Noto's brother-in-law, Sam Sole, and Lieut. Clarence German told Magistrate James R. Cadden the following accpount of how an act by seven conspirators led Sole to give his life's savings to "hush up" a killing that never took place.

Last May Sole was threatened by two men after he had refused to sell his fruit stand. He asked the aid of his brother-in-law, Noto, and accompanied by two "bodyguards" they went to a night club where Sole identified one of the men who had threatened him.

Then several shots rang out from a gun carried by one of the bodyguards, and the alleged threatener staged a dramatic collapse. A pair of "detectives" appeared on the scene and informed Sole it would take $30,000 to silence the "murder."

Sole then drew $5000 from the bank and turned it over to one of the bodyguards, with the understanding that Noto would contribute his share of the "bribe."

Magistrate Cadden ordered Noto held in $7500 bond for grand jury action.

Billboard Makes Home

Beaver Falls, Pa., (U.P.).—Ernest Wicker solved his housing problem by building a three-room house on the back of a highway billboard. He said "the man who owned the property was real kind, and told him I could live there as long as me and my woman kept the place tidied up nice."

13,000 D. C. Mothers, Babies Aided by U. S. Care Program

Approximately 13,000 Washington mothers and infants have benefited from the Emergency Maternity and Infant Care program, now being "closed out" on the books of the United States Children's Bureau.

The program, in operation here since June, 1943, has seen authorization of $1,052,748 in Federal funds to the District of Columbia for providing maternity care for servicemen's wives and medical, hospital and nursing care for their infants throughout the first year of life.

Liquidation of the program starting on July 1 was ordered by Congress in its appropriation for the new fiscal year. However, even before the congressional directive, Children's Bureau officials pointed out, the number of cases accepted for care under the program dropped on a national basis from 47,000 during a peak month of the war period to an average of 9300 a month for the current year.

Although the program is now drawing to its official end care still will be provided for all wives and infants now receiving care, as well as for all those who were eligible for such care as of June 30.

In Washington, the program was under the direction of Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, of the Bureau of Maternal and Child Welfare, District Health Department.

Eligible for participation were wives and infants of men in the four lowest pay grades of the armed services.

During the past six months, the Children's Bureau reported yesterday, the "stork bill" has averaged about $100 a baby, and the average cost of caring for a sick infant was $67. As of the beginning of this month, more than $124,900,000 had been alloted to the States to cover the cost of the program. Congress has appropriated another three million dollars for the two fiscal years, 1947-48 and 1948-49, to cover costs of liquidating the program. Altogether, 1,421,000 cases have been completed or approved for care under the program.

In Virginia, 22,630 maternity cases and 6815 infant care cases occurred during the period, with $2,151,541 in Federal funds allotted for their care through June 30. In Maryland, there were 16,850 maternity cases and 3230 infant care cases authorized, and $1,781,327 allotted in Federal funds.

Virgina Crops Benefit From Good Weather

Richmond, Va., July 22 (AP).—Crops in Virginia are continuing to show good growth, the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service said today.

In many northern and western counties, the harvesting of hay and small grains was further delayed last week by frequent rains. The rainfall last week was generally satisfactory throughout the State.

Grain harvest is going forward in all but southeastern and most eastern counties, where it has virtually ended. Farmers throughout the tobacco area are busy putting tobacco curing barns in shape. Harvest of early summer varieties of apples and peaches is reported to have started.

Tomatoes in Virginia are said to be in good shape this year. The movement of tomatoes to canneries is increasing rapidly. This year's average yield per acre is expected to be considerably above last year's blight-stricken crop.

The watermelon condition, however, continues poor, said the crop reporting service. No substantial movement of melons is expected before August 15.

Virginia's commercial potato crop has turned out better than expected, the service said. Cabbage is meeting a good demand, in contrast to the slow market for snap beans.

Slave Maid Finds Emotions Mixed By New Freedom

St. Louis, July 22 (AP).—Dora Jones, Negro maid whose former mistress was convicted in San Diego, Calif., Saturday of slavery charges under the thirteenth amendment, expressed mixed emotions today on arriving here to make her home with a brother.

"I'm glad to have my freedom," the 57-year-old woman told reporters, "but in many ways I'm not used to it yet. It's kind of hard not to feel bad about Mrs. Ingalls—I was with her such a long time.

"Mrs. Ingalls was good to me when things were going well." She did not elaborate.

Mrs. Ingalls Breaks Down

San Diego, Calif., July 21 (AP).—Mrs. Elizabeth Ingalls, 62, broke down today for the first time since her conviction of slavery Saturday night and cried out to a visiting clergyman at the county jail: "Will I have to suffer until the day I die?"

Mrs. Ingalls will be sentenced July 29.

United States officials said the charge against Mr. Ingalls probably would be dismissed.

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

National Weather Summary

Copyr. 1947, Rev. L. A. Warren

24-HOUR FORECAST: Cool, comfortable temperatures are in store for most of the Nation today. Afternoon readings will be in the 70's from Maine to West Virginia and the Lakes Region. Sultry weather with maximum readings in the 90's is the outlook from Florida to New Mexico. Thermometers will again climb above 100 degrees in the Southwest Desert region, the "hotbox" of the Nation. The remainder of the United States can expect maximum temperatures in the 80's.

Forecasters are calling for showers from Maine to Pennsylvania, in northern Texas and Oklahoma, while rain is expected in Kansas. Scattered thunderstorms will form in towering thunderheads over the Rockies and the northern Plains. (The affected areas show where storms will occur in the next 24 hours).

Skies will be overcast in the New England States, forecasters say.

(Hatched areas on the inset map denote partial cloudiness.)

Cool, comfortable weather with fog and low clouds along the coast can be expected in the Far West as cool northerly winds flow around the Pacific high pressure cell.

Air flow around the high pressure cell centered over Michigan will determine weather over a large section of the country. Cool northerly winds from eastern Canada will bring cooler weather to the Northeast while warm, moist air from the Gulf of Mexico will drop its moisture in the Rockies and the northern Plains.

Highest temperatures this afternoon will range from 107 degrees at Las Vegas to 64 at Oakland, Calif. Forecast maximum readings include Fort Worth, 98; Tulsa, 90; Atlanta and Kansas City, 84; Nashville, 83; Hartford, 82; St. Louis, 80; Boston, Chicago and Bismarck, 78; Washington, 77; Philadelphia, 76; New York, Milwaukee, Cleveland and Duluth, 75; Detroit and Pittsburgh, 74; Buffalo, 73, and Albany, 72 degrees.

'Constituent' Is Important Guy These Days

CONVERSATION PIECE

The voice calling the Senator's office identified itself as belonging to a farmer from back home.

"I was wondering if the Senator had done anything about my letter."

"Oh, yes," he was assured a trifle vaguely. "The Senator has been giving it a good deal of thought."

"Good. That's a very serious situation, you know."

"Yes, it is. And you can rest assured that the Senator will do his best to remedy it."

"Fine. And I hope he'll take care of those fellows who are causing all the trouble."

"I'm sure he will."

"We can't be too careful with those fellows. They're dangerous."

"The Senator will be very careful of them. Thanks for calling us, and if you're up this way, drop in to see us."

That is an almost verbatim report of a conversation between a polite but careful secretary, and a man who is one of Washington's most inveterate practical jokers.

MAIL BAG

I was puzzled for a moment when I opened the envelope. Inside was a check for $1 and a form letter from WWDC saying that the dollar was being paid for a news tip that had been furnished that station.

The explanation was written below, in longhand. It read:

"The check and note should be self-explanatory. Will you please pass the check along to Children's Hospital—and I hope you get a million more of the same."

The check had been issued to Charles H. Younger, of 5300 4th st. nw. (Bell Cab No. 152).

ADDENDUM

Our recent puns about the triple AAF Band wedding moves Staff Sergt. Robert E. Zipp, a member of the band at Fort Myer, Va., to make pun of our feeble efforts. Bob postcards:

"I heard of a similar situation in which a musician's wife fretted because hubby's job took him from bar to bar. But she was a wise girl, and didn't harp on the subject because she was afraid hubby might take his drum and beat it, or pack up his horn and blow."

SOFT JOB

Sportscaster Bob Wolff is going to be a busy little bee tonight.

At 6:15 he'll do his regular Sports Review from WINX. Then he'll hop into a cab and head for the Harrington Hotel, to put on a sports show over the DuMont television network.

When that's finished at 8 o'clock, he'll have to grab another cab and hustle out to Griffith Stadium, to televize tonight's game between the Nats and the Tigers.

Wolff

And when that's over, there'll be a mad dash back to 8th and Eye, to do his 11:15 Sports Final program over WINX.

Robert—wouldn't it be cheaper to just buy a cab of your own?

BOSTON VERSION

As we drifted through Rock Creek Park Sunday, we heard a group of picnicking children singing lustily:

Hail, Hail, the gang's all here,
Mustn't say the naughty word,
Mustn't say the naughty word,
Hail, Hail, the gang's all here,
Mustn't say the naughty word now.

DISCOVERY

Government clerks have finally found a good use for red tape.

They're using GI red (Scotch) tape to hold up their tomato vines.

How to Tell Divorce Impends

New York. — Admiral Halsey once berated me for having printed a story about a dinner he gave at a hotel owned by the Emperor of Japan and signing the Emperor's name to the dinner check. Halsey said that as a result of the publication of the story he summoned an admiral he suspected of having told it to me and penalized him by ordering him to pay the check . . . It was paid with an occupation yen.

HALSEY

I have a metal tray which was presented to me after a visit to Berchtesgaden. There is an emblem on it—a swastika and eagle together with the initials "A. H." I carried this tray, which once belonged to Adolph Hitler, all over Europe and listed it on my customs declaration when I flew home. The customs appraiser set a $2 price tag on it . . . Alfred Hitchcock saw it and demanded it. He insisted that it had once belonged to him, that a German spy in the guise of a London greengrocer had stolen it and, despite pursuit by Scotland Yard, escaped with it across the sea. It was brought to Berchtesgaden, Hitchcock insisted, where Hitler, amused by the coincidence of initials, ordered the swastika and eagle impressed upon it to make it his forevermore. Hitchcock also suggested that the greengrocer did not look unlike me.

An actress once called me and said that she had just had some new photographs made. "I look simply divine in these pictures," she said. Then she added, poutingly, that the New York Post's library file on her contained a picture taken many years ago. "It's an awful picture," she insisted—and suggested that if she sent the new, divine photo to my office would I be a darling and substitute it for the old, awful one?—I did . . . That's how I knew she was about to divorce her husband—and had to pretend, without much success, that it was a complete surprise to me, when she telephoned a week later to tell me the news.

In the dark, candle-lit Champagne Room of El Morocco I once recognized Jose Iturbi sitting with some friends. Karl Inwald, the Champagne Room's pianist, greeted me as he usually does—by making room for me on the bench and permitting me to strike a few notes which I play by ear . . . Iturbi, startled by the change from Karl's Viennese Waltz to my boogie-woogie, wheeled in his chair and grimaced. "Well . . how do I play?" I asked him . . . "Let me put it this way," said Iturbi. "You can play a piano better than—better than I can write a column."

I've worn a dinner jacket countless times and rebelled each time, in vain. Column copy doesn't flow as freely as when I wear an ordinary suit—for the approach becomes different . . . Russell Maloney once wrote: "The psychology of the compulsion is obscure, but anybody who has ever given Lyons an anecdote feels from then on an obligation to give him more items." This compulsion apparently disappears when I wear a dinner jacket, for my friends, instead of easing their consciences by supplying items, put me on the defensive by asking: "Where have you been tonight, all dressed up?"

Some years ago a taxicab in which I was riding with Earl Rodney, the broker, was hit by another cab. I was thrown into the street and landed on my head. Rodney was shaken up internally and was hospitalized. The next day he sent a doctor to me to have my head X-rayed, explaining: "This is a good opportunity to find out if a columnist has a brain." I sent a doctor to have him X-rayed, and find out if a broker has a heart . . . We both brought suit against the cab companies. The jury decided that a broker's heart and a columnist's head can suffer no injury. They brought in a verdict covering only our medical expenses and not one penny for pain and injury.

Gas Station Man

The gentlemen who service cars . . . Along the winding miles . . . Are known throughout the country for . . . Their warm and friendly smiles . . . They are prepared to furnish you . . . With gasoline and oil . . . And fill your radiator so . . . It will not start to boil . . . They sell their products and their parts . . . But many things are free . . . Like washing glass and checking on . . . The wheels and battery . . . From early dawn till late at night . . . They work in grease and grime . . . To give you driving comfort and . . . To save you precious time . . . And while financially they may . . . Be doing very well . . . It is in courtesy that they . . . invariably excel.
